Navy Fund Cut May Lop Off 100,000 Men

Leaders Say Paring Budget Jeopardizes 150 Ships and 1000 Fighting Planes

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Reductions in the Navy's 1948 budget voted by the House will cut active operating forces by some 150 ships, 1000 planes, and 100,000 men, top-ranking naval chiefs warned Congress yesterday.

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal and Fleet Admiral Nimitz, chief of naval operations, appeared before the Senate Appropriations Committee to lodge strong protests against the 377-million cut approved by the House.

They disclosed for the first time what effect the money slashes will have on the Nation's fighting fleets.

Forrestal declared it will "seriously" weaken the Navy and "be interpreted as evidence of our intention to recede from our international obligations and commitments abroad."

Full Budget Favored

Nimitz testified that as the Nation's principal naval adviser and the official "responsible for the readiness of the operating forces," he could not go along with the reductions proposed by the House.

"With certain minor exceptions, I consider the full budget recommended by the President necessary," the admiral said. "My current estimate of the situation will not permit me to recede from that recommendation."

The chief of naval operations took issue with a statement of the House Appropriations Committee that the 377-million-dollar slash would not take "a ship off the ocean or an airplane out of the air."

On the contrary, he testified, the cut will:

1. Force the laying up of the "equivalent" of 3 Essex class aircraft carriers, 2 escort carriers, 1 battleship, 6 cruisers, 16 destroyers, 9 submarines and 120 other vessels.

Would Reduce Planes

2. Eliminate four carrier air groups and four patrol squadrons from the fleet and reduce the number of operating planes in all by about 1000.

3. Close three major naval air stations and other smaller air bases.

4. Reduce naval strength from 425,000 enlisted men and 46,000 officers to an average of 355,000 men and 42,000. To maintain this average during 1948, it will be necessary to go below 330,000 men during the latter half of the year. As the Navy will begin the fiscal year on July 1 with 429,000 men, the cut will approximate 100,000

Secretary Forrestal told the committee that the reductions in funds for training, if not restored, will "virtually eliminate" the operation of the so-called Holloway plan next year. Most of the 3000 young men scheduled for enrollment in Naval ROTC courses this fall cannot be accepted as a result of a three-million reduction voted by the House.

Overseas Bases Hit

He added that elimination of this program would be "a breach of faith" with the young men and the colleges.

Forrestal said that a number of overseas bases must be closed or drastically reduced "with unfavorable impact on the strategic effectiveness of the fleets." Drastic reductions also will be necessary in shore establishments in continental United States.

Still Fight Control

Reds Clarify Their Stand On Inspection

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., June 11.—Andrei Gromyko today disclosed a notable clarification—and in some respects a considerable expansion—of Russia's willingness to accept international inspection of atomic activities.

Still, he stuck firmly to the fundamental Russian concept of national atomic operations. This is basically at variance with the American plan. He made his statement on an international atomic control agency to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission. It had been summoned for the occasion at his request.

New Concessions

His speech was hailed by other commission members in terms ranging from "very interesting" to "very important."

It contained some new concessions to, or at least more specific agreement with, technical provisions insisted upon in the Acheson-Lilienthal-Baruch plan for world control, now accepted by 10 of the 12 member nations of the commission.

In essence, Gromyko's proposal was only a restatement, in positive terms, of Russian views and their implications, which Soviet representatives have previously made in negative terms.

It contemplated an international agency which would inspect the atomic activities in the several nations, but which could not control them.

The agency could only recommend action, with the enforcement resting in the U. N. Security Council, where the big power veto prevails.

Its substance was a positive and unmistakable rejection of the heart of the American plan. This is that the international agency actually operate all atomic mining and production facilities, and that its decision and authority override that of any member nation.

Scrap Bomb First

Gromyko's proposal, in brief:

An international treaty should be executed, outlawing atomic and other weapons of mass destruction.

A second treaty, or convention, would be agreed to, setting up an International Control Commission within the framework of the Security Council.

Later Gromyko himself told reporters he had not changed his position on scrapping the bombs first. He declared that "the convention on prohibition (scrapping the bombs) will be first and control afterward." The Americans have insisted they will not scrap bombs until the controls are worked out. This is a major U. S. point.

The control commission would have its own inspection "apparatus," meaning an international staff, with access to all nations' facilities for mining and producing atomic materials and atomic energy.

It would make periodical inspec-

Invited Out

COMMUNISTS act in Czechoslovakia, as Russia tells Britain Hungary's affairs are none of her business. Page 6.

Inquiry Asked

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

A formal note of protest to Russia, branding the Communist seizure of power in Hungary a violation of the Yalta agreement, was made public by the State Department last night.

Denouncing the forced resignation of Premier Nagy as "a most flagrant interference in Hungarian affairs," the note demanded an immediate three-power inquiry to establish the facts.

Unless such an inquiry is agreed upon, the note said, the United States "will consider such further action as may be appropriate in the circumstances," in accordance with American obligations in the Yalta Agreement, the Hungarian armistice and the Charter of the United Nations.

Note Sent to Weems

The note was sent Tuesday night to Brig. Gen. George H. Weems, American representative on the Allied Control Commission in Budapest, for delivery to Lieut. Gen. V. P. Sviridov, the Soviet acting chairman of the commission. It probably will be delivered today.

Copies were made available to the British and Soviet governments, but the British did not associate themselves with the American protest. They acted independently by asking Sviridov for the facts, and by sending Sir Maurice Peterson, their Ambassador in Moscow, to discuss the matter with Foreign Minister Molotov.

Dispatches from London yesterday said Molotov had been brusque and curt with Peterson, taking the position that the shift of political power in Hungary was an internal matter and none of Britain's business. Later Lord Pakenham, speaking for the government in the House of Lords, described Molotov's reply as "a travesty on the facts."

Not Hungary Alone

The State Department yesterday did not confine its protests to Hungary. It also issued a department statement—not a formal protest—against the arrest of opposition leader Nikola Petkov by the Bulgarian Communist government.

Again the State Department charged that the spirit and letter of the Yalta agreement were being violated. Petkov's leadership of the opposition "has evoked deep man "three hearty cheers." They did, and added a "Tiger."

President Truman was interrupted by applause 37 times in the course of a 20-minute speech. The applause was accompanied by a noisy thumping of desks and cries of "Hear, hear."

"I never in my life had such a

Joint Romanian, Yugoslavian Line Of Action Adopted

Belgrade, June 11 (U.P.).—Yugoslavia and Romania adopted a joint line of action "with the purpose of defending the sovereignty and the rights of riparian states at the International Danubian conference" during recent talks, The Yugoslav government announced tonight.

The communique also announced that the two nations had agreed upon the text of a cultural agreement to be signed soon in Bucharest. It confirmed plans for cultural and economic cooperation already outlined by Romanian Premier Petru Groza, head of the Romanian Mission, at a press conference here.

Athens, June 11.—When the American mission arrives in Athens, it will be faced by a highly complicated political and economic situation—one far worse than before March 12, when President Truman proclaimed his famous doctrine.

To fathom this complicated trend of affairs your correspondent, during the last two weeks, attempted to meet all the political leaders, right and left, in Greece. Who are the chief actors in the Greek drama? What role do these leaders play?

Premier Dimitrios Maximos is a small, unassuming looking man, with strong spectacles and a black-and-greyish goatee, which makes one forget that he is 71 years of age. A Royalist all his life, Maximos never belonged to the Populist Party (the chief Royalist party organization) of the Tsaldaris family. Maximos willingly admits that he has no power, represents practically nobody, has no party to speak of—he was chosen Premier simply because the three center parties refused to enter a coalition under

Appeal Bars Holtzoff in Mass Trial

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Justice Alexander Holtzoff of the United States District Court was barred yesterday from presiding at the mass conspiracy trial of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee board.

The decision of the United States Court of Appeals here made legal history. It was the first time that a writ of prohibition has ever been issued against a Federal Judge who refused to remove himself after being charged with bias.

But the Court of Appeals made it clear that it had not found Judge Holtzoff guilty of "bias and prejudice" as charged by Defense Attorney O. John Rogge.

Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner declared that in his court's opinion a Federal judge must remove himself from a case when he is accused of bias in a sworn statement—whether the facts are true or false.

Other Justices Concur

The fact that the charge has been filed, in the proper form, makes it the judge's duty to remove himself, said Justice Groner. Justice Henry W. Edgerton and E. Barrett Prettyman concurred in the oral decision made by the 74-year-old Chief Justice.

United States Attorney George Morris Fay said the decision may be appealed to the Supreme Court. In that event, the 16 defendants would have their case postponed indefinitely.

Attorneys for Gerhart Eisler, German-born Communist who was found guilty of contempt of Congress before Judge Holtzoff Tuesday just before the mass trial began, said they would ask for a new trial. Judge Holtzoff denied a similar petition for Eisler.

Yesterday they filed another plea for Judge Holtzoff to remove himself from Eisler's trial for passport fraud. The fraud trial is scheduled to begin next Wednesday.

FBI Connection Cited

The trials of the 16 members of the organization and Eisler both stemmed from refusal to furnish information to the House Un-American Activities Committee. The 16, in addition to being charged with contempt of Congress, also are charged with conspiracy. Eisler was found guilty only of contempt.

Defense Attorney Rogge based his plea for removal on a declaration that Judge Holtzoff had helped formulate policies of the FBI while he was legal adviser to J. Edgar Hoover before he came to the bench in 1945.

Judge Holtzoff, he said, was employed in that capacity while the FBI was investigating Dr. Edward K. Barsky of New York, chairman of the board and one-time medical director for the International Brigade in Spain during the Franco civil war. Since 1942 when the Ottawa, Ontario, June 11.—President Truman stood in the House of Commons here today, and in quiet, simple words outlined anew the United States plan for halting aggressive communism all over the world.

The applause that came from members of the Canadian Parliament was tremendous, the greatest Mr. Truman has ever received in his two years in the Presidency.

It was a spectacular indorsement of what has come to be known as the Truman doctrine, although it carried no commitment from the Canadian government as such.

At the end, Prime Minister Mackenzie King asked the members of Parliament to give Mr. Tru-

Push-Button Flies Plane 2000 Miles

Wilmington, Ohio, June 11 (INS).—An Army Air Forces all-weather C-54 aircraft landed at the Clinton County airfield at Wilmington today after completing a 2000-mile nonstop automatic push-button flight from Long Beach, California.

The plane took off from California at 7:04 a.m. and landed at Wilmington at 3:50 p.m. During the entire flight, no human hands touched the plane's controls.

Capt. Thomas J. Wells, project officer, said the radio facilities of a Long Beach radio station, together with those of stations at Garden City, Kans., and the Army Air Forces' Cincinnati station were used to control the plane in flight.

Bill to Boost Wool Tariffs May Hit Veto

Rejecting every appeal by Secretary Marshall and other Administration leaders, a Senate-House conference yesterday agreed on a bill to permit higher import restrictions on foreign wool.

The chief controversial clause in the bill permits the President to require that import fees be imposed on shipments of foreign wool to this country whenever such imports threaten the domestic price support program.

The President could either set import fees or quota restrictions. The regular tariff is 34 cents a clean pound and the fees could range up to 50 per cent of the value of the wool, in addition.

The conference agreement constituted the most important victory of high tariff forces in this session of Congress. It was reached in spite of warnings from Marshall and others that such a bill would jeopardize the entire reciprocal trade program and the future of the proposed new International Trade Organization.

Unless the Senate reverses the action of its conferees, the bill is expected to head straight into a presidential veto. Administration forces, although shaken by yesterday's decision, were fairly confident of enough votes in the Senate for a veto to be sustained.

Even if the veto is sustained, however, passage of the bill by both houses of Congress was ex-

Conferees Agree On Limited Curbs Until March, '48; Keep 15% Boost

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

House-Senate conferees yesterday agreed on extension of limited rent controls through February 29, 1948, with provision for immediate 15 per cent boosts where landlords and tenants agree.

The compromise rewrite of the widely different House and Senate bills was completed at a late afternoon session, but conferees said they would hold one more meeting to go over the final measure.

With Washington landlords and tenants left subject to the separate District law, expiring December 31, the proposed national extension junks House-approved authority for the President to extend controls through March, 1948.

Local Boards May Act

Local advisory boards were vested with virtual authority to end controls earlier in their own areas, or to raise rent ceilings, if their recommendations were not overridden within 30 days by the Housing Expediter.

House provisions repealing emergency rent-control machinery, and vesting the Housing Expediter with greatly modified enforcement powers, were substituted for the Senate's extension of the present law.

As the conference adjourned, one Democratic conferee, Senator Glen T. Taylor (Idaho), announced he would not sign the report. Another, Representative Brent Spence (D., Ky.) said he doubted he would sign.

But Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) said there was little choice: "It is this or nothing." Representative A. S. (Mike) Monroney (D., Okla.) took a similar view.

Called End to Control

Taylor issued a statement saying the bill should be named "The Rent Decontrol and Dehousing" Act. Said Taylor: "For all practical purposes this ends effective rent control for 16 million families in the United States."

Senator C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.), chairman of the Senate conferees, said that under the arrangement for voluntary rent increases of up to 15 per cent, by mutual agreement of landlord and tenant, renters would have until the end of this year to sign such a lease. The lease, which must be registered with the Housing Expediter, would then be good until January 1, 1949. The proposed 15 per cent "volun-

Stocks Have Best Upturn of Year

New York, June 11 (AP).—Stocks staged their sharpest rally of the year today, gaining $1 to more than $4 a share. Average market value of stocks climbed to the highest point since May 5.

Wall Street's optimism was credited in part to belief the President may sign the tax reduction bill now on his desk. Some brokers saw the upturn as signalling the start of a summer rally. Historically the market is accustomed to an upturn from mid-June levels.

Wide gains were registered by Coca Cola, ahead $8 at $164 a share; Chrysler, $4 to $105; Santa Fe, $3.25 at $77.75; Montgomery Ward, $3 at $57.50; Southern Railway, $3 at $34, and U. S. Steel, $2.25 at $67.50.

Interim Funds Proposed for U. S. Agencies

Facing a session's end money-bill log jam, the House Appropriations Committee yesterday recommended blanket authority for all Government agencies to meet payrolls and other costs until Congress sweats to final passage its last budget-cut bill.

The so-called "continuing resolution," patterned after other fund holdovers in recent years, was the first formal recognition that many a House-cut appropriation, challenged by the Senate, will not become law by the June 30 deadline. Not a single 1948 supply bill has yet reached the White House.

The blanket extension, subject in each case to departmental checks finally voted by Congress, was inserted in a bill providing $58,856,257 in 1947 deficiency appropriations for nine Government departments. This was $1,422,500 less than the President said was needed.

House Passes Corporation Bill

On the appropriations front, meanwhile:

1. The House passed and sent to the Senate a $36,097,568 appropriation bill for Government corporations, cut 14 million below budget estimates. Nearly 66 per cent of the cut was directed at housing agencies. The House ordered the Federal Housing Expediter to start liquidating his office July 1, and complete the job in a year. It slashed five million dollars from the Federal Public Housing Authority's budget. At the same time, it directed the Tennessee Valley Authority to repay over

Extra Supplies Inspire Action; Price Ceilings To Be Continued

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

You can throw away your ration books at long last.

Rationing of sugar for home and institutional use, which includes hotels and restaurants, was removed at one minute after midnight last night.

Price controls, and rationing for industrial use, will continue, however.

The order, issued by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson late last night, removes from ration control the last of the hundreds of items that were rationed during the war.

The action came just five years and six weeks after sugar rationing was first put into effect, April 28, 1942, the fifth month of the war.

About 800 employes in the sugar rationing section will be affected at once, Anderson said.

Cons lered in May

Although rationing to industrial users will continue, Anderson's aides admitted it would be difficult to ration completely the small, neighborhood bakery or candy shop.

Anderson revealed that the end of rationing was considered late in May.

It was given up, he said, because removal of rationing would have interfered "with my pleading so strongly with the world pool for this extra Cuban sugar," he said.

The order by Anderson came within 24 hours of the House Banking Committee reporting out a bill lifting sugar rationing.

"Did you take this action because you thought Congress would beat you to it?" Anderson was asked.

"Maybe it was the other way about," Anderson replied, grinning.

Additional Supplies Alloted

The action followed promptly Monday's order by the International Emergency Food Council allocating an additional 350,000 tons of Cuban and Puerto Rico sugar to this country.

A further supply of surplus Cuban stocks has been made available by being admitted to "free export," or, in other words, released from control by the IEFC World Pool, Anderson said.

From these sources, added to the 6,800,000 tons allocated February 21 by IEFC, a total of about 7,500,000 tons will be available to this country this year, Anderson estimated.

This would amount to about a quarter of a million tons more than the United States consumed before the war.

A third factor, Anderson said, was the indication that about 200,000 tons of sugar will be available for world consumption from Java. Lawrence Myers, assistant director of the sugar branch, has

Railroad Strike Ends In France; Trains Run Today

Paris (Thursday), June 12 (U.P.).—The strike of 500,000 railroad workers which had paralyzed French transportation for almost a week, ended early today.

The agreement ending the strike was signed by Premier Paul Ramadier at 5 a. m. (12 midnight EDT) an hour after union representatives had accepted terms offered by the management of the state-owned railways.

The rains will start rolling at 9 a. m.

Details of the settlement were not announced immediately.

Jury Bars Death Sentence

Davis Guilty, Faces Life Term In Woman's Hammer Murder

Hagerstown, Md., June 11 (AP).—Bruce Davis, 31, of Laurel, Md., stood in a sweltering courtroom here today and heard a jury convict him of first degree murder in the hammer slaying of Mrs. Florence Athey McAllister, 29.

The verdict stipulated Davis should not die for the willing. However, it makes imposition of a life sentence mandatory.

The tall, quiet one-time aircraft mechanic thus lost his gamble in obtaining a change of venue from Montgomery to Washington County. The jury reached its verdict in 60 minutes.

Defense counsel immediately moved for a delay in pronouncement of sentence pending a motion for a new trial. The court will hear arguments at 10 a. m. next Wednesday.

The battered and nearly nude body of Mrs. McAllister was found by relatives last December 10 in a second-floor bedroom of a seldom used farmhouse owned by her family near Burtonsville, Md.

Davis, a soft-spoken Tennessean, denied on the witness stand that he had even quarreled with the woman whom he described as his mistress. He said he had never before seen a broken, blood-stained hammer found beside the body.

Although prosecution witnesses would only say Mrs. McAllister had been dead not less than three days and possibly two weeks when her body was discovered, the State contended Davis bludgeoned her late last Thanksgiving night or early the next morning, November 29.

Davis acknowledged they slept at the farmhouse Thanksgiving night. The next morning, he said, they set out for Florida by way of Tennessee and Atlanta, Ga.

He said they intended to visit his relatives in Tennessee—a brother and sister at Kingsport, his father at Edson and a sister in Memphis.

"Florence," he said, "wanted to see her husband in the pen at Atlanta and straighten out what to do with their two cars."

Californians Ask Pauley to Resign, Censure Truman

Los Angeles, June 11 (AP).—Reverberations of last Thursday's Jackson Day dinner echoed last night in a stormy session of the Los Angeles County Democratic Central Committee as the group passed a resolution demanding Edwin W. Pauley's resignation as national committeeman from California and censuring President Truman because of the absence of a speaker at the dinner.

James Roosevelt is State chairman and ex-officio central committeeman.

A motion to drop President Truman's name from the resolution was voted down by the committee 54 to 35.

The resolution charged that Pauley had acted "undemocratically and with dictatorial high handedness" in preventing Gael Sullivan, national executive director of the party from appearing at the Jackson Day dinner.

SEC Challenges Auto Firm's Stock

SIR SAMUEL HOARE

London, June 11 (AP).—Viscount Templewood, a former foreign secretary, told the House of Lords today that in traveling throughout the world in the past two years he had found the persistent belief that "sooner or later there will be war with Russia."

He found the impression that an economic crash would come in 1948 or 1949, but a "universal belief in the supreme economic power of the United States."

Because of the widespread fear of war with Russia, he said, Secretary of State George C. Marshall's offer of aid to Europe should be welcomed by Britain "with open arms." Marshall suggested last week that the nations of Europe get together and estimate how much economic aid they will require together, so the United States can help them all at once, instead of one at a time.

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin was asked in Commons what Britain proposed to do about the Marshall offer. He said the government was urgently considering the possibility of drawing up with other European nations a combined program of import credit requirements for joint presentation to the United States "and any other country willing to make loans for economic recovery."

Stop-Order Hearing Against Tucker Set for Monday

Philadelphia, June 11 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange Commission today instituted stop-order proceedings against the registration statement of the Tucker Corporation, Chicago auto manufacturing firm organized July 8, 1946.

The statement filed last May 6, covering four million shares of $1 per value class a common stock, "appears to include untrue statements of material facts," the commission charged.

The commission set a hearing for June 16 to investigate the disclosures in the registration and to determine whether a stop-order should be issued.

The SEC action climaxes an eight-day secret inquiry conducted here and in Chicago. No stock has been sold, since the registration has not become effective.

Organized by Preston Tucker, well-known builder of racing cars, the company proposed to offer the shares to the public through an underwriting syndicate headed by Floyd D. Serf Co., Chicago, at $5 a share with a 70-cent a share discount.

The commission cited 17 items, including financial statements which it declared contained omission of fact or untrue statements.

Rental Is Halved

By The Associated Press

The War Assets Administration last night scaled down from $1,000,000 to $500,000 the amount it said it will charge automobile maker Preston Tucker for the first year's rental on the huge Chrysler-Dodge plant at Chicago.

A WAA official chalked up as "the agency's own error" this latest of many complications surrounding the leasing of the $170,000,000 wartime plane engine plant to the new automobile concern.

WAA on Tuesday said Tucker would be asked to pay $1,000,000 in rental for the year ending June 30, and one official said WAA expected a "battle royal" when it tried to collect the amount.

However, another official said that a recheck yesterday of the terms of the 10-year lease "shows that $500,000 is the only amount we can legally charge for the first year." He added he did not know "whether there will be any battle" over collecting the smaller amount.

Under a revised lease agreement reached last September 1, the rent on the Chicago plant was set at a minimum of $500,000 annually for the first two years while operations were getting underway. However, WAA had announced it planned to up the first year's charge to $1,000,000 since Tucker had used some of the plant's equipment.

The WAA official told a reporter that "a study by the legal department" shows that only the minimum can be charged. He said this was decided only yesterday.

He added that Tucker will be asked to pay the $500,000 at the end of this month. He said Tucker also will be required to show $15,000,000 in reserves, as a warranty of his ability to make good on the lease agreement.

House Group Hears Compton Urge Military Training Plan

DR. KARL T. COMPTON

Congress was urged yesterday to adopt a ten-year program of universal military training as an essential step of national preparedness.

Dr. Karl T. Compton, chairman of a Presidential advisory commission which studied the question, told the House Armed Services Commitee such a plan would promote world disarmament and safeguard American liberties.

Compton, a scientist and president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was the first witness heard as the House committee opened hearings on the controversial issue.

Questioned by Representative W. Sterling Cole (R., N. Y.) on suggestions the United States seek an international agreement barring compulsory military service before launching such a training program, Compton contended this was "unsafe." House GOP leaders have advanced such proposals.

Limitation a Good Idea

He agreed with Cole that it would be a good idea to propose arms limitation before the United Nations, but pointed out that 38 of 44 member nations have universal military service now. Russia, Compton noted, requires every man to serve three to five years in uniform.

"But it would not be safe to wait for the outcome of the international political maneuvers which would follow," he added. "And if we adopt universal training, it would strengthen the move for reduction of world armaments."

The commission of civilian leaders headed by Compton recommended a year's training for all young men. Six months would be spent in basic military instruction in a camp or aboard ship. Youths could discharge the second six months' obligation by joining the National Guard or Reserve for three years, going to college and enrolling in the ROTC, or other means.

Compton told the committee he didn't believe the United States is likely to "get into a desperate world war" within the next few years. He thought no nation would attack us until it gets a supply of A-bombs.

But he pointed out that the United States is a "rich Nation, relatively untouched by the war" among "desperate, suffering nations." The situation could be "very dangerous" if allowed to build up, Compton added.

The M. I. T. head declared that UMT would greatly strengthen the United Nations. Many small countries, he said, would like to back up some of the policies urged by the United States but are afraid we're unwilling or unable to stand behind them ourselves.

"We are failing to get the support of liberty-loving nations because our military potential has declined so much since the end of the war," Compton declared.

He declared that adoption of UMT would have a "great psychological effect" throughout the world and line up wavering European countries behind us.

Compton made these other points during his testimony:

1. America's present reserve of war veterans will be of little value five or six years hence. By approving UMT now, it will provide trained young reservists by then to take their places. He saw no other alternative to UMT to provide the National Guard and reserve we need.

2. The United States will not be "shielded" by Great Britain again for two or three years if war comes. We shall not have time to train an army after it starts.

3. UMT will cost about 1¾ billion dollars a year, but this is but one tenth of what America spends on liquor, tobacco, chewing gum and cosmetics annually.

4. While the Gallup and all other polls show national sentiment to be 2 or 3 to 1 in favor of UMT, the "hundreds" of letters received by the Compton Commission ran 99.5 per cent against such training. Most of them were identical, indicating "organized pressure groups" were busy, Compton said.

Questioned by Representative Les Arends (R., Ill.), the M. I. T. head acknowledged he had favored UMT before being named to the commission last December. Arends asked if it was true that every member favored such training when appointed.

Compton said he had no idea, but that at times during their early discussions it seemed they might report either way. The report was unanimous.

Next hearing on the bill will be held June 18. Little prospect is seen for passage of the measure this session.

PUC to Investigate Effects of Change To Natural Gas

Effects of the changeover from mixed to natural gas on Washington Gas Light Co.'s operations will be investigated soon by the Public Utilities Commission.

Date for the public hearing, which will consider the gas company's engineering and accounting for the year ending June 30, will be announced later, PUC officials said.

Company officials were notified yesterday of PUC's intention to hold the hearing so that they could prepare for the investigation, PUC said.

Under a "sliding scale" arrangement established in 1935, PUC holds annual hearings to determine if rate adjustments are warranted by company operations during a "test year" ending June 30.

U. S. Considers Easing Rough Spot in British Loan Conditions

The United States is ready to consider easing one of the burdensome obligations of the British loan agreement—if the British want it eased.

This is the provision requiring the British, after July 15 of this year, to make sterling "freely convertible" into dollars in their current transactions with other countries.

The agreement provides, however, that the July 15 deadline can be postponed if both governments are willing to do so. The Post learned yesterday that the United States Government would consider a British request "sympathetically," especially in view of serious and unforeseen drain on Britain's dollar resources during the past year.

Anxious to Discuss It

The British will have a chance to discuss a postponement informally when Undersecretary Will Clayton stops in London on his way back to the trade conferences at Geneva. Dispatches from London report the British anxious to discuss their whole balance of payments problem with Clayton.

So far, however, the British have not asked for a postponement of the convertibility clause. They have not asked for it even though there were cries of dismay in London over this clause when the Anglo-American loan agreement was first made public at the end of 1945.

It was represented as a harsh bargain and as a commitment that would be difficult if not impossible to fulfil. Since then, however, there has been a change of heart about it in official London.

Have Asked No Postponement

Not only have the British not asked for a postponement of the July 15 deadline, but they have already made about 200 million dollars' worth of sterling freely convertible into dollars in paying for their current imports from Argentina, Canada, Belgium, the Netherlands, Portugal, Italy, Sweden and Norway.

There are two chief reasons why the British have been willing and able — surprisingly willing, in American official opinion—to pay dollars if their foreign suppliers want them.

The first is that it helps world confidence in the strength of sterling to make it freely convertible into dollars. The British, naturally, are anxious to rebuild the reputation of sterling as a safe and useful currency in world trade.

The second reason is that they have protected themselves against a world-wide run on sterling by timid foreigners who might, for no particular reason, want to be paid in dollars.

Series of Agreements

They have done this by an ingenious series of agreements between the Bank of England and the central banks of Britain's leading customers and suppliers. This is how the agreements work, taking Belgium as an example:

A Belgian exporter is paid in sterling by the British importer. The Belgian surrenders his sterling to the central bank, and gets Belgian francs in exchange. If a Belgian importer wants to buy British goods, his central bank provides the necessary sterling; if he wants to buy American goods, his central bank will provide dollars if it has them.

If the central bank does not have enough dollars, it is perfectly free to sell its sterling in New York for dollars, with the permission of the Bank of England. In other words, sterling is freely convertible into dollars, but only to the extent justified by legitimate business needs.

Protected by such arrangements, the British Treasury now feels it is able to meet the convertibility clause of the loan agreement next July 15.

Only Slight Relief

In any case, Britain's present and prospective dollar deficit is so enormous that a postponement of the July 15 deadline would give comparatively slight relief. Informed economists here estimate Britain will need at least two billion dollars, above the present American loan, before she can complete the reconstruction of her export industries and put herself back on a self-supporting basis.

Her plight is part of the general condition of most of western Europe, as Secretary Marshall outlined it at Harvard last week. In Britain's case the drain of dollars has been made more acute by the rise in prices here, coupled with last summer's disastrous floods and last winter's paralyzing cold and snow.

What troubles the British far more than the convertibility clause is another part of the Anglo-American loan agreement, providing that import restrictions may be imposed only on a nondiscriminatory basis. In other words, the British cannot cut down their imports of any product from the United States without correspondingly cutting their imports of the same product from a non-dollar area.

Imposes Hardship

This imposes real hardship on the British at a time when they would like to conserve their dollar resources by buying equivalent products from the continent of Europe or from their dominions. There is little doubt, here or in London, that British officials will raise this issue with Clayton when he visits England.

In this, as in everything else connected with Europe's economic needs, the Administration wants to help, but it also wants concrete proposals from the Europeans themselves.

Carriage Falls 100 Ft., Baby Only Slightly Hurt

New York, June 11 (AP).—A year-old boy, rolling over and over in the perambulator to which he was strapped as the carriage plunged 100 feet down a ravine with a 60-degree incline, escaped today with minor cuts and bruises.

The baby, Owen Kelly, jr., was in the carriage near the edge of the ravine in Upper Manhattan while his mother, Margaret, was talking to friends. The carriage suddenly began to roll down the incline, struck a tree in the ravine, toppled over, and rolled down the hill, finally coming to rest against a tree.

Overby Confirmed As Fund Director

Andrew N. Overby of New York was confirmed by the Senate yesterday as United States executive director of the international monetary fund. He succeeds Harry D. White, resigned.

Hagana Halts Smuggling of Immigrants

Jerusalem, June 11 (AP).—A spokesman for Hagana, Jewish underground group which has been sponsoring the smuggling of Jews from Europe into Palestine, said today it was halting its immigration activities temporarily "because of new difficulties at ports of embarkation."

The spokesman told the Associated Press that no ships were en route to the Holy Land with uncertified immigrants.

Measures taken at European ports to thwart the exodus of Jews to Palestine, he said, have made it "virtually impossible to provision ships for long sea voyages."

"There are, however, many ships and, thousands of Jews awaiting a chance for the journey, and they will sail as soon as we surmount these new obstacles," he declared.

The spokesman said the temporary halt in underground immigration "has nothing to do with United Nations activities in Palestine." The ships now standing by in European ports eventually will sail "regardless of any decision or action by the United Nations," he added.

A U. N. inquiry commission on the Holy Land will hold its first meeting here Monday.

The Hagana source said there might be a possibility that other underground groups would send shiploads of uncertified immigrants to Palestine, but "we know of none that will come."

Arabs Boycott U. N. Group

Jerusalem, June 11 (INS).—The Palestine Arab Higher Executive decreed tonight a complete "social and political" boycott of the United Nations fact-finding commission in the Holy Land.

A country-wide Arab general strike was scheduled for next Monday, coinciding with the start of the inquiry, to mark Arab disapproval of the investigation. The Arabs believe the commission is biased in favor of the Jews.

Diplomatic Peace Rather Than Victory By Arms Held Aim

Nanking, June 11 (AP).—Chinese officials, alarmed by an Outer Mongolian invasion of Sinkiang Province, today were reported ready to seek a diplomatic truce rather than a military victory to end the outbreak.

China's armies already are committed to the worsening civil war and she has only a comparatively small force in Sinkiang, in the remote northwest.

A government spokesman declared "this is no ordinary frontier incident" and accused Russia of partial responsibilty. Outer Mongolia, a republic bordering Sinkiang, is Russian dominated.

Central News, official government agency, said military officials in Sinkiang reported four warplanes bearing Soviet emblems bombed and strafed ahead of the invaders.

Uranium Discovery Reported

The Central Daily News quoted an unnamed high government official as saying uranium deposits were discovered a few months ago in the Chitai area of northern Sinkiang. That is the area over which Mongolian and native Sinkiang troops now are fighting. Uranium is essential in the product of atomic bombs.

Chang Yuan-chang, foreign office spokesman, said:

"The government views the invasion with deep concern. It considers the Soviet government has a responsibilty for the attack.

"While our local military authorities have been ordered to exercise all possible restraint in defense of their position, the government has instructed its Ambassador in Moscow to protest to the Soviet government as well as to Outer Mongolia through its Minister."

The capital was without reports from Sinkiang for many hours. Government officials made no effort to hide their concern. They said the attack by well-supported Mongolian cavalry was the outgrowth of border clashes, current since February along the long, unmarked frontier.

Military reports said the government had no more than 60,000 regular troops in all of vast Sinkiang Province. The majority are cavalry units, widely scattered.

Shanghai Defender Commands

The defense of Sinkiang is in the hands of Gen. Sung Hsi-Lien, one of the heroes of the defense of Shanghai in the early days of the Sino-Japanese war.

A dispatch to the Kuomintang's (Government Party's) Central Daily News said the Mongols had advanced beyond Peitashnan toward Chital, Peitashan is 50 miles inside the Mongolian border and about 150 miles northeast of Tihwa, Sinkiang capital.

Initial reports that the Mongols had penetrated 200 miles were not repeated and developments indicated they were erroneous.

450 Miners to Test Silicosis Preventive

Scranton, Pa., June 11 (AP).—Four hundred and fifty mine workers at the Pine Ridge colliery of the Hudson Coal Co. have volunteered to serve as human guinea pigs in an experiment aimed at preventing anthraco-silicosis, commonly known as "miners' asthma."

Each day prior to entering the Pine Ridge colliery, the workers will gather in a shanty to be sprayed with a specially treated aluminum dust. The dust is inhaled into the lungs where it acts as a counteragent to silica particles that fill the air during drilling operations.

New Floods Feared as Crests Near Confluence of 2 Rivers

St. Louis, June 11 (AP).—The prospect of additional rain in the Missouri River watershed worsened the outlook along the flooding river in central Missouri today, but the flood picture improved gradually in northeastern Missouri and northern Illinois.

Army engineers, Government agencies and the Red Cross estimated the Missouri and the Mississippi already had flooded a million acres in the two States, adding 5700 homeless to the total of 18,500 driven from their homes by other floods in Iowa and Nebraska.

Further inundation was predicted as the Missouri and Mississippi crests moved toward the confluence of the two rivers about 20 miles north of here.

The Red Cross reported it had alerted all its chapters along the Missouri River between the State capital at Jefferson City and Boonville.

Further levee breaks were anticipated on the Missouri.

More than a half million acres were under water in this area and along tributaries to the north but the only evacuations reported thus far were 20 families at Glasgow and two in Jefferson City. The capitol and other public buildings were safe on high ground.

The Missouri was 7 feet above flood level at Boonville, but still a foot below the 1944 flood peak and had risen only a tenth of a foot in 24 hours as the crest approached.

Federal Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren said that while the Mississippi probably would be 5 feet above flood stage when it crests here sometime Friday, he did not believe the rising waters would cause any great amount of damage.

The Missouri was 4.5 feet above flood stage today at St. Charles, Mo., near the point where it empties into the Mississippi and it was expected to crest a foot and a half higher tomorrow, Wahlgren said.

190 Persons Removed

Stages along the Mississippi below St. Louis rose steadily and farmers as far away as Cairo, Ill., and Cape Girardeau, Mo., 122 miles south of here, prepared to evacuate if necessary.

The Red Cross reported 190 persons were removed by boats from Kaskaskia and Crane islands in the Mississippi below here.

The Mississippi had dropped a foot in the last 24 hours along the 80-mile stretch below Keokuk, Iowa, where much of the damage occurred. Alexander, Mo., remained completely flooded and parts of Canton and Hannibal, Mo., still were under water, but the worst was believed past.

15 Million Favored For Levee Repairs By House Group

By The Associated Press

Legislation to authorize an emergency 15-million-dollar appropriation for repairing levees damaged by recent floods was approved yesterday by the House Public Works Committee.

The committee acted shortly after its Flood Control Subcommittee reached quick agreement on the measure, introduced by Representative Simpson (R., Ill.). He said it may be brought before the House Friday.

The War Department reports its latest information is that 50 to 100 levees have been breached or destroyed by floods in the upper Mississippi and upper Missouri River Valleys in the last two weeks.

A 'Sociable' Call

Iowa Man Telephones Molotov

M. E. (SMOKEY) SCHROEDER
Not political, just social

Oelwein, Iowa, June 11 (U.P.).—M. E. Schroeder, a railroad fireman, is a common man who likes to be sociable. He proved it by picking up the phone and calling person-to-person to Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov in Moscow.

He made the call Sunday morning, after coming in off a run for the Chicago Great Western. Schroeder said he wasn't going to mention it to anyone, but Mrs. E. N. Nickle, night clerk at his hotel, did. She said today she "listened in."

"I just wanted to be sociable," the fireman said. "When I finally got the Kremlin, everybody I talked with wanted to know if I wanted to talk politics or diplomacy. I said I was just a little guy from Iowa who wanted to be sociable.

"Pretty soon I got Mr. Molotov. We talked for a while about railroads—and the weather. Then he wanted to know where Iowa was and what sort of a State it is. I got in a good plug for tall corn."

After he had talked with the Foreign Minister for about three minutes, Schroeder said, two or three secretaries "horned in." They wanted to know all about Hollywood. The fireman said he never had been there, but understood it was full of lovely girls and swimming pools and oranges and sunshine.

"Everybody I talked with seemed very friendly," Schroeder said.

The call cost the fireman $22.50 plus tax.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 11 (U.P.).—A signal flag which was on one of the target ships in the Bikini atom bomb experiment last July 1 is still radioactive almost a year later.

tions as it felt necessary, and special inspections if it suspected clandestine operations.

It would make two forms of recommendations. The first type would be to individual nations on production, stockpiling and use of atomic materials. The second would be to the Security Council "on measures for prevention and suppression in respect to violators" of the two proposed treaties.

It could "request" reports and statements from any national government. It would also have its own laboratories and experimental facilities and materials. It would conduct its own research, in the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

But the individual nations would operate their own mines and production plants. They would reserve for themselves the "right to carry on unrestricted scientific activities in the field of atomic energy, directed toward discovery of methods of its use for peaceful purposes."

A comparison of the statement with previous declarations of the Russians showed that it contained several new points, or at least specific clarifications of hitherto uncertain Soviet positions.

Three new Russian points were in the direction of the American plan:

1. The international agency would conduct its own research.

2. It would have complete "access" to all atomic facilities, from the mine to the finished product.

3. It would make inspections on the suspicion of violations of the agreements.

The following new or clarifying points, however, appeared to be more positive declarations opposed to the American plan:

1. Enforcement action would reside exclusively with the Security Council. In other words, any big power could veto enforcement action.

2. National governments — not the international agency—would own and operate atomic facilities, in their own full discretion.

3. The national agencies could conduct their own unrestricted research, a notion which the American plan vigorously rejects.

4. The international agency would have no powers except "recommendations."

Gromyko's plan repeated previous Russian rejection of the American proposal for the international control system to be put into effect by "stages." That is, as security measures are developed and more information and more and more access to American atomic facilities would be granted. At the end of the series, but not until, would the United States turn over its atomic bombs.

Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate to the U. N., later was quick to point out that the Russian plan was basically one of national operations, with control carefully guarded in the national governments, while the international agency had only limited functions and authority.

Austin interpreted as "encouraging" the fact that Russia made "specific" definitions and proposals for a concrete inspection system.

Adventists Voice Religious Freedom To U. N. Board

What Seventh-day Adventists believe is historical evidence that religious pressures and persecutions cause war was presented yesterday to the United Nations' Commission on Human Rights.

Officials at the World Adventist headquarters in Takoma Park have asked that their statement be incorporated in the International Bill of Rights. The statement pleads for a guarantee to every man the freedom to worship according to his own conscience, and to propagate his faith.

The document was signed by J. L. McElhaney and E. D. Dick, both of Takoma Park, respective president and secretary of the Adventist General Conference.

Tobey Identifies Lobbyist

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Senator Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) yesterday identified Joseph H. Hays, registered lobbyist for the Western Association of Railroad Executives, as one of a group of three lobbyists be denounced on the floor of the Senate Tuesday.

Tobey's verbatim quotation of the words reportedly used by the railroad lobbyists was stricken from the Congressional Record, with the words actually used being represented by blanks.

Reached at the office of the Association of American Railroads, Hays told The Post he had no comment to make on Tobey's statement.

"I have no comment of any kind, color or description or shape, size or form," Hays remarked.

Tobey said he had been "consigned to hell" by the lobbyists because of his violent opposition to the Bulwinkle bill which would exclude railroads from the provisions of the anti-trust laws.

Senator Clyde Reed (R., Kas.), Senate floor manager for the Bulwinkle bill, predicted yesterday it would pass the Senate with not more than 25 votes against it.

Hill Predicts Veto

Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.) who made a long speech against the measure as "a bill to destroy the American free enterprise system and create a cartel monopoly" predicted President Truman would veto the measure. The bill is opposed by the Justice Department.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), GOP Policy Committee chairman, said he would try to get an agreement to vote tomorrow.

Tsaldaris Called Greek Ruler

Tsaldaris' premiership. Maximos, indeed, had nothing to say about the near future—he admitted power did not rest with him. But he was confident that "if in five years you will come back, Greece will be once more strong and prosperous."

Constantine ("Dino") Tsaldaris is at present the real power in Greece. At last year's elections his party obtained 56.8 per cent of the total votes. A narrow-minded opposition followed negative tactics: they abstained. In a country of more than seven million inhabitants only 375,500 persons voted. Judged by the official lists compiled with the aid of Allied observers, abstention at the elections amounted to almost 50 per cent.

"Dino" Tsaldaris is now the head of the Populist Party which, until the untimely death of his cousin, Panayoti Tsaldaris, was led by the latter. Panayoti was a more cautious politician than his cousin, "Dino." He told me in 1935 (while he was Premier) that he did not wish to bring back King George of Greece into an "unsettled, revolutionary situation," though his Royalist followers attained the majority at the previous elections. Panayoti Tsaldaris, however, was outsted from power by the coup d'etat of General N. Kondylis who then, with the aid of a fake plebiscite, brought King George back to Greece, in November, 1935.

Constantine Tsaldaris lacks the diplomacy and cautious political sagacity of his late cousin. The plump, moon faced, hook-nosed, broad shouldered and always well-dressed Premier is a "strong" man who believes in force and who unhesitatingly trusts his own strength. It is said that he is one of the richest men in the country. His intimate followers are either blue-blooded royalists or rich men.

The opposition concentrates its attacks on those rich supporters of the regime. The Left maintains that only those were able to retain their riches who, more or less, collaborated with the German occupational forces. Otherwise either their factories or businesses were burnt, or their money confiscated, in one form or another, by the Teuton conquerors.

Tsaldaris lives in a magnificent villa on the western slopes of the Lykabettos, a tall and imposing rock in the heart of Athens, crowned by the serene building of a medieval cloister. The house is tastefully furnished—this perhaps is due to the charming personality of Mrs. Tsaldaris who in her first marriage was the wife of Mr. Schlieman, the excavator of Troy and Mycenae. The house is lavishly decorated with the portraits of the old King and of the new, while in Mr. Tsaldaris' study stands the silver-framed portrait of President Truman, of which the Premier is extremely proud.

Tsaldaris, who is leader of the Right, sincerely believes that his party represents the majority of deputies in the Parliament. As the elections of March 31, 1946, were controlled by Anglo-American-French observers, Tsaldaris believes the results reflected the true expression of national will.

The head of the Parliamentary opposition, Themistocles Sophoulis, does not agree with this thesis. And he ought to know: He was Premier during the elections. Eighty-seven-year-old Themistocles Sophoulis still lives in the house in Democritos st. where I repeatedly visited him during the civil war in December, 1944, the bullets whistling along the street as I cautiously advanced toward my goal. Sophoulis' mental alertness and his sagacity are amazing. Only his timid walk betrays his age, the clever white head with the small white mustache could be that of a sexagenarian. His unspectacled eyes are still searching and vivid.

Sophoulis represents a glorious period of Greece's recent past. He was Premier at the beginning of the republic, in the middle twenties; he was co-leader of the Liberal Party with Eleutherios Venizelos, Greece's "grand old man" who brought Hellas to the side of the Allies in 1916.

His criticism of the regime is annihilating. He was Premier during last year's elections and he asserts that while the elections were fair in the cities, terror prevented true voting in the countryside.

Sophoulis believes that only an impartial man, appointed as Premier, could form a government of large concentration. Such a man would be trusted by the guerillas who would surrender their arms if a generous and honest amnesty is offered by a man who inspires confidence. After this new elections must be held to give a chance of participation to those elements who abstained at the last elections. "A military solution cannot liquidate the civil war. Only a political solution, a pacification of the souls could really help," said Sophoulis.

One of the great men of Greece is Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, a tall erect soldierly figure, with a dark, almost olive-colored face which offers such contrast to the snow white upturned mustache. Plastiras engineered the republican revolution of 1922-23. From 1933, until December, 1944, he was living in exile in France. When the civil war broke out, the British hurriedly brought him back and pushed him into the job of Premier. But Plastiras is not a man who is willing to receive orders, so he resigned.

The majority of the center and of the moderate left believes that the great personality of Plastiras would be the best guarantee for the restoration of order in Greece. Plastiras himself is reluctant. "I am not a politician; I am too sincere and honest to be one," he likes to say. I happen to know that in his opinion only a political, and not a military, solution can settle Greece's civil war.

Most of the guerillas, many of whom were exiled from Turkey in 1923-25, consider Plastiras as their idolized hero. Many influential center people believe that Plastiras, either as Premier, or as a minister responsible for the amnesty, or possibly filling an important position in the army, could solve the situation. In many ways the Greeks (with the exception of the extreme Royalists) consider him as an impartial military figure, something like Gen. George Marshall is considered at home. Everybody knows that this Spartan, simple man seeks no personal gains, that he carries the interests of his country foremost in his heart.

The Communist leadership has been badly shattered by the deaths of John Zevgos and George Siantos. The present leader, Dimitrios Partsalides, is a mild-spoken, almost intellectual person with an offensive-looking Hitler mustache—a style quite common amongst the Greeks. Yet Greek Leftist politics are not "made in Greece"—they undoubtedly are directed from abroad. According to a cabinet minister with whom I spoke the new combined staff of the Yugoslav-Bulgarian-Elas civil war attempt is in Split (Spalato), a Dalmatian port of Yugoslavia. The success of the guerillas, nevertheless, cannot be explained alone by foreign intervention. Undoubtedly those who believe that a stable home situation could bring the civil war to an end, are probably not far off the beam. This, at least, is the view of most moderate elements in Greece, and they represent probably three-fourths of the population.

Reds' Pattern For Coup Seen In Czech Move

By Wilbur Mackey
Post Reporter

Communists in Czechoslovakia, in a move similar to that in neighboring nations, called for action against "reactionaries," while Russia bluntly told Britain that Hungarian affairs were none of her business.

Following the lead of Communist parties in Bulgaria, Hungary and Austria, Communists in Prague accused members of the Democratic Party in Slovakia of harboring "Fascist elements" in contact with foreign underground groups." The Democratic Party is the largest in Slovakia.

The eight-party National Front of Czechs and Slovaks, according to the International News Service, met and adopted a resolution calling for a "thorough political purge" to safeguard "brotherly relations" between Czechs and Slovakia.

A resolution also was passed urging the government to refute London news reports that government changes "by force" were being prepared, the United Press said.

Disclosed in Lords

The Soviet rebuff to Britain was diclosed in the House of Lords by Lord Pakenham, government spokesman. British Ambassador to Moscow Sir Maurice Drummond Peterson had called on Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov for information on Hungary, the United Press said, and Molotov countered with the charge that Britain was interfering in the internal affairs of that country.

Lord Vansittart, Conservative, read a letter from ousted Premier Nagy of Hungary, in which the latter declared the Russians were using a Nazi-like fifth column to bring his country under complete control.

"If the bourgeois elements of Hungarian society can be demoralized completely," said Nagy, now in Switzerland, "then elections will be held, which, under the leadership of the Communist minister of interior and Communist police, will yield the same results as those of Poland, Romania and Bulgaria.

Acting on Master Plan

"These steps show clearly that that the Soviets are acting on the basis of a master plan," he added, calling for an investigation by the British and the Americans.

Nagy said he had learned from another member of the Smallholders Party that President Tildy had been threatened with deportation to Russia if he resigned.

In Commons, the Associated Press reported that Bevin told Communist Willie Gallacher he would not ask Nagy to return to Hungary "unless I had a preliminary guarantee of security (for his safety) from another country." He did not name the country.

From Hungary, a reliable informant told the Associated Press that Russia is negotiating a military alliance and had agreed to train that nation's army.

Developments Elsewhere

Elsewhere these were the major developments:

1. AUSTRIA—Chancellor Leopold Figl defied Communist Leader Ernest Fischer, refusing to call elections before those regularly scheduled for November, 1949, the Associated Press said. In addition, parliament rejected Fischer's demand for an investigation of Foreign Minister Karl Gruber, who was charged with negotiating with Americans in Vienna.

2. BULGARIA—There was a demand that the assembly eject 23 members of the Agrarian Party on a charge that they "abdicated their mandate voluntarily by becoming tools of Nikola Petkov," head of the party, who was recently arrested, the United Press said. According to the Associated Press, their resignations were found among the private papers of Petkov.

Petkov was the object of discussion in London. Bevin said Britain was concerned. He told Commons that Communist Premier Georgi Dimitrov gave assurances "no torture or other means of physical coercion would be used against Petkov," who had headed the only effective opposition.

3. GREECE. A United Nations subcommittee investigating Greek border disorders refused to hold an inquiry in Bulgaria because of unexpected and last-minute conditions imposed by Bulgarian frontier officials, the Associated Press reported from Salonika.

Negotiating for two hours while standing on a bridge over the Bistritsa River, 2 miles withn Bulgar territory, the subcommittee turned back to Salonika.

An informed source said the first condition imposed was that the subcommittee would not visit the town of Berkovitsa, where the Greeks have charged the Bulgarians maintain a training camp for Greek guerillas. Bulgarians also refused to allow four Greek witnesses to accompany the investigating body. It was the second time in two weeks the subcommittee turned back from Bulgaria.

sympathy in the United States," the statement said, "because he has openly fought for acceptance and perpetuation of civil liberties in his own country—principles that were agreed to at Yalta, that underlie the terms of the armistice with Bulgaria, and that Article II of the Peace Treaty with Bulgaria was designed to protect and assure."

"As he goes on trial in his own country," the statement concluded, "so will the present Bulgarian regime be on trial in the minds of many Bulgarians and certainly in the opinion of all freedom-supporting peoples outside Bulgaria."

The texts of the statement on Bulgaria and the note on Hungary were broadcast yesterday in the Bulgar and Magyar languages and to the rest of Europe by the State Department's transmitters in New York. Both documents were clearly intended to put the American position on record and to encourage anti-Communist elements in the two countries.

Although the note on Hungary foreshadowed "further action" by the United States, it was not clear what this Government could do to alter the situation. In the Yalta declaration, President Roosevelt, Generalissimo Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill promised to afford democratic liberties to the people of the liberated and former satellite countries.

No Procedure Provided

No procedure was provided in case of non-fulfilment except that the three governments might agree on immediate consultations "on the measures necessary" to carry out their joint responsibilities. In the case of Hungary, the Soviet government has been unwilling to agree to such consultations, and is expected to reject the American demand for a three-power inquiry.

The Hungarian armistice does not deal with civil liberties and provides no machinery except for the Soviet-dominated Allied Control Commission for dealing with violations. The peace treaty with Hungary contains specific guarantees of civil and political liberties to the people of Hungary, but has not yet come into force.

Of the three international agreements cited in the American note of protest, only the United Nations Charter appeared last night to give any opening for "further action." Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, has already suggested bringing the case of Hungary "to trial" in the United Nations, but so far his suggestion has not yet been echoed publicly by any high official.

Much of the American note was devoted to charges of inconsistency in the Soviet response to previous American complaints. It recalled two complaints, on March 5 and March 17, over the Soviet army's arrest of Bela Kovacs, formerly secretary general of the anti-Communist Small Landholders Party.

To these complaints the Russians replied: (I) that the arrest of Kovacs could not be regarded as Soviet interference in Hungarian internal affairs, and (2) that a three-power investigation of this and other arrests would be interference.

The American note then complained that the United States and Britain had not been allowed to see the information "alleged to have been elicited from Kovacs during his detention incommunicado by the Soviet occupation forces"—information which, the note said, forced the resignation of Premier Nagy and the reorganization of the Hungarian government.

Text of Truman's Address To Parliament in Ottawa

Ottawa, June 11 (AP).—President Truman's address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Parliament follows:

Mr. Prime Minister, Honorable Members of the Senate, and Members of the House of Commons of Canada:

This is my first visit to Canada as President of the United States, and I am happy that it affords me the opportunity to address this meeting of the members of both Houses of the Canadian Parliament. Here is a body which exemplifies the self-government and freedom of the nations of the great British Commonwealth. The history of the commonwealth proves that it is possible for many nations to work and live in harmony for the common good.

I wish to acknowledge the many courtesies extended to me on this visit by the Governor General, Viscount Alexander, who paid me the honor of a visit in Washington a few months ago. His career as a soldier and as a statesman eminently qualifies him to follow his illustrious predecessors.

For the courtesy of appearing before you, as for other courtesies, I am sure I am largely indebted to my good friend, Prime Minister Mackenzie King. I have come to value and cherish his friendship and statesmanship. As our two Nations have worked together in solving the difficult problems of the postwar period, I have developed greater and greater respect for his wisdom.

Americans who come to know Canada informally, such as our tourists, as well as those whose approach is more academic, learn that Canada is a broad land—broad in mind and in spirit as well as in physical expanse. They find that the composition of your population and the evolution of your political institutions hold a lesson for the other nations of the earth. Canada has achieved internal unity and material strength, and has grown in stature in the world community, by solving problems that might have hopelessly divided and weakened a less gifted people.

Canada's eminent position today is a tribute to the patience, tolerance, and strength of character of her people, of both French and British strains. For Canada is enriched by the heritage of France as well as of Britain, and Quebec has imparted the vitality and spirit of France itself to Canada. Canada's notable achievement of national unity and progress through accommodation, moderation, and forbearance can be studied with profit by her sister nations.

Much the same qualities have been employed, with like success, in your relations with the United States. Perhaps I should say "your foreign relations with the United States." But the word "foreign" seems strangely out of place. Canada and the United States have reached the point where we no longer think of each other as "foreign" countries. We think of each other as friends, as peaceful and cooperative neighbors on a spacious and fruitful continent.

We must go back a long way, nearly a century and a half, to find a time when we were not on good terms. In the war of 1812 there was fighting across our frontier. But permanent good came of that brief campaign. It shocked Canadians and Americans into a realization that continued antagonism would be costly and perilous. The first result of that realization was the Rush-Bagot agreement in 1817, which embodied a spirit and an attitude that have permeated our relations to this day. This agreement originally was intended to limit and to regulate the naval vessels of both countries on the Great Lakes. It has become one of the world's most effective disarmament agreements and is the basis for our much-hailed unfortified frontier.

I speak of that period of history to make the point that the friendship that has characterized Canadian-American relations for many years did not develop spontaneously. The example of accord provided by our two countries did not come about merely through the happy circumstances of geography. It is compounded of one part proximity and nine parts good will and common sense.

We have a number of problems, but they all have been settled by adjustment, by compromise, and by negotiations inspired by a spirit of mutual respect and a desire for justice on both sides. This is the peaceful way, the sensible way, and the fair way to settle problems, whether between two nations that are close neighbors or among many nations widely separated.

This way is open to all. We in Canada and the United States are justifiably proud of our joint accord, but we claim no monopoly on the formula.

Canada and the United States will gladly share the formula, which rejects distrust and suspicion in favor of common sense, mutual respect and equal justice, with their fellow members of the United Nations. One of the most effective contributions which our two countries can make to the cause of the United Nations is the patient and diligent effort to apply on a global scale the principles and practices which we have tested with success on this continent.

Relations between Canada and the United States have emphasized the spirit of cooperation rather than the letter of protocol. The Rush-Bagot agreement was stated in less than 150 words. From time to time it has been revised by mutual agreement to meet changing conditions. It was amended as recently as last December.

The last war brought our countries into even closer collaboration. The Ogdensburg agreement of 1940 provided for the creation of the permanent joint board on defense. It was followed by the Hyde Park agreement of 1941, which enabled us to coordinate our economic resources with increased efficiency. Common interests, particularly after Pearl Harbor, required the creation of several joint agencies to coordinate our efforts in special fields. When victory ended the necessity for these agencies, they were quietly disbanded with a minimum disturbance of the national economies of the two countries.

The Permanent Joint Board on Defense will continue to function. I wish to emphasize, in addition to the word "permanent," the other two parts of the title. The board is joint, being composed of representatives of each country. Canada and the United States participate on the basis of equality, and the sovereignty of each is carefully respected. This was true during the gravest days of the war and it will continue to be true, in keeping with the nature of all our joint undertakings.

The board was created, and will continue to exist, for the sole purpose of assuring the most effective defense of North America. The board, as you know, has no executive powers and can only make recommendations for action. The record of the board provides another example of the truly cooperative spirit that prevails between the two countries.

The spirit of common purpose and the impressive strength which we marshalled for action on all fronts are the surest safeguard of continental security in the future.

The people of the United States fully appreciate the magnificent contribution in men and resources that Canada made to the Allied war effort. United States soldiers, sailors, and airmen in the heat of battle knew their Canadian comrades as valiant and daring warriors. We look back with pride on our association as staunch allies in two wars.

Today our two Nations are called upon to make great contributions to world rehabilitation. This task requires broad vision and constant effort.

I am confident that we can overcome the difficulties involved, as we overcame the greatest difficulties of the war. The national genius of our peoples finds its most satisfying expression in the creation of new values in peace.

The record proves that in peaceful commerce the combined efforts of our countries can produce outstanding results. Our trade with each other is far greater than that of any other two nations on earth.

Last year the flow of trade in both directions across the border reached the record peacetime total of 2¼ billion dollars. We imported from Canada more than twice the value of goods we received from the United Kingdom, France, China and Russia combined. United States purchases from Canada were about six times our purchases from Great Britain, nearly 10 times those from China, and 11 times those from France. We sold to Canada nearly as much as we sold to Britain and France together.

Gratifying as the volume of our trade now is, it is capable of even cordial reception," Mr. Truman was heard to say later.

The greatest ovation came when, after hailing American-Canadian friendship, urging expansion of American-Canadian trade and going all out for the St. Lawrence waterway project, Mr. Truman went into his peroration and told what the United States is determined to do in the world today.

"We intend to support those who are determined to govern themselves in their own way, and to honor the right of others to do likewise," he said.

Cries of "hear, hear," broke out. There was a great outburst of handclapping from the Senators, who were in chairs in the center of the chamber, and a pounding of desks by members of the House of Commons, a custom borrowed from the House of Commons in England.

"We intend to aid those who seek to live at peace with their neighbors, without coercing or being coerced, without intimidating or being intimidated."

He had to halt in the middle of the sentence to let the applause subside. The same thing happened again when he said:

"We intend to uphold those who respect the dignity of the individual, who garantee him equal treatment under law, and who allow him the widest possible liberty to work out his own destiny and achieve success to the limit of his capacity. . . .

"We count Canada in the forefront of those who share these objectives and ideals. With such friends we face the future unafraid."

The President's triumph in this, his first enunciation of the Truman doctrine outside the borders of the United States, was witnessed by Mrs. Bess Truman and Miss Margaret Truman. They were sitting in the gallery of the great, high-ceilinged gothic chamber.

Viscountess Alexander, wife of the Governor General, was sitting alongside the American First Lady. It was noteworthy, however, that the Governor General himself was absent from this historic ceremony. He was absent because, as the representative of King George VI, he can never go into the House of Commons, any more than the King himself can go into the House Chamber in London. It is a long story that goes back to the days of Charles II, who sought to smash the House of Commons.

President Truman, going into the Parliament Buildings today, was delighted to hear his State song, the "Missouri Waltz," coming from the chimes in the Peace Tower.

In the House Chamber, he was introduced by Prime Minister Mackenzie King. A clever politician, who yesterday rounded out 20 years in his office, Mackenzie King evoked laughter when he alluded to the fact that Mr. Truman has to deal with a Republican Congress.

Markenzie King recalled his own experience in dealing with a legislature dominated by parties other than his own, and turning to President Truman, he said:

"It may serve as a note of encouragement to you when I say that I have yet to find that such embarrassments are necessarily a bar to many years in office."

Mr. Truman, in speaking later, grinned and said, "I appreciated his political advice."

Among those who sat in the diplomatic gallery was N. D. Belokhostikov, the Russian charge d'affaires. Moscow has no ambassador here now, and has had none since the Canadian government discovered the presence of a huge Soviet spy ring.

Canadian political reporters, talking in the press gallery about the whopping reception given Mr. Truman's speech, said that a poll would show at least 80 per cent of the Canadian people behind the President's doctrine. The opponents, these veteran observers said, would be found chiefly in the left-wing Canadian Commonwealth Federation.

But although the rank and file of Canadians might be for the American plan to halt the Russian tide, there was some apprehension here lest Mr. Truman ask for a commitment from Canada.

Truman's Text at Ottawa

further expansion to our mutual benefit. Some of our greatest assets are still to be developed to the maximum. I am thinking of one particularly that holds tremendous possibilities, the magnificent St. Lawrence-Great Lakes system, which we share and which we must develop together.

The St. Lawrence project stirs the imagination of men long accustomed to majestic distances and epic undertakings. The proposal for taking electric power from the river and bringing ocean shipping 2400 miles inland, to tap the fertile heart of our continent, is economically sound and strategically important.

When this program is carried out, the waterway that is part of our boundary will more than ever unite our two countries. It will stimulate our economies to new growth and will speed the flow of trade.

There have been times when shortsighted tariff policies on both sides threatened to raise almost insurmountable barriers. But the need to exchange goods was so imperative, that trade flourished despite artificial obstacles. The reciprocal trade agreements of 1936 and 1939 made possible a sensible reduction of tariff rates, and paved the way for our present phenomenal trade.

Something more than commercial agreements, however, is required to explain why Canada and the United States exchange more than two billion dollars worth of goods a year. Ambassador Atherton has aptly given the reason as not "free trade," but "the trade of free men." That record flow of goods and the high standard of living it indicates, on both sides of the border, provide a practical demonstration of the benefits of the democratic way of life and a free economy.

The benefits of our democratic governments and free economies operating side by side have spread beyond our countries to the advantage of the whole world. Both nations expanded their productivity enormously during the war and both escaped the physical damage that afflicted other countries. As a result, Canada and the United States emerged from the war as the only major sources of the industrial products and the food upon which much of the world depends for survival.

Canada has responded as nobly to the challenge of peace as she did to that of the war. Your wheat has fed millions who otherwise would have starved. Your loan has strengthened Britain in her valiant battle for recovery.

The United States is particularly gratified to find Canada at our side in the effort to develop the international trade organization. We attach great importance to this undertaking, because we believe it will provide the key to the welfare and prosperity of the world in the years immediately ahead.

In sponsoring the international trade organization, the United States, with the cooperation of Canada and other countries, is making a determined effort to see that the inevitable adjustments in world trade as a result of the war will result in an expanding volume of business for all nations.

Our goal is a vast expansion of agriculture and industry throughout the world, with freer access to raw materials and markets for all nations, and a wider distribution of the products of the earth's fields and factories among all peoples. Our hope is to multiply the fruitfulness of the earth and to diffuse its benefits among all mankind.

At this critical point in history, we of the United States are deeply conscious of our responsibilities to the world. We know that in this trying period, between a war that is over and a peace that is not yet secure, the destitute and the oppressed of the earth look chiefly to us for sustenance and support until they can again face life with self-confidence and self-reliance.

We are keenly aware that much depends upon the internal strength, the economic stability and the moral stamina of the United States. We face this challenge with determination and confidence.

Free men everywhere know that the purpose of the United States is to restore the world to health and to re-establish conditions in which the common people of the earth can work out their salvation by their own efforts.

We seek a peaceful world, a prosperous world, a free world, a world of good neighbors, living on terms of equality and mutual respect, as Canada and the United States have lived for generations.

We intend to expend our energies and invest our substance in promoting world recovery by assisting those who are able and willing to make their maximum contribution to the same cause.

We intend to support those who are determined to govern themselves in their own way, and who honor the right of others to do likewise.

We intend to aid those who seek to live at peace with their neighbors, without coercing or being coerced, without intimidation or being intimidated.

We intend to uphold those who respect the dignity of the individual, who guarantee him equal treatment under law, and who allow him the widest possible liberty to work out his own destiny and achieve success to the limit of his capacity.

We intend to cooperate actively and loyally with all who honestly seek, as we do, to build a better world in which mankind can live in peace and prosperity.

We count Canada in the forefront of those who share these objectives and ideals.

With such friends we face the future unafraid.

organization was formed, the FBI has continued its investigation.

As a result of that investigation, said Rogge, Hoover declared the organization is a "Communist front."

Chief Justice Groner said he thought some of the accusations against Judge Holtzoff were "dreamed up."

"The principal influence of the court depends on the confidence of the people," he said. "Unless the courts are supported by a practically universal feeling that they are absolutely fair and above criticism in motive, then our whole system of justice becomes a farce."

Unless that support is given, he added, "ultimately this country will become something . . . else than a democracy."

It's Beefsteak aged to mouth-watering deliciousness ...made ready for you by Safeway's Guaranteed Meats plan

AGING develops the full, natural goodness
...yet the special plan that permits Safeway to guarantee you delicious meat includes other important steps, too

1. According to quality requirements of our Guaranteed Meats plan, all Safeway meats are held the full number of days needed to bring out peak flavor and tenderness. This scientific meat aging is accomplished in special, air-conditioned aging rooms at our Central Meat Plant

2. To make aging mean all it can, the meat must be really good to start with. So Safeway buys nothing less than the top government grades of beef . . . nothing less than the top grades of lamb, pork and veal. Our own meat experts make the selection

3. Expert cutting of Safeway bulk cuts at the Central Plant (with additional trimming at the Safeway market) removes excess bone, waste and fat. Such waste-free trimming before your meat purchase is weighed gives you more good-eating meat per pound

4. Right at their tempting best, these wonderful meats are delivered to your Safeway. They travel in refrigerated trucks, are packed in sterilized boxes. Temperature controls safeguard their goodness at every step. Stop by your Safeway market for a favorite cut we guarantee to please!

Enjoy your Meat eating under this simple guarantee
- Cook and serve any cut or kind of Safeway meat the way you prefer it
- Eat it all up . . . judge the tenderness, juiciness, flavor
- If you don't like it—for any reason whatsoever—we will give all your money back, without return of the meat!

Wool Bill Facing Veto

pected to have a damaging effect on the Administration's trade negotiations in Geneva.

Sixty different country-by-country negotiations are now going on at Geneva for the mutual reduction of trade barriers, in addition to general negotiations over the Charter of the International Trade Organization.

State Department officials conceded yesterday that passage of the bill, even if checkmated by a veto, would make the task of American negotiators more difficult. Secretary Marshall has already said that Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, all leading wool producers, will not be inclined to made tariff agreements with the United States on other products if Congress approves higher duties or import restrictions on their wool.

Tried to Get Proviso

Administration supporters in the Senate-House conference tried to insert a proviso that the new restrictions must not contravene any present or future treaties entered into by the United States.

This proposal got nowhere, just as it did when it was twice defeated on the floor of the House. The Senate version of the bill, providing for subsidies by the Commodity Credit Corporation in place of higher duties, also failed; the conferees would not consent to it.

Senators and Repreesntatives from the wool-producing States of the South and Southwest were unconvinced, and insisted on additional protection for American wool growers.

In this connection, Senator Aiken (R., Utah) said Secretary Marshall wrote him that the State Department "is strongly of the opinion that the Senate bill provides the only acceptable course of action not wholly inconsistent with our current efforts to remove the cause of sericus conflicts in the world economic field."

The bill continues through 1948 the Government program of supporting wool prices.

6 Persons Overcome by Heat As Thermometer Reaches 93

Temperatures which climbed to the season's highest mark yesterday caused at least four heat prostrations and drove those could get away to pools, beaches and the shade.

By 3 p. m., the mercury read 93 degrees—high for the day. Showers, scheduled to bring some relief from the heat, began falling in the area between 9 and 10 p. m. A cool air mass, with cloudiness and possibly more showers, was to move in today to cut temperatures to the high 80s. All-time record heat for June 11 is 101 degrees in 1911.

The three men overcome by the heat, treated at Casualty Hospital and released, were:

James Caldwell, 28, of 1613 Meigs pl. ne., who collapsed at 14th st. and Florida ave.

Daniel Bibb, 42, of 1304 R st. nw., overcome in the 4600 block of Minnesota ave. se.

Benjamin Ware, 45, of 617 Half st. sw., who collapsed at 12th st. and Maryland ave. sw.

The fourth victim was James Mellcoth of Baltimore, Md., taken to Bethesda Suburban Hospital from 9909 Old Bladensburg rd.

The fifth was Robert Ware, 68, of 4778 Lee hwy., an Arlington County laborer, who was treated at Arlington County Hospital.

None was serious, officials said.

The sixth was Rufus R. Henderson, 68, of 1726 P st. nw., who was admitted to Gallinger Hospital for heat exposure, dehydration and malnutrition.

The Capital's hot weather continued to come up from the Carolinas yesterday, but cooler air moving in from the West is expected to bring relief.

June temperatures skidded in the far Northwest and slipped below freezing in the upper Mississippi Valley. New rains were forecast for the already flooded middle Mississippi.

Maryland reported its highest temperatures of the year, with only the Chesapeake Bay region escaping readings of 90 degrees or more.

Cumberland had 98 degrees and Frederick's 96-degree heat dropped to 84 in a late afternoon, cooling shower. Salisbury had 94 and Baltimore, 92.

Virginia had a high in the mid-90's. In Richmond Gov. Tuck sweltered along with the others. Air-conditioning was at full blast in the State Capitol, but Tuck went along with an open window and electric fan.

He finds work a lot easier in the "plain old summer atmosphere," he said.

House Committee Proposes Interim Funds for Agencies

the next 40 years some 348 million dollars it has received in appropriations for power facilities.

2. The House Appropriations Committee charged the Federal Public Housing Authority has "failed miserably" to meet its purpose. A report by the committee's investigating staff said more than 31 per cent of all public housing, intended for low-income tenants, is occupied by persons who make more money than the maximum permissible or are otherwise ineligible. The report further charged that Housing Act provisions for elimination of one slum-dwelling unit for every dwelling unit built by the Government "has been almost completely ignored and the slums have continued to develop and grow."

3. In a public statement, Commissioner Dillon S. Myer of the Federal Public Housing Authority warned that House cuts in FPHA funds may force "violations of contracts made in good faith between the Federal Government and local governments." Myer said local housing authorities have constructed publicly owned housing projects on the strength of Government contracts, and have issued bonds based on the assurance of Federal aid in meeting the difference between rental income and operating expenses.

4. A National Housing agency official said seven of the nine points raised by the House Appropriations Committee in criticizing FPHA had been answered at committee hearings, but the committee's report fails to say so. Despite repeated requests, he said no copy of the report was supplied FPHA for investigation and answer.

At least one ranking member of the House Appropriations Committee said that the funds continuing resolution recommended yesterday by the House group, in addition to averting payless paydays for Government clerks, would strengthen the hands of House conferees in the fight to defeat Senate increases in House passed bills.

The resolution stipulated that funds spent by Government agencies after June 30 must conform to the bill finally passed. Thus each agency must anticipate what Congress will finally do.

Applied to the conference deadlocked Labor-Federal Security bill, where Senate conferees are fighting to restore House-denied funds for Edgar Warren, director of conciliation, it would pose this dilemma, one conferee said.

If Warren continued on duty beyond June 30, and conferees subsequently agreed to eliminate funds for his office, he might be denied compensation for time served in the new fiscal year.

Here are the nine points of attack of FPHA made by the House Appropriations Committee in the report of its staff:

1. The FPHA has failed to dispose of wartime housing and has inauguarted "a socialized scheme of disposition to mutual organizations which completely ignore any veterans' preference, unless the veteran was already an occupant."

2. Despite the housing shortage in this country, the FPHA sold to France last year 8110 new prefabricated housing units.

3. Some FPHA records were in such an "atrocious condition" that a reputable accounting firm declined to audit them.

4. The agency has followed "extravagant personnel policies resulting in overstaffing and duplication of work." The investigators recommended the closing of all regional offices.

5. The veterans' emergency housing program is "a dismal failure."

6. "There has been definite indication that the agency appears partial and paternal to the United Public Workers of America (CIO)," and in San Diego employes used their positions "to intimidate local housing authorities into giving preferred treatment to CIO strikers."

7. In the San Francisco area allegations were made that building materials "were fradudulently given to private builders by FPHA employes; that political contributions were solicited and obtained by FPHA; that regional offices gave lucrative contracts for serving surplus material to individuals who had no facilities and took no responsibility."

8. In one instance, an FPHA desk made available to the committee investigator was found "crammed with copies of . . . the local Communist paper."

9. Many FPHA bulletin boards "carry propaganda urging pressure on Congress on behalf of the CIO unions and castigating Congress for its attempts to shackle labor."

Sugar Rationing Is Abolished For All but Industrial Users

been in Java for a week studying sugar stocks there.

Another influence has been the drop in domestic demand in April and May. Anderson said this drop was sufficient to indicate that removal of rationing will not materially affect distribution.

Wholesalers and retailers may now acquire sugar without ration stamps. However, "they may not accept delivery of, or have in inventory at any time, more than 110 per cent of their allowable supplies. This permits an increase of 10 per cent in inventories.

All distributors, including retailers, are forbidden to deliver sugar to an industrial user without ration stamps. Complete records must be maintained.

All sales by retailers of more than 100 pounds, must be recorded with name of the buyer and date of transaction.

"The handling of about 1,800,000 gummed sheets of ration stamps a month, is eliminated," Anderson said.

Senator Hugh B.utler, (R., Nebr.) indicated dissatisfaction with Anderson's action. He believed that price controls should be ended.

In a letter to a Senate Appropriation subcommittee on agriculture before Anderson announced his decision, he proposed that both rationing and price controls be stopped on June 30 by cutting off funds to administer them.

He said it was "obvious" that Congress erred in extending the authority until October 31.

Anderson said discussions are now under way concerning readmitting sugar to futures trading on the commodity exchanges. Such dealings will have to be in futures after October 31, however, when price controls automatically are lifted.

Further Rent Control Voted

tary" increases, would be over and above rents in effect on the date of final passage of the act.

Other provisions of the proposed "Rent Control Act of 1947":

1. Would remove all ceilings on new construction completed last February 1, or since.

2. Decontrol as well all newly rented property, converted dwellings, and hotel accommodations.

3. Terminate all Federal building priority controls on June 30, except over recreation construction, such as theaters and bowling alleys. Priorities already granted, however, would remain in effect, Buck said.

4. Put all eviction cases back under State laws.

5. Remove the Senate's so-called "luxury exemptions" decontrolling single family accommodations renting for $225-a-month, or more.

6. Permit a landlord to evict a tenant if he wishes to sell the property or occupy it himself.

7. Modify enforcement machinery under which the Housing Administrator could sue for treble damages or, in flagrant cases, bring criminal action against violators. The tenant, however, could still sue for treble damages, and the Housing Expediter could sue for injunctions to enforce the law.

Authority to administer the law was placed under Housing Expediter Frank Creedon while the House was approving an appropriation bill provision ordering liquidation of the expediter's office, starting July 1.

Informed of this, Senator Buck said he did not believe it could affect the rent law, since the expediter was given a year to liquidate. He said funds to administer the modified law would have to be provided, however.

Despite repeal of emergency control machinery, Buck said he "presumed" the expediter could continue many of the old OPA rules under authority given him to issue regulations governing rents.

Empire Was Never Stronger, Declares Princess Elizabeth

London, June 11 (AP).—Princess Elizabeth, heir presumptive to England's throne, today received the freedom of the city of London, dined in state with leaders in public life, and told an admiring audience the British Commonwealth never has been more strongly linked.

Elizabeth

It was the princess' first major engagement in London entirely on her own, unaccompanied by other members of the royal family. Princess Margaret Rose witnessed the age-old ceremony of which her elder sister was the center. But her coming and going was independent of Elizabeth's semi-state procession in a horse-drawn landau from Buckingham Palace to the Guildhall.

A gathering which included Prime Minister Attlee, members of his cabinet and the Archbishop of Canterbury, applauded the princess' assertion that "our commonwealth is not so much a single act of statecraft as a miracle of faith.

"The link between us (the United Kingdom and the dominions) is stronger than it ever has been," she said. "The pillars of the dominions, separate and individual, are planted firmly on the foundations of self-government, but their strength unites to uphold the dome of empire, as unshakable as that great dome of St. Paul's" . . .

Large crowds cheered the princess as she rode to and from the Guildhall. At one point a group of office girls shouted:

"Where's Philip? We want Philip."

The princess turned and smiled at this reference to the recurrent linking of her name with that of young Philip Mountbatten, the former Greek prince.

As the princess set out from the palace, American superfortresses, on a good-will visit to the RAF, saluted London, taking care to avoid the procession route lest the roar of the motors frighten the horses drawing the royal coach.

Social Action Program Asked Of Lutherans

Kansas City, June 11 (AP).—Delegates to the Lutheran Augustana Synod's eighty-eighth annual convention were told by its president today that if the church is to retain its place in social welfare work it must maintain high standards with spiritual emphasis.

"Social action is called for in a ruthless industrial age that has multiplied the moral problems of mankind and intensified the resultant sufferings," Dr. P. O. Bersell of Minneapolis said.

Six hundred delegates from the United States and Canada are attending the convention here.

Dr. Bersell, expressed concern over the pulpit.

He asked:

"Are we fostering a new generation of preachers that gauge their preaching by the reaction of audiences that have itching ears, but want to be left comfortable, preachers that have a popular, modern message in which the preaching of sin and grace, the law of the gospel, contrition and faith has but little place?"

The synod president reported that the confirmed membership now totaled 306,786 and the baptized membership 413,692. The year's membership gain was reported at 12,482, the largest, Dr. Bersell said, in years.

New Receiving Home for Washington Can Be Built as Planned, Representative Horan Says

A new receiving home for Washington can be built as planned, Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash), said yesterday.

Horan said as far as he was concerned the Commissioners are free to go ahead with $311,000 project, to be built on Mount Olivet rd., near Corcoran st. ne.

Horan, chairman of the House District Appropriations Subcommittee, had said the day before he was asking that the project be delayed pending further study of ways to speed up foster home placement.

He said again yesterday "we are determined after discussion that we'll have to step up placements of children in foster homes."

He said the outlay for the receiving home, designed to accommodate 44 delinquent children at any time, "seems a huge cost, but it's probably unavoidable."

Award of the construction contract to John Tester & Son, Inc., has been approved by the Commissioners, following earlier clearance with Representative Horan, but the contract has not yet been signed by the Commissioners.

Horan said the subcommittee today will begin detailed discussion of the 11 million dollar public welfare budget "which may or may not result in savings."

Horan said a survey of all the city's welfare operations, public and private, showed an estimated 17 million dollars is being spent annually. He said public welfare services were received by some 32,000 persons a year, private welfare services by 20,000, and unemployment compensation by 35,000. Committee aides emphasized this included minor services.

Abandoned Baby Found With Note Blaming Mother

Chicago, June 11 (AP).—A blonde, blue-eyed girl of 6 months was found in an apartment building hallway today near a note which read: "Her mother can't find time to take care of her because she has a boy friend to keep track of."

The infant, wrapped in a pink and blue blanket, was found by a resident of the building, Mrs. Donald Estrin, as she left for work.

The note was written on ruled notebook paper with a scratchy pen and bore no signature. Addressed "To whomever finds the child" the note asked:

"Please take good care of her and make a good home for her. I can't do this myself because I can't take her around the country in airplanes the rest of her life.

"All I want is for her to have a good home for the rest of her life. With me her life is in danger and that's not giving her a break. Her mother can't find time to take care of her because she has a boy friend to keep track of, which is more important than the baby."

Civil Rights

By no means should the suspension of three police privates be considered a reflection on the entire Washington Police Department. In any organization as large as the District police force, there are bound to be occasional lapses in discipline. The visible excesses, such as those which resulted in the suspensions, should not obscure the good work that department members are doing quietly and efficiently.

Nevertheless, it is perhaps significant that two of the suspensions grew out of an incident involving alleged brutality against a Georgetown University student. Whether or not the charges of misconduct are sustained, they seem to be a good peg for Acting Superintendent Thomas to remind his men of the importance of an adequate respect for civil rights. There have been several disturbing stories of police brutality during the last year. Two that come to mind are the allegations brought out in the Kelly murder trial, in which the defense maintained that police had used third-degree methods to exact a confession, and the arrest of an Army general for drunken driving in which the general reportedly lost several teeth. There may be other cases. Possibly many of the charges are groundless and unfair, but whether the charges actually are substantiated in every case is not the essential point. The fact is that Washington cannot afford to have its police gain a reputation for unnecessary roughness.

Sometimes it is easy to forget the rudiments of civil rights when dealing with a bad actor. That is all the more reason, in our opinion, why police need to be thoroughly instructed in respect for the basic consideration due any citizen, and why the ability to impart this respect should be one of the criteria in the appointment of a permanent police head.

Occupation Marks

Senator Bridges is pressing for a full investigation of transactions in Russian-issued occupation marks that were used to pay Russian troops and subsequently came into the hands of American soldiers. Judging from the rather sketchy reports of the transactions, the Russians were very lavish in the distribution of these marks, printed from plates supplied by the American Army. Moreover, the appearance of notes of very large denominations affords circumstantial evidence that the Russians effected some changes in the plates before issuance. Subsequently Russian soldiers used the marks to buy articles that they coveted from our soldiers at highly inflated prices, and our soldiers in turn exchanged their ill-gotten gains for dollars.

About 400 million dollars, it appears, has been disbursed in exchange for these Russian-issued marks. And the taxpayers will have to meet the costs of such outlays except to the extent that the redeemed currency can be used for occupation costs or other purposes. It seems unlikely that any redress for this sharp practice can be hoped for, but it points to inexcusable carelessness on the part of our own military authorities that calls for a searching inquiry. Not only did the Russians outwit us, but many American soldiers have profited unjustly by the Army's loose practice.

Governing Guam

There is room, we think, for liberalization of the proposals now before Congress to establish an organic act for the government of Guam. For half a century, ever since we acquired it from Spain in 1899, the island has been under the rule of the United States Navy. Whatever the benevolence of that rule, it cannot be said to have discharged the pledge made by President McKinley to "insure that full measure of individual rights and liberties which is the heritage of free peoples." Civil government, and an increasing measure of self-government, are essential implications of that pledge.

The proposed organic act on which the House Subcommittee on Territorial and Insular Possessions has just concluded hearings would establish civil government—but at some indefinite future time. Perhaps there is justification for continued naval rule—that is, rule under a naval officer appointed by the President to the governorship—until some of the more pressing problems of rehabilitation can be overcome. But the Guamanians ought to be assured that they will have a civil governor within two or three years at the outside. And their legislature ought to have power to confirm officials appointed by him. The proposed organic act is defective as well, it seems to us, in that it makes no provision for grand jury proceedings or for trial by jury—cornerstones of freedom. The Navy appears to fear that it could not effectively administer justice if the Guamanians had these basic rights. Is not the fear itself an admission that naval rule is necessarily arbitrary?

What is now proposed for Guam measures up neither to the United Nations trusteeship agreement nor to our own principles and past performance in the administration of dependent territories. We do not believe that essential military security need be any more affected by the extension of civil government and the progressive development of self-government in Guam than in Puerto Rico or Hawaii. Indeed, freedom is the tie that most effectively binds our dependencies to us. And the fostering of it is the American pattern that most enhances our stature in the eyes of the world.

World Bank

In response to Poland's application for a reconstruction loan, the World Bank has sent a group of experts to that country to investigate economic conditions as well as political conditions that have a bearing on the economic outlook. This does not imply any departure from the Bank's policy of making loans solely for the purpose of promoting economic recovery and testing their soundness with reference to the presumed ability of the borrowing country to make repayment. On the contrary, the dispatch of a mission to Poland to determine whether that country can effectively utilize a World Bank loan is the best possible evidence of the nonpolitical character of the Bank's policy.

As we have frequently pointed out, the usefulness of the World Bank as an international agency would be destroyed if it were to employ its resources for furthering the political aims of the United States or any other member countries. Moreover, its ability to enlist private investment support by sales of its debentures would be forfeited if it were to abandon tests of economic soundness and make loans for political reasons. At the same time the Bank's management cannot afford to ignore the effect of Poland's political attachments upon her ability to make productive use of a loan and upon her credit standing. A banker who advanced funds to a borrower without first assuring himself that advances would be productively employed and without reasonable expectation of repayment would be unworthy of his hire. That being the case, the World Bank management cannot disregard the fact that Poland lies within the Russian sphere of influence.

Should an investigation on the spot by the Bank's experts indicate that the government might be unable to meet the conditions attached to a loan because of external interference, the attendant risks might well be considered prohibitive. On the other hand, if the political obstacles to lending do not appear to be too formidable, a loan to Poland designed among other things to expand her coal output and increase her coal exports would be of great assistance not only to the borrowing country but to western Europe as well.

The delayed recovery of Europe, the realization that huge amounts of foreign capital—chiefly dollars—will be needed to finance the reconstruction needs of countries not yet able to qualify for "sound" loans of the World Bank type, have for the time being minimized the Bank's significance as a postwar financing agency. Nevertheless, the Bank has an important function to fulfill in helping to re-create a system of international lending depending on private investment support and limited to reasonable business risks. It will no doubt grow in influence as emergency needs that can only be met by outright gifts or loans entailing excessive risks disappear. Meantime the Bank can relieve the pressure on our Government for financial aid by lending dollars obtained through sales of its debentures to private citizens, provided it limits its loans to credit-worthy borrowers. Any other policy would spell the Bank's downfall.

Housing Shutout

Because the veterans' housing program has deteriorated so far, there is a temptation to go the rest of the way and dump all remaining building controls. The House Appropriations Committee yielded to that temptation Monday when it voted to abolish the Office of the Housing Expediter and all priority functions exercised by that agency as of June 30. Such action, in our opinion, would compound the errors that have already resulted in the once bright veterans' housing program turning into a miserable dud. It would round out the shabby fraud that has been perpetrated on the former servicemen who are asking, not bonuses, but only a place to live that they can afford.

Both Congress and the Administration, as well as the perpetual property lobbies, share in the mistakes that have put new home construction into a nosedive. But it requires no apology for the inadequate performance to perceive what would be the effect of junking the remaining limitations. The two principal controls still in effect are priorities on such scarce items as cast-iron pipe and a limitation on the number of nonresidential building permits issued each week. The result of removing these regulations would not be to build more houses at reasonable prices, but to increase competition for insufficient supplies of materials. This in turn would serve to bid up prices, at the very time that a reduction in building costs is being held out as the only hope for stimulating construction.

Almost without exception, the vocal advocates of premature decontrol have shown themselves to be irresponsible. Their panaceas have dissolved in a new chapter of the inflationary spiral. The most extreme proponents of throwing remaining controls overboard are the real estate and building lobbies. Some have even gone so far as to proclaim—either naively or maliciously—that there is no real housing shortage! For Congress to heed their pleas for this final stab would give veterans good reason to believe that our legislators are more interested in placating pressure groups than in fulfilling their obligations.

Hungarian Coup

Our note of protest on Hungary and our insistence on a three-power inquiry will most probably be ignored. This is anticipated in Washington. But there seems to be a lot of hesitation over the next steps to take. Clearly nothing could have been done to stop the Muscovite capture of the government, even on a Hungarian appeal. But, since the Russians thrive as much on acquiescence as on eating, we must see to it that we keep the affair alive. In our opinion three steps should be taken immediately. They are:

1. Bring up the matter before the Security Council of the United Nations. It is taken for granted that the Assembly will take cognizance of the matter, but the meeting is not till next November. The Security Council, however, is always in session, and Hungary should be entered upon the agenda. This will immediately make the matter of concern to the United Nations, give the adventure in Hungary continuous publicity and pave the way for its consideration at the Assembly. Russia's fear of such a move is demonstrated by the renewal of Pravda's attack on the United States for "sabotaging" the United Nations.

2. Send our Minister-designate to Hungary, Mr. Selden Chapin, to Budapest, with the rank of head of the American mission to help in the enforcement of the peace treaties. It is unwise policy to interrupt diplomatic representation, but the case of Hungary is regarded as posing a dilemma over recognition. For the Austrians have been put in a turmoil over the events in Hungary, and would interpret recognition as a badge of approval of the coup. The dilemma could be avoided by the device of appointing Mr. Chapin as peace commissioner.

3. Take Gen. Mark W. Clark out of the Presidio in San Francisco, where he has little to do except catalog his trophies, and return him right away to the post in Vienna, where he served with great distinction as American member of the Allied Control Council. Why he was ever released from this post is past all understanding. General Clark was on his toes all the time, showed courage and intelligence in handling the Russians, and is sorely missed by the beleaguered people of Austria.

On no account must we allow the fine frenzy that was developed over the Hungarian outrage to dissipate into thin air.

School Aid

Approval by a Senate Public Welfare Subcommittee of the Taft-Thomas-Hill proposal for Federal aid to education is a heartening first link in the long chain that must be welded to bring about a rehabilitation of the country's public school system. We hope for prompt indorsement by the full Public Welfare Committee to be followed by debate and decision by the Senate as a whole. We hope, also, that the House will not be laggard on the spurious pretext of economy. In view of the fact that the bill, as now drafted, does not call for commencement of Federal grants to the States until the beginning of the fiscal year 1949, it can no longer be argued that it threatens the balance of the 1948 budget. Since it would probably be impossible for the States to begin operating under the program before the opening of the 1948 school year, the delay seems warranted. But the program ought to be enacted into law in the current session of Congress so that the machinery of administration can be established and set in motion.

The Taft-Thomas-Hill bill is strictly a States' rights bill. It provides for a grant-in-aid program to the States and rigidly denies the Federal Government any measure of supervision or control respecting the nature and techniques of the State school systems to which it will contribute financial aid. This being so, we can see no logic in the opposition of Senator Donnell who cast the lone vote against the program in the subcommittee on the ground that it would leave to State discretion whether aid should be given to nonpublic schools such as parochial institutions.

We think it a bad idea to give public funds to nonpublic schools. Nevertheless, this is a matter in which the States are entitled to exercise their discretion. Senator Donnell cannot have it both ways. If the States are to be kept fully free from Federal dictation, they must be free to distribute their school funds as they see fit. The overriding interest of the Nation as a whole is in seeing to it that its children everywhere have adequate educational opportunities. Because some States do not now possess the financial resources necessary to provide such opportunities, they must be given help. Federal contributions—without strings attached—are the simple, direct, effective way to lift State standards to a minimum of decency.

NOW BLOOMS THE APPLE TREE

Now blooms the apple tree whose bark
Is starry with these flowers like snow;
In spicy winds that stir the dark
White branches move and blow . . .

Bright petals on the shaken bough
Carry their message from the root:
Soon on the branches will ripen now
The sweet-cored, promised fruit.

Beyond the dust of mortal hours
The trees' bright fire cancels night,
Where brilliant with the flesh of flowers
The ebon bough is mixed with light.

Tax Reduction

I heartily support the position taken by The Post in recent editorials on the present tax legislation. To me a more compelling reason for a presidential veto of this legislation than those mentioned by The Post is the fact that excise and similar taxes should be reduced before income taxes. Since Congress saw fit to support the President in continuing these taxes beyond June 30, 1947, present income taxes should also be continued.

In considering the present tax bill the whole problem of taxation must be viewed. In time of war there is need to restrict civilian trade by excise, sales, transportation, utility, and other similar taxes. In peacetime, however, taxes or tariffs which restrict trade have no place. Instead, taxation should be designed to permit a high productivity, a bountiful trade, and a healthy economy. The only tax which will do this is a graduated income and capital gains tax. Such a tax distributes the burden of taxation in the same manner as Dame Fortune visits the taxpayers. A single tax of this type will also save money through decreased collection costs.

President Truman and Senator Taft agree that continued high production is necessary to maintain a healthy economy. They are both concerned about the current high prices, about the possibility of a recession, about the financial condition of our airlines, our railroads, etc. All of these conditions can be alleviated in part by eliminating those taxes which restrict trade and lead to increased prices. Is it not more expedient to stimulate trade through the abolition of restrictive taxation than to use these taxes as subsidies to keep essential industries operating? It is just as imprudent to prevent the recovery of a sick industry through taxation as it is to force a sick man to work.

If the time has arrived to reduce wartime taxes, let us first reduce those taxes which restrict trade and then devise an equitable graduated income and capital gains tax to support our Government.

Eulogy of Tiso

It is somewhat shocking when legislators of established repute misuse our Congressional Record. Notwithstanding the scant circulation of the Record this practice has become a source of alarm to observers who have long questioned its purpose.

On May 8, for instance, Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois inserted in the Congressional Record an editorial which eulogized an arch criminal as a great martyr to the cause of Christ. His name was Monsignor Josef Tiso, who succeeded in destroying Czechoslovakia for Hitler. Last April the Rev. Father Tiso was executed by the Czech government "for crimes against the state."

Monsignor Tiso, a dignitary of the church, has been well known for several years. But on April 15 (the day he was sentenced) the Associated Press reported: "Dr. Tiso . . . was charged with 111 counts in a 213-page indictment. Any one of them could have brought the death penalty." This information was published in Washington newspapers. It is difficult to understand, therefore, why Senator Lucas did not know about him. His criminal record can be verified at our Library of Congress.

Joseph Davies in his book, Mission to Moscow, listed Tiso with the Quislings. Current Biography 1943 went further and called him a "full-fledged high-ranking traitor" who became openly Hitler's tool. Conscientious priests, who spoke against his Fascist policy, were executed. And his persecution of fellow Catholics "is rivaled only by his treatment of his Jewish countrymen." If Senator Lucas had doubted any of this he could have satisfied his curiosity by referring to the official report of the war crimes trial prepared by our Government and published in 20 volumes by the Government Printing Office.

Cooperative Bookshop

Your Memorial Day editorial on "Fascism" was the first ray of hope I had seen in a long time. In view of your fair-minded policy, which I admire greatly, it is a great disappointment that you continue to refer to the Washington Bookshop as a Communist lair. It is positively not communistic. Its idea, ideal and principle is the essence of what we are told is the American way of life. It is described in the following quotation from a recent report to the membership:

". . . The Bookshop has been a potent factor in the intellectual and cultural life of our city. We have made books, music and art work available at liberal savings to our membership. We have sponsored forums and lectures on current topics, based upon books appealing to the intellectual and cultural interests of our members. People expressed themselves freely at these forums and lectures—not all holding the same views, but all finding through these discussions a medium of expression and a place to hear different views."

If our democracy is worth 2 cents it can stand up under intelligent discussion of the various factors of living today. Blindly condemning the Bookshop as communistic is completely unfair. It is the very stuff of which fascism (despoiling democracy) is made.

"Religion in Schools"

The editorial in your issue of June 8 entitled "Religion in the Schools," was so sensible and tolerant in its summing up of the arguments against religious instruction in the schools that no further elaboration seems necessary.

On May 29 a small, unpublicized meeting was held in Fairlington elementary school to explain the religious program which is to be instituted there next fall. Of five identifiable parents present, four opposed the program. The remaining 10 or 12 people present were ministers, teachers and the religious instructors. The opposing parents were condemned by implication by one of the ministers as representing "materialistic thinking." Backers of the program admitted that there was to be no period of democratic discussion prior to its institution, but that parents who did not wish their children to attend could refuse to sign an authorizing attendance card. Contrary to the Champaign, Ill., case the Arlington program does not represent all faiths, but only Protestant.

In spite of this action, the executive committee of the Fairlington P-T A, at its next meeting, decided with no objection, to appoint a subcommittee to study the problem during the summer months and report to the full membership next fall. It is hoped that there will be a healthy, democratic discussion of this important issue before the next school term.

Congratulations on your editorial masterpiece of muddled thinking: "Religion is of the spirit; education deals with the mind. Neither can be advanced by intermingling." (Mind and spirit must be neatly separated and compartmented!)

Here, succinctly stated, is a prevalent social philosophy which is the fruit of our long and careful exclusion from our classrooms of the science of God and of man's relationship with and responsibilities to God. May it not also be the cause of our progressively deadened sense of moral values and of our present baffled helplessness in dealing with world problems? Nice going—but where are we going? "Slave Labor"

In your editorial entitled "Slave Labor" of June 6, you say: "If the rank and file of citizens will study the document (Taft-Hartley bill) carefully, they can scarcely fail to be impressed by its general fairness and moderation." On what basis of comparison is the statement made? I have honestly and sincerely studied a summary of the bill and have failed to be impressed.

In the list of unfair labor practices, I would truly like to know who is to decide whether or not union dues are excessive and on what basis is the decision to be made. Presumably a union depends on its dues for maintenance, as does any organization so established. Presumably, with insufficient funds to carry on its work, it collapses, as does any organization.

The abuses which have attended the secondary boycott undoubtedly prove that the times are slightly out of joint, but is it setting them right to obliterate completely the means whereby a group of men may lawfully and effectively denounce the unfair practices of another competing group? Is there not a way to outlaw abuse without, at the same time, nullifying a valuable benefit?

In the section permitting union shops but banning closed shops is the provision that in such States as prohibit closed and union shops, the State law takes precedence over the provision in the Taft-Hartley bill permitting union shop contracts. Is this meant merely to safeguard the much discussed "States' rights"?

The bill provides for a general counsel of the NLRB. He will have the final say as to what cases are prosecuted before the board, will be in charge of all investigations and prosecutions. His appointment will be subject to Senate confirmation. It seems to me that this last could mean either of two things: The general counsel must be either a man of the highest order, whose integrity could withstand the most formidable onslaught of a Senate investigating committee; or he will undoubtedly be the quickly elected spokesman for the strongest political faction. In any case, Federal control is implicit. What then of the arguments heard so loudly since the war against Government interference?

I note the section dealing with damage suits, stating a union's right to sue and be sued for violation of labor contracts. Does the bill, as it stands, leave much possibility for violation on the part of an employer? Conversely, is there any more possibility that a union may act to promote the welfare of its members in any degree without violating tenets of the bill?

Perhaps I strain at gnats but there is a saying that he who would build a mighty fire begins it with weak straws. Without these questions being resolved to my satisfaction, I cannot count myself among those people mandating the Congress to pass a labor law "impressive in its general fairness and moderation."

Truman On Art

If one could label President Truman's opinion of "modern art" merely an uninformed expression of mediocre taste then his letter to William Benton of the State Department would have little significance.

Obviously, the President's position gives credence, logically or not, to his most casual statements on a host of subjects, the most recent being contemporary art.

Mr. Truman's condemnation of what he vaguely calls "the modern school" is devastating for two reasons.

First, he has managed, with the help of equally dubious art critics in Congress, to scuttle the State Department's international art program. The later, incidentally, up to the time of its unhappy end, had given the United States a new and unexpected cultural stature in the eyes of our more sophisticated neighbors in Europe and Latin America.

Second, and even more insidious than the undermining of part of our cultural program, is the unfortunate parallel between the Administration's "official opinion" on art and Germany's prewar purge of all art which did not echo the mediocrity of the Nazi mind.

Hitler called it degenerate. Our President calls it "the vaporings of half-baked lazy people."

To progressive, independent thinking American artists the President's action must surely seem a thoughtless violation of our much prized freedom of expression.

"One World" For A Day

By Malvina Lindsay

Children Lead Them

THOUGH nations argue and quarrel endlessly over treaties, tariffs, sovereignty, ideology, there is now a chance they will get together, for a day at least, on one subject—hungry children.

It all started because Aaka Ording, Norwegian delegate to the United Nations, had an idea while sitting in at the customary haggling of an international conference. This conference was on food—or rather its lack—a subject Mr. Ording had heard much about in six UNRRA sessions and three post-UNRRA meetings.

Listening to the inevitable hair-splitting over words and methods, the Norwegian lawyer thought to himself, "Surely there's a way to feed the hungry children of the world without further argument." He remembered how, in Norway, after the liberation, southern Norwegians, who had suffered less than those in the north, volunteered one day's pay, work, or produce to help their fellow countrymen get on their feet. Why, he thought, could not the peoples of the world do likewise to hasten aid to the most helpless of war's sufferers, children?

Mr. Ording took his idea to the United Nations General Assembly. It was referred to the Economic and Social Council, where it was approved. Secretary-General Trygve Lie asked him to direct the project, known as the United Nations Appeal for Children.

NOW AS plans go forward for a global collection next fall of one day's pay or its equivalent from all people of the world, to supplement the International Children's Emergency Fund, the undertaking is developing into far more than a relief move. It promises to become an historic experiment in world citizenship.

For one day all the peoples of the United Nations (and perhaps from the 18 nonmember nations, which have been asked to join) will be united in one humanitarian effort. For one day their world citizenship will be concrete and real to them. For one day children, who in fiction's favorite tradition unite warring parents, will unwittingly play the role of peacemakers in international drama.

This to Mr. Ording is the most important phase of the project. Eager as he is to see the 60 million hungry and undernourished children in Europe and Asia fed, he is even more interested in seeing this done in a self-respecting way in which all peoples share responsibility.

This is not to be a handout from a rich uncle to shabby relatives. It is not to be an American bowl of soup. Peoples in the countries receiving aid will share in the giving. They will not be able to give as much as the others, but balanced against that will be their credits of war days, what they gave in lives and in suffering.

SUCH universal giving is expected to help restore self-confidence and morale to many "have-not" peoples who have so long been on the receiving end they have drifted toward mendicant attitudes. It will stimulate a general spirit of mutual self-help as opposed to charity.

The United Nations Secretariat sees the move as one enabling all men and women of its member nations to express their faith in the words of the organization's charter that men can "live together in peace with one another as good neighbors."

Since this is a voluntary, nongovernmental effort, it will be the first direct gesture from the people of the world to the United Nations organization. In each country national committees in charge of the collection will be representative of all types of citizens.

Probably the United Nations Appeal for Children will allocate the greater part of its collection to the International Children's Emergency Fund, which is primarily a distributing agency, also sponsored by the United Nations. The food provided will go to children who need it, regardless of their race, or nationality, or their parents' religion or politics.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Forces Of Deflation

Lippmann

IN THE argument about prices, which has been cooked up to celebrate the end of the legislative session and the opening of the presidential campaign, both Mr. Truman and Mr. Taft took the same main point for granted. They assumed that a year hence the country's chief interest will be in high prices, and who caused them. Mr. Truman would of course like to blame them on Mr. Taft and Mr. Taft would like to blame them on Mr. Truman.

But it would be interesting to know what they will be saying next year if the main point as the election comes along is no longer high prices and the high cost of living but falling prices, unsold surpluses and unemployment. This is not an idle question. For externally and internally there are powerful deflationary forces in operation which are of great significance to all who must look ahead and prepare for the future.

IT IS well known that Stalin, witness his interview with Mr. Stassen, is extraordinarily interested in the chances of an American deflationary slump. But there are others beside Stalin. Just recently the Economist of London, which is very close indeed to the mainsprings of British governmental and private finance, was discussing the problem which Mr. Acheson broached in his Mississippi speech and Mr. Marshall at Harvard—the problem of the balance of payments, and the impending shortage of dollars as the American credit is exhausted.

"The balancing of the British accounts" it said, "will some day be powerfully assisted by a turn in the world conjuncture. It has become a truism to say that the whole world is now a seller's market; but it is perhaps not fully realized how much this affects the British economy. There is every reason to expect before long a fall in the world prices of primary products—especially of foodstuffs, but also of many raw materials—that will be second in sharpness only to those of 1921 and 1931. Not only will Britain gain in relative prices but there will also be a great gain in the availability of supplies. This will not make low costs and high quality of British export goods, or aggressive salesmanship in disposing of them, any less necessary. But it will bring the solution of the problem of the balance of payments well within the range of possibility."

IN SAYING that "there is every reason to expect before long a fall in the world prices of primary products," the Economist does not say that it expects this fall of prices next year. In fact it implies that the big readjustment may not come for two or three years. The British crisis, it says, "will be surmounted before the 1950s are far advanced."

Nevertheless by next year, at the present rate of expenditure, the exhaustion of Britain's capacity to pay in dollars will be near at hand. The same will be true of almost all our customers. For the outer world as a whole is now incurring a deficit of one billion dollars a month. It is covering that deficit with loans, credits, and gifts from this country and it is using up its remaining gold and dollar balances at the rate of nearly five billions a year. Quite clearly, this cannot go on much beyond next year unless we supply new funds to keep it going. If we do not, our exports will be cut at least in half. This will be a powerful deflationary event. It would certainly cause not only untold misery in Europe but would go a long way towards causing that fall in the world prices of primary products which the Economist is predicting.

THERE ARE also powerful deflationary forces in operation here at home which, despite offsetting forces such as the expansion of real estate mortgages and personal loans and consumer credit, are likely in the end to prevail. Much of the discussion of the Federal budget obscures the magnitude of the deflationary impact of the Government because for technical accounting reasons the budget figures of expenditures, receipts, and surplus do not tell the significant story.

As the monthly letter of the National City Bank of New York says: "the Government's net drain on spending power"—its deflationary influence on the national economy—"has been a good deal heavier than is indicated by the amount of the budget surplus. This comes about, first, because cash income is regularly much greater than 'net receipts' under the budget, and, secondly, because actual cash outgo is frequently less than total budget expenditures." Thus in the first four months of this year (1947) the Government cash income exceeded its cash outgo by 4.4 billions, which is at the rate of 13 billions a year.

When we remember that during the war the Government inflated spending power by 35 to 50 billions each year, and that now it is deflating spending power at the rate of 13 billions, there can be little doubt that the main influence is deflationary, and that sooner or later we shall see its effects.

THESE THINGS are all very complicated but, as we look ahead to next winter it will be useful to bear these two great facts in mind. We have an export surplus of a billion dollars a month, which will come very near to being cut off entirely within a year unless new funds are provided. And we have in our Government finance a net drain on spending power of another billion dollars a month. If you add the two together, assuming that Congress refused to support Secretary Marshall's proposals, we shall be operating our economy with a deflation of about 25 billions a year acting upon prices, profits, and employment.

That is a lot of deflation, quite enough to produce conditions altogether different from those which Mr. Truman and Mr. Taft have been talking about.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

War And Peace

IN STRIKING a political balance sheet on the net result of Henry Wallace's recent barnstorming tour, most observers have attributed to two causes the crowds that turned out to pay money to hear him. One was curiosity, and the other the organizing zeal of the fellow-traveling left.

Childs

This leaves out a third element which may be just as important as the other two. Wallace has identified himself with a deep longing for peace that is worldwide.

As a farmer in Minnesota put it: "Well, he seems to want peace, and that fellow in the White House talks like he wants war."

The age-old confusion between desire and reality is here illustrated in all its tragic meaning. The blanket of Wallace's hazy idealism conveniently obscures the facts, and earnest, well-intentioned people mistake the rosy glow of hope for a promise of what will happen day after tomorrow.

The appeal is particularly strong for church groups. It touches Progressives and Farmer-Laborites in the Middle West who were part of the strong current of pacifism stirred by revelations of the "merchants of death" variety.

History may never repeat itself in exactly the same pattern. But it does seem sometimes as though the great motifs constantly recur. Henry Wallace had a counterpart in Great Britain in the 30's.

GEORGE LANSBURY was one of the veterans of the British Labor Party. He believed in peace. He believed in peace with an honest passionate sincerity that not even his enemies could mistake. In the House of Commons, on every possible platform, Lansbury preached peace.

He told his audience he was sure that, if only he could go and talk with Hitler, he could make him understand that war was fatally and finally and ruinously destructive. He could convince Hitler, he said, that neither the British nor the Germans wanted war and that somehow they must work out their problems peacefully.

Well, in April of 1937, Lansbury went to see Hitler in Berlin. It was an incredible interview—sweet, white-haired, saint-like Lansbury sitting down with the prince of evil to talk about peace. In a statement that same day, Lansbury said he had had a most satisfactory talk with Hitler about the need for a peace conference of the great powers.

"What I wanted to get from Herr Hitler, I got," Lansbury said. "Germany is willing to go with a good heart into such a conference."

We know now, from the secret Nazi archives, how long before that date Hitler and his gang had been plotting world conquest. we could have known from Mein Kampf if we had had the sense to read Hitler's autobiography with the awareness that he meant every word of it.

BUT, OF COURSE, it was useful to Hitler to tell Lansbury that he wanted a peace conference. On the day of that interview, the Goebbels propaganda machine issued a statement saying Germany would welcome a peace conference if only President Roosevelt would call one. A year later, Hitler got his peace conference—at Munich, with Chamberlain and his pathetic umbrella.

In the light of what has happened, we can see the deep disservice that Lansbury did. Students at Oxford were signing the pacifist oath never to fight again in any war—an oath they were soon to ignore. No wonder the Nazis got the idea they could ignore Great Britain in their plans for conquest. Winston Churchill was then a lone voice crying out against the peril of Nazism and rebuking Lansbury for "bominating in a vacuum."

The influence of men like Lansbury helped to blind the British Labor Party to the meaning of the Spanish civil war. They simply shut their eyes and let the Spanish tragedy go on to its conclusion while Italy and Germany rehearsed their strategy of conquest.

The lesson of the 30's is that peace at any price means finally war at any cost. It is not a choice between Wallace's brand of idealism and war. The alternative is a positive, far-seeing policy that will make use of America's great economic and technological strength to build a stable world.

The tragedy of the moment is the negative presentation of our aid program. It has made it too easy for Wallace to pose as the only champion of peace.

Dimitrov's Plan

By Barnet Nover

Red Federation In Mid-Europe?

IN AN INTERVIEW wih a correspondent of World Report, Georgi Dimitrov, the Communist Premier of Bulgaria, has revealed one aspect of the counteroffensive which Russia is now waging against the Truman Doctrine. To thwart the United States he would create a federation of Communist states from the Baltic to the Aegean with Greece included just as soon as she is made to see the light.

NOVER

We can assume that everything Dimitrov said in that interview had Russia's full approval and was probably inspired by Moscow. Dimitrov has spent nearly all his adult life serving the Kremlin. He has done so loyally. He has never once deviated from the strict party line.

In his case, in fact, ideological affinities with Soviet Russia are reinforced by sentiments of gratitude and an acute awareness, as well, of which side his bread is buttered on.

After the Reichstag fire trial in 1934, when he made a fool of Goering, winning international acclaim thereby, Dimitrov was saved from death at the hands of the Nazis by the personal intervention of Stalin.

At Stalin's behest, the Soviet government made Dimitrov a Russian citizen and got him out of Germany. It was also Stalin who was responsible for the elevation of Dimitrov to the post of secretary-general of the Third Internationale and, more recently, Premier of Bulgaria.

DIMITROV hints that before very long a federation of Bulgaria and Yugoslavia is to come into being, the nucleus of a larger grouping which he hopes will ultimately include eight or more nations.

A Bulgar-Yugoslav federation has long been talked about. The idea long antedates Dimitrov, having been current as far back as the 1870s. Rumors of its imminent consummation have been current for months. At the Paris peace conference, one widely prevalent theory was that such a federation would come into being just as soon as the peace treaties were ratified. That hour is approaching.

A BULGAR-Yugoslav federation alone would hardly mean any real strengthening of Russia's position in the Balkans. Nor would it help solve any of the serious economic problems with which those two Soviet satellites are confronted at this time.

A federation of Communist states that would include Poland, Czechoslovakia, Albania, Romania and Hungary as well as Bulgaria and Yugoslavia would be something else again. It would mean the creation of a new power, one occupying a vital area populated by more than 100,000,000 people.

However, it is much easier for Dimitrov to proclaim such an ambitious plan than for Russia to carry it out. In the case of Poland and Czechoslovakia, their political links with Russia are matched by their economic ties with the West.

Such a plan may be "music of the future" to Dimitrov. It has the appearance of a pipe dream to those who view the situation realistically.

FAR MORE important than whether those seven or eight states in Dimitrov's contemplated Mitteleuropa actually form the federation he envisages is the present circumstance that most of them are already Communist-dominated, the latest to fall into that category being Hungary.

INDEED, even should the Dimitrov plan become a reality, a very long-range possibility, indeed, we can take it for granted that Russia's expansionist ambitions would not stop at the western frontier of the federation.

During the war there were "realists" who insisted that the hope of peace lay in a deliberate division of Europe into spheres of influence with Great Britain and the United States agreeing to Russian predominance in eastern Europe and the Balkans, and Russia agreeing to a British sphere in Greece and Italy.

Such a division did, in effect, come into being. Russia has never shown any disposition to keep within her sphere. She has not done so because no sooner has a Russian buffer state been set up than she has found it necessary to create a new buffer to protect the old one.

Having succeeded in setting up a Communist-dominated government in Hungary, for instance, she is now engaged in trying to do exactly the same thing in Austria. The very uncertainty of the Russian position in eastern and central Europe and the Balkans, despite its seeming strength, makes it necessary for her to pursue a dynamic course.

Unless Russia is stopped in her tracks she will overrun all Europe. If she is stopped her dominion of power will inevitably tend to dissolve. The mock federation she now proposes through the mouth of Georgi Dimitrov is no answer to her problem or Europe's problem. The only answer to the latter lies in a continental federation of truly free states.

Crop Disaster Held Likely In Canada

Ottawa, June 11 (AP)—One of the worst springs in history has brought prospects "of a crop disaster for eastern Canada," particularly Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick, H. H. Hannan, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said today.

Hannan made the statement in his opening remarks to a conference called by the C. F. A. ot study the seriousness of the feed and grain situation as it affects both eastern and western Canada.

By The Associated Press

The Agriculture Department said yesterday heavy rainfalls over the Northern Midwest the past week caused some crop damage and delayed completion of corn planting.

Dry weather during the next two to three weeks, however, would permit substantial plantings in the present wet areas.

Corn planting is approaching the "critical date" in the Great Lake region and the northern part of the Ohio Valley, the department said. Very little corn has been planted in southern Michigan while northern Ohio and Indiana report only about one fourth of the intended acreage in. Conditions were more favorable in southern Ohio and south of the Ohio River.

In Illinois, where corn planting is about 60 per cent complete, some fields require reworking because of frequent rains.

Planting is nearing completion in Ohio and stands are about normal except in wet spots. Most sections of the Southern Plains have average to good stands.

The department said corn is recovering in good shape from the recent unusual freeze.

Bruce Davis Found Guilty In Woman's Hammer Murder

is serving a 20-year sentence in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta. He was convicted by an Army court martial of unlawful entry and rape.

George Cox, 72-year-old deputy sheriff, testified he saw Davis "with an attractive woman" in a bus station at Kingsport late the night of November 29. Later, he said, he saw her picture in the paper in connection with the Maryland slaying.

Put Her on Atlanta Bus

Davis said he put Mrs. McAllister on a bus for Atlanta. They hadn't made up their minds about going on to Florida. He wanted to visit with his relatives. She wanted to see her husband. She didn't like to drive alone on long trips. She was to call him back at his brother's house and maybe they'd go on to Florida.

"She left," Davis testified. "I never saw her again."

Into the evidence went several postal cards Davis wrote to Mrs. McAllister's relatives and his own brother in Baltimore the first week in December. They said he and Florence were in Tennessee and probably would go on to Florida.

The State contended his story and the postals were all a carefully contrived hoax.

Davis, twice married and the father of two children, said he started going with Florence McAllister while he was a seaman at the Bainbridge, Md., Naval Training Station. They worked together at the Engineering Research Aircraft Plant at Riverdale and were laid off October 18.

The defendant testified he had been in at least two fights over Mrs. McAllister. In one of these, late in August, he mixed it with Walter Dustin, who had been keeping company with her, and Dustin's friend, Edgar Allan Poe.

That, he explained, is how there happened to be "O" type blood stains inside the coat in which he was arrested at Memphis, Tenn., December 19. Previous testimony had shown Davis had "A" type blood while both Mrs. McAllister and Poe had "O" type.

Asked to explain why he had taken iodine after being arrested at Memphis, David said:

"I guess I was crazy. I was being accused of this. There were big headlines. They said I was armed and dangerous. I didn't even have a pocket knife on me. I was so worked up I didn't know what I was doing."

The steaming Washington County courtroom was jammed with sweating spectators. All but the three judges and opposing counsel were in shirt sleeves.

Heat Fells Juror, Substitute Steps In

Hagerstown, Md., June 11 (AP). Juror Paul Sprecher of Hagerstown, collapsed from heat prostration today during the Bruce Davis trial.

Maxwell Yingling, "thirteenth" juror, who had heard the testimony so he'd be ready to serve in just such an emergency, took Sprecher's place in the box and the case continued almost without interruption.

All but judges and the attorneys shed their coats in the sweltering courtroom.

Reds Treat Prisoners As Slaves, Says Owens

By The Associated Press

Representative Owens urged in the House yesterday an immediate State Department investigation of Russia's handling of war prisoners.

Some prisoners are being treated as slaves in Europe, Owens said.

Russia refuses this country any information regarding prisoners of war, and even has taken "men we've released and put them in concentration camps under the hardest conditions," Owens continued.

Tuck Action Raises Pay Of Teachers

Richmond, Va., June 11 (AP).—Improved salaries for Virginia public school teachers during the 1947-48 term were in prospect today as a result of Governor Tuck's action in releasing a conditional State fund of one million dollars which was tacked on to the $6,500,000 school appropriation bill by the General Assembly last January.

In a memorandum made public yesterday, the Governor said revenues in the general fund now are "substantially in excess of estimates"—in which "happy situation I will release the conditional appropriation."

The fund actually will not be available until July 1, the start of the next fiscal year, but the Governor said he was making the announcement of its release now so that local school boards can negotiate teacher contracts accordingly. Localities are required to put up 30 cents for every additional dollar of State money.

The additional sums made available will mean about $68 per year more pay for each of the State's 19,000 teachers. The actual increase will amount to more money in some areas, however, since many counties are appropriating more than the minimum 30 per cent requirement.

The figures below represent an approximation of how much counties and cities will receive of the one million dollars. The first figure given is the amount of State funds going to the locality; the second figure is a 30 per cent matching sum to be put up by the locality.

Jurisdictions included are:

Arlington, $20,936, $6280; Pittsylvania, $24,257, $7277; Prince William, $6176, $1833; Warren, $4881, $1464; Westmoreland, $4153, $1246; Alexandria, $12,934, $3880; Charlottesville, $6053, $1816; Fredericksburg, $3241, $972; Harrisonburg, $2693, $808; Lynchburg, $13,746, $4124; Martinsville, $3676, $1163; Staunton, $3222, $967; Williamsburg, $971, $291, and Winchester, $3925, $1178.

Movie Star Laurence Olivier Knighted by King George

London, June 11 (AP).—Stage and screen star Laurence Olivier, passed over in King George's honors list the last few years, was knighted today in the King's birthday honors list.

Sir Laurence was widely reported to have been omitted from the previous honors because he has been divorced.

Olivier, now 40, married Actress Vivien Leigh in 1940 after he was divorced by Jill Esmond, also an actress. Miss Leigh now will be officially known as Lady Olivier.

Other newly-created knights include Dr. Malcolm Sargent, one of England's best known orchestral conductors; Russel Flint, the artist, and Dr. Alexander McCall, the physician who has accompanied Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin on his foreign missions.

King George awarded the Imperial Order of the Crown of India to his two daughters, Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret—presumably the last such awards that will be made in view of India's approaching dominion status.

Smith Asks State Run FEPC

By The Associated Press

A suggestion by Senator Smith (R., N. J.) that enforcement of fair employment practices be left to the individual States was promised consideration yesterday before a Senate Labor Subcommittee.

Senators Ives (R., N. Y.) and Chavez (D., N. M.) told Smith that "that might be the way" to obtain a foothold for a Federal antidiscrimination measure which has aroused determined opposition by Southern Senators. Ives, Chavez, Smith and Senator Murray (D., Mont) are sponsors of the legislation.

Southerners, who have filibustered similar bills to death in the past, are reported ready to tie up the Senate by talking at length if an attempt is made to bring up the bill.

Senator Ellender (D., La.), a committee member, said the idea of letting each State determine whether it wants to put enforcement teeth into an FEPC law appeals to him "more so than compulsion."

"With me it's a question of education," Ellender said. "Things are improving all over the country today. If the South is given a chance it is going ahead, but it won't do it by compulsion."

Smith said he thinks it might be well for Congress to pass a bill establishing as a national principle that there should be no discrimination against workers because of race, color or creed, and leave it to the States "to say whether you, by your own legislation, want to put into effect the Federal sanctions."

"I believe you can get support for legislation as a national policy all through this country provided that no attempt is made by Federal law to put the screws on the States to enforce it," Smith continued.

Ives and Chavez said they can see where such a proposal might hasten State acceptance of the fair employment principle in many areas and for that reason believed it deserved consideration by the committee.

Madison's Top Acting In 'Honeymoon' Is When He Portrays a Sapling

By Richard L. Coe

EVEN THE YOUNGER SET which engulfed us yesterday at Keith's noticed that "Honeymoon," costarring Shirley Temple and Guy Madison, wasn't a very good picture.

"Well," said the junior miss behind us as the picture ended "it's a lousy picture but I thought it was perfectly lovely."

Franchot Tone

This rather baffling critique is a sturdy rock to which your hapless reviewer gratefully clings. Until the talkative unknown had spoken her nutshell sentence we'd been quite adrift.

For "Honeymoon" is certainly one of the worst pictures of the year. The script and the people are impossibly chintzy and the situations would make a normal 2-year-old yawn.

The much-photographed Madison without a doubt is the least competent performer to reach stardom since Neolithic man. He speaks with the tones of a boy whose voice is changing and acts the way you feel in a nightmare.

Though Shirley doesn't look a minute older than she was in "Little Miss Marker," she is a remarkably cute teen-ager. Her performance suggests a Shakespearean star holding her nose. Despite her absurd role, Shirley is mighty appealing, sings prettily if that is her voice, and deserves far better than "Honeymoon" and Master Madison. She was loaned to RKO-Radio for this trial by David O. Selznick, for whom by now there must be reserved a cozy niche in purgatory.

Wading through "Honeymoon" is Franchot Tone, working in a positive frenzy to keep something afloat. We don't ever recall seeing Franchot flap about so violently. For his strenuous workout he's been rewarded with two milky half-moons smack under each eye.

"HONEYMOON." RKO-Radio release produced by Robert Sparks. Screenplay by Michael Kanin, based on a story by Vicki Baum. Directed by William Keighley. At RKO-Keith's Theater.

Guy Plays a Tree

The plot, for which Vicki Baum was originally responsible, concerns a girl from the States who goes to Mexico City to marry an Army corporal who's been on duty in the Canal Zone. They miss meeting at the station and the lass calls on the American vice consul to help her find the corporal.

This, natch, makes all Mexico City assume the consular officer is mad for Shirley and rouses the jealousy of Mexican fiancee Lina Romay. And Lina's papa is most upset at the treatment daughter's receiving. Franchot thinks he's all washed up with Lina. Shirley thinks Franchot is her dream man. Guy just broods.

Everything but the custard-pie situation is tossed in to keep Franchot and Shirley working, an unstandable device in forcing Guy off the screen and making his the face on the cutting room floor. Ultimately Madison is disguised as a tree, which raises the acting level of the picture considerably.

(This bit of casting Guy as a tree—it is a very little tree, actually a rather ambitious bush—will of course strike the more intellectual critics as a stunning touch of symbolism for Guy's performance throughout suggests just this wooden triumph.)

But as our wise neighbor was remarking, it is lovely and ends happily with true love in the ascendant. Yesterday's first house was provoked into giggles, squeals and oooohs, though we don't for a minute think anyone was fooled.

As Shirley says upteen times throughout the picture, "Jeepers!"

'Male Animal' Opens Run at Olney Theater

James Thurber's and Elliott Nugent's comedy, "The Male Animal" is the second play of the Olney Theater's summer season. Working without a star this week, the Olney players come through with good work in the leads of the popular comedy.

The evening is a pleasant one, though it is by no means up to the splendid start made by Haila Stoddard's amusing "Dream Girl." For all our reservations, the fact remains that the Olney is the best summer theater-going this city has had in a good many years. This in itself is some recommendation for the travelling playgoers.

"The Male Animal," you may remember, is mostly concerned with whether or not an English professor in a Midwestern university should or should not read a letter to his class written by Bartolomeo Vanzetti. It also concerns the professor's voyage into the logic of proving to his wife he's a more desirable animal than a former football hero visiting town for the annual homecoming game.

Director Charles S. Dubin might have done some cutting here and there to make his audience less aware of the play's age. He has inserted several timely cracks but they don't gibe with the rest of the play. True, there is a red scare on now, but one keeps feeling that the Sacco-Vanzetti angle is pretty cold now, even in the most reactionary cloisters.

Company's Leads Score

Nancy Holland is fine as the professor's wife, a good assured performance. Joseph Hardy, as the former football hero, has a lot of vigorous fun with the part. These two, the resident company's stars, are good, capable players and you'll enjoy watching them.

Richard Briggs is the baffled prof. He makes him reasonably acceptable in the whimsical vein of all Thurber's New York heroes. Cy Farkas has made up his head (there's no other way to put it!) in an unnerving sort of way to play the bald-headed reactionary of the university's trustees. By now we trust Farkas is going easy on the makeup and just playing the guy. James Karen is o. k. as the campus editor. Ruth White's old lady is fine.

Several of the lesser members of the cast are not so good and the performance as a whole is a bit choppy. But as we've said, Olney's a nice spot to visit and if you're not too critical, you'll have a pleasant little evening. R. L. C.

The Heat's On Another Nazi Industrialist, Mr. W.

New York.—Westrick, the Nazi industrialist, whose activities here were exposed by M. Jay Racusin of the Herald Tribune—an exposure which was followed by the resignation of Tex Reber as head of Texas Oil and the return of Westrick to Germany—soon will be prosecuted in Germany. Racusin has been asked to turn over some of the evidence which will be used against Westrick . . . Sonya Horowitz, daughter of Vladimir Horowitz, has given up her piano lessons . . . The mobsters involved in the recent revelations about the Brooklyn Eagle stick-up will spill bigger stories, involving homicides. It's another Murder, Inc.

Bing Crosby

It took an hour and a half for Bing Crosby and Fred Waring's men to record the "Wiffenpoof Song" for Decca last week. Crosby glanced at his watch, noticed how near it was to game-time between his Pirates and the Dodgers—and then made the other side of the recording, "Kentucky Babe," in eight minutes flat . . . "Project X," the forthcoming magazine, will take an editorial recess for the summer.

Mary Boland, now appearing here in "Open House," once was asked to pose for a photo with John Barrymore. She protested: "I'll be ruined." Barrymore told her: "Only in some circles. In others, you'll be made" . . . The Marymount School in Los Angeles, which never gave recognition to the stage or screen, made its first award last week to a graduate for "outstanding achievement in the field of dramatic arts." The winner was Patricia Hitchcock, daughter of Alfred Hitchcock. Pat is the young lady who, after making her stage debut to rave notices, flew back to school, but couldn't tell her classmates about her Broadway triumph—because her class immediately was ordered into a three-day retreat of silence and contemplation.

When Conn McCreary, the jockey, entered Toots Shor's, Lew Parker said: "There goes a fugitive from a charm bracelet" . . . Frank Loesser is recording some of his own songs for MGM. This is the songwriter's first attempt at professional singing . . . Oscar Levant, who left for Hollywood recently, traveled by train. He rarely flies now—ever since a plane trip he once made with Irving Berlin. During the flight Levant expressed anxiety, showed Berlin the palm of his hand, and said: "Look, the life-line's broken." Berlin replied: "Don't worry. Look at my hand. My life-line's unbroken.

Olivier to Play Three Roles In Hamlet and Also a Blonde

Hollywood.—The male cry at this time is: "To bleach or not to bleach." Now it's Laurence Olivier who's become blond for "Hamlet." In the film, he'll play not only the title role but also the ghost of his father and the king in the play within the play. Our last blond Hamlet was the late Leslie Howard . . . J. Arthur Rank plans to bring the life of Dame Nellie Melba, the famous opera star who died in 1931, to the screen. The picture will be done in Technicolor in England . . . The Don Ameches are moving into their new Bel Air home, which they bought recently from Arline Judge. Mrs. Ameche told me that for the last five years they've had 12 kids in their family. Besides their own six, four nieces and their nurse's two little sons have been living with them. The new home, however, will accommodate only their own children. Mrs. Ameche, who's been chief cook and bottle washer all these years, said, "The minute we're settled, Don and I will have a second honeymoon." I asked, "Where?" "Why," she replied, "in our new house, of course" . . . Alfred Drake of "Oklahoma" fame, will play a straight dramatic role in "Promised Valley" at the Utah centennial celebration in Salt Lake City.

Douglas Fairbanks, jr.

Doug Buys "The O'Flynn"

Doug Fairbanks, jr. has bought "The O'Flynn"—no relation of Errol—as a starring vehicle for himself. It's the story of a soldier of fortune in the Napoleonic era. Doug won't get around to screening it before next year . . . Jennifer Jones is hiding out at the Griswold Country Club in New London, Conn., while having her portrait painted by Robert Brackman. Betty Bacall had hers done by Diego Rivera while in Mexico with the "Treasure of the Sierra Madre" company, which stars husband Humphrey Bogart . . . The rumor that David Selznick is reissuing "Gone With the Wind" for some quick cash is untrue. "G. W. T. W." is owned lock, stock, and barrel by Metro, and that studio is reissuing it.

Mexican Motorcycle Show

When Larry Parks was in Mexico City, the cops there learned that he was a nut on motorcycles; so eight of them put on a riding show for him in the streets. "It was mighty nice," said Larry, "but it scared the daylights out of me." . . . I asked Tyrone Power about the report that he was to give Annabella $75,000 annually for the next ten years as part of their divorce settlement. He said, "I don't know how she'd get it. I don't make that kind of money." . . . Dan Harvey, who's been on tour with the Mae West show, "Come on Up," will play a detective in "Big Town Scandal." Hillary Brooke has the part of a newspaper girl in the same film.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

'Whitewashing' Talk Stirs Clark's Anger

By Drew Pearson

Attorney General Tom Clark was listening to a barrage of criticism from Republican Senators during the hearing on the Kansas City vote scandals—particularly criticism from the junior GOP Senator from Missouri, James Kem. Specifically, Kem accused the Attorney General of whitewashing Democrats.

"Whitewashing! snapped Clark. "Was it whitewashing when I prosecuted the Democratic Congressman from Massachusetts, Mayor Curley, and convicted him?

"And was it whitewashing when I prosecuted Congressman Mky of Kentucky, another Democrat?" continued Clark. "And was it whitewashing when I prosecuted an assistant to President Roosevelt for income tax evasion? Is that what you call whitewashing Democrats?"

Irish Headaches

It is sometimes said among diplomats that relations between Ireland and the United States are so salubrious that the only job of the American Minister to Ireland is to attend the Dublin Horse Show and help friends get sweepstake tickets. This, of course, is a slight exaggeration.

But the other day, delightful Mrs. George Garrett, wife of the newly appointed Minister to Ireland, was complaining to a friend about the headaches involved in becoming hostess of the American Legation in Dublin.

Mrs. Garrett

"You know," she said, "few people realize how much work I'll have in Dublin. And my biggest headache is keeping track of my friends who want tickets on the Irish Sweepstakes. I've got a list this long . . .

"Certainly, darling, I'll be glad to add your name," continued Mrs. Garrett. "I'll put you at the top of the list."

Secret Housing Squabbles

Without benefit of much publicity, congressional conferences have been taking place which affect housing for several million veterans, and the rents paid by several million others—both vets and nonvets.

Part of these talks have been held secretly inside the joint House-Senate Conference Committee, of which two veterans with opposite points of view are members. One is Senator Bill Knowland of California, who has worked for veterans' housing. The other is Senator Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin, who sides with the real estate lobby against veterans' housing. Both are Republicans.

Before the housing bill got to secret conference, however, another Senator who is not a veteran had dealt it a body blow on the Senate floor. He is affable Senator Douglass Buck of Delaware, who married a daughter of the millionaire duPonts, and who made the amazing proposal to substitute the House housing bill for the Senate bill—except for the Senate provision to raise rents 15 per cent. (The House bill contained no housing controls in favor veterans.)

Several Senators who had been closely following the housing debate immediately protested, among them Flanders of Vermont, a Republican, and Sparkman of Alabama, Democrat. They pointed out that the Senate Banking Committee had not even considered ending housing controls. Nevertheless, the Buck proposal was passed. This meant the end of housing controls in favor of veterans.

At this point, war vet Knowland of California tried to undo the work of his nonvet Republican colleagues from Delaware. He offered an amendment that housing controls be continued until December with the Office of Housing Expediter also continued.

Behind this move is the fact that at present the Housing Expediter can hold up materials for unnecessary building and allocate them to veterans' housing. About two billions of commercial construction was diverted to home construction as a result of these controls last year. Knowland wanted to continue this preference for veterans. And the Senate voted to support him.

However, when the housing bill went from the Senate floor to the secret House-Senate Conference, some strange things happened.

In the secrecy of the committee, Representative Jesse Wolcott paused significantly as he came to the Knowland amendment continuing housing controls. He turned inquiringly to Senator Buck as if to ask: "Do you really want to hold on to this?"

The duPont son-in-law did not reply. But Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin volunteered that the Republican Senators didn't want it. Knowland was not a member of the committee, so could not be present to defend his amendment. And his GOP colleague from the neighboring State of Washington, Harry Cain, did not support him.

Discussion has seesawed back and forth for some days since, with Democrats Sparkman of Alabama and Taylor of Idaho trying to put housing controls back into the bill.

Wolcott Keeps His Word

Back in February, Representative Wolcott spoke in Chicago before the National Association of Home Builders, one of the most effective of the real-estate lobbies. Said he: "I know that you feel at liberty now, as you perhaps never have before, to sit down with the members of the House and Senate Banking and Currency Committees. I know that we can be mutually helpful.

"It is my purpose to introduce legislation within the next week which will repeal, with two minor exceptions, the Veterans Emergency Housing Act of 1946 . . ."

Significantly, the Congressman added: "I know that you appreciate the seriousness of the problem, how necessary it is that we proceed cautiously."

It looks as if the Congressman from Michigan has now kept his word.

If the Taft-Hartley bill becomes law, unions won't be able to hire radio commentators any more, though the National Association of Manufacturers can. The law prohibits use of union funds for political purposes. Almost anything commentators say can be called "political".

D. C. Insurance Firm to Vote on Capital Boost

By S. Oliver Goodman

Directors of Potomac Insurance Co., whose home offices are in Washington, have called a special meeting of stockholders on June 24 to vote on a proposal to increase authorized capital from a million to two million dollars.

At the same time a vote will be taken to broaden charter provisions so that the company can write casualty as well as fire insurance.

The 116-year-old firm has no immediate plans to increase capital, but desires stockholders' approval in the event such is ever contemplated.

Potomac Insurance's statement as of December 31, 1946, showed total assets of $7,690,820 and surplus of $1,196,215 after all reserves. The company has an agency department office in Philadelphia and does an international business.

Officers include John H. Grady, president, and Daniel Mungall, vice president and Douglas R. Phillips, secretary.

At the special session stockholders also will be asked to vote on surrendering the charter privilege granted by Congress in 1837 allowing the firm to write life insurance. This privilege has not been exercised in many decades.

Thumbnail Sketch of Hoffman

Quick glance at Paul Gray Hoffman in Washington yesterday at special conference of Committee for Economic Development . . . high-browed physically, not in attitude . . . handsome and affable . . . president of Studebaker Corp. since 1935 . . . social-minded as chairmanship of CED indicates . . . once headed United China Relief . . .

Hoffman

associated with auto industry since its infancy . . . born in Chicago in 1891 . . . trustee of University of Chicago . . . headed Delta Tau Delta . . . has five sons . . . civic leader in South Bend, Ind., where he now lives . . . served as chairman of Automotive Safety Foundation.

Reid is Promoted

Promotion of Charles K. Reid to assistant general agent in Washington was announced yesterday by J. D. Marsh, general agent for Lincoln National Life Insurance Co.

Reid

Reid joined the Marsh agency June 1 after 18 months with the Veterans' Administration office of insurance. He also served 2½ years with the Air Transport Command. Prior to that, he spent nine years in life insurance field work, both as a special agent and district agent.

Film Center Changes Hands

The Film Center of Washington, Inc., has been sold by Superior Equipment and Television Corp. to the CMC Corp., it was announced yesterday. Newly elected officers of the Film Center, located in the 900 block of 12th st. nw., are John A. Morrow, president; E. E. Carter, vice president, and C. T. Chandler, secretary-treasurer.

Oldsmobile Dealers to Meet

More than 100 Oldsmobile dealers from the Washington zone will assemble in the Mayflower Hotel tomorrow for a conference with S. E. Skinner, general manager of the Oldsmobile Division, and D. E. Ralston, Oldsmobile's general sales manager.

Details of this General Motors division's product and selling plans for the immediate future will be outlined by the Lansing, Mich., executives.

W. G. McCormick, zone manager for Oldsmobile in Washington, arranged details of the meeting and announced that the Friday conference was the first to be held here in which both Skinner and Ralston were present.

Fifteen to Attend Parley

A delegation of 15 members of Washington Chapter, National Association of Cost Accountants, led by Herb Danne, newly elected president, will attend the Twenty-eighth International Cost Conference to be held in Chicago, June 15-18.

Auto Prices Compared

A new survey of the auto industry, prepared by Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane, contains a comparison of auto prices with those of 1941 that is attracting considerable interest.

The prices are described as on a factory delivered basis and are as of the end of January, 1947. The comparisons follow for the "lowest-priced 4-door sedan or equivalent":

Chrysler	$1646	$1051‡

New York Cotton

New York, June 11 (F).—Cotton futures were strong on heavy trade buying today centering in the nearby July and October deliveries. Final prices were 50s to $2.25 a bale higher.

Merchants and mills covered contracts on a large scale in an effort to liquidate their position prior to first notice day for July contracts on June 24.

Sales of textiles at rising prices also influenced favorable market sentiment despite the excellent wathr in th cotton belt. Opinion increased that a substantially large cotton crop in prospect this year will be readily absorbed in the view of the low existing stocks.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 11 (F).—Wheat declined for the fourth consecutive session on the Board of Trade today, dropping to the lowest level since late April in the wake of a Government forecast for another record breaking crop. Oats were lower with wheat but corn displayed independent strength.

An addition factor in the wheat decline was another drop in the Commodity Credit Corp. buying price, according to trade reports. The Government agency was reported offering $2.36 for first half of June shipment and $2.31 for the remainder of the month, down 2 cents from yesterday.

Wheat closed 2¼ to 3½ lower, July 2.16⅛ @2.16⅜; corn was unchanged to 1¼ higher, July 1.90⅛@1.90⅜, and oats were 1⅜ to 2½ lower, July 95⅝.

Flour trade advices said all classes of buyers were continuing shy away from the market, making only small purchases to replace exhausted reserves. Harvesting the new crop has now started in Oklahoma with the first car received today at Hennessey, Okla.

War Unthinkable, Lie Says

Winnipeg, Manitoba, June 11 (U.P.).—Trygve Lie, Secretary General of the United Nations, said tonight that the thought of another war now was "unthinkable" because the people of the world "would not even stand for another war."

He told the Winnipeg United Nations Society that "no responsible government in this world seriously belives that anything can be gained by a new war."

"The great powers are responsible for making those treaties and the negotiations which they have conducted so far make it clear that very important differences still exist."

"But we must insist that the powers shall continue to seek agreement and shall never stop seeking agreement, in the spirit of agreement, until agreement is found."

CED Asks Management Advice, Tax Reform and Funds Aid for Small Business

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Tax reform, aid in management and custom-tailored financing were urged yesterday by the Committee for Economic Development to prevent failure of many small businesses in case of a depression.

Most revolutionary of the committee's recommendation was that "capital banks" be established to provide small business with funds for expansion and development. It was suggested that such banks might make funds available by the purchase of securities, including stock, in which case the bank would share in profits.

While the committee avoided entanglement in current tax reduction debate, it said that taxes should be reduced "as rapidly as is consistent with the maintenance of high employment and production without further inflation."

Tax Report Not Ready

Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corp. and chairman of the CED, explained at a news conference that the committee regarded taxation from "the long-range view" and favored thorough tax reform. A report on taxation with recommendations will be issued in November, he said.

"There must be a complete recasting of the tax system," Hoffman declared, "not just tinkering with tax rates.

"There is reason to hope we can get congressional consideration of the tax problem on an economic and not a political basis."

Difficulties of management, the committee reported, created the "No. 1 problem" of the small businessman. It pointed out that the large firm was equipped with a staff of executives, each a specialist in his field, while the small businessman must necessarily work in all fields when the chances were he was experienced in only one.

Salesman's Case Cited

"A man who has been a successful salesman," the report said, "may decide that he can do better for himself. He may overlook the fact that shrewd buying is necessary as well as shrewd selling, or that cost accounting is needed to recognize profitable products and customers."

To overcome his deficiencies, the committee recommended pooling experience, community cooperation, special courses in business administration schools and expanded service from the Commerce Department. It called attention especially to help that could be rendered by suppliers, a method expanded upon at the news conference by Cecil D. Southard, vice president of Butler Brothers, Chicago wholesalers.

Southard said his firm applied to its retail customers the merchandising methods used by competing chain stores, setting up a "duplicate of the chain store headquarters." Thus, he said, the supplier was able to assist the retailer in buying for his market, display, sales promotion, advertising, accounting and the like.

Legislation Needed

S. Abbot Smith, president of the Thomas Strahan Co. of Chelsea, Mass., told the news conference that reform of the laws dealing with business practices was "most important." The businessman, he pointed out, should "know in advance what he can and can't do and not have to learn by trial and error."

Legislation probably would be needed before capital banks could be established, according to Dr. A. D. H. Kaplan, whose parallel study, to be published next fall, was used by the committee. Kaplan said the banks probably would be established locally by local bankers under the regulation of the Federal Reserve System. Private investors probably would be attracted to them later, he added.

In answer to a question, Kaplan distinguished between capital banks and investment trusts on the basis that with the bank "the problem is the borrower, while with the investment trust the problem is the investor."

Bankers' Reaction Varies

Hoffman said the capital bank idea had been submitted to a number of bankers, whose reaction was "not uniform." Some, he said, "would like to see them started, while some were skeptical."

The committee accepted the necessity for some Government aid to business in emergencies, but emphasized the point that the private financing system be revised to meet all, and particularly the long-term, need of small business.

An outstanding difficulty in aiding small business, Kaplan said, was small business itself. Reforms, he declared, could be achieved "only over the dead bodies of a large segment of small business." It was this resistance from individuals and organizations in the field, he said, which has made legislative assistance practically impossible in the past.

Hoffman pointed out that the committee had no means of implementing its recommendations except bringing them to public attention and supporting them with exhaustive, factual and objective study. Copies are sent on request, he explained, to Government agencies and to members of Congress.

Nats Beat Browns, Move Out of Cellar

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

BOBBY LOCKE, the South African, is shooting for bigger stakes than any American professional in the United States Open, which gets under way today at St. Louis, Mo. The pros were talking about it at the National Capital Open last week, agreeing that the Britisher could capitalize financially on a United States championship to a greater extent than any American winner.

POVICH

"He could make more money out of a United States Open title than any man who ever won it," said Spec Hammond, the PGA tournament supervisor. "He'd have the indorsement business in England sewed up. There'd be a demand for Locke clubs and other Locke golfing equipment that would make him a rich man. In this country, two dozen pros split up the business. Locke, as the United States Open champion, would have it all to himself in his country."

The United States Open title used to be worth $50,000 to the winner in honorariums, exhibition receipts and affiliation with club manufacturers, but in recent years it couldn't be translated into such ready cash. It's doubtful that Lloyd Mangrum, the defending champion, profited as much from his title as did a dozen pros who didn't win it. The Open has almost become just another tournament on the rich schedule of the pros.

IT'S SIGNIFICANT that Sammy Snead, the top attraction in golf, never won the Open title. The golfers most famous in these times are the top money winners on the tournament circuit, not the Open champion. In former years, the Open champion was always the best known golfer in the Nation. Nowadays, the man on the street must stop and think if asked to name the last Open winner.

The USGA could restore the Open to something of its former fame by raising the purse money, which is a mere $10,000, to be divided among the 30 best-finishing pros. Many an invitation tournament on the winter circuit now offers $15,000 in purse money to put the Open in the shadows. Not that the USGA couldn't afford to boost the stakes.

Last year at Cleveland the USGA raked in a $80,000 gate from the four days of the Open, and enriched its own coffers by something like $40,000 after expenses were deducted, including the cost of badges for the USGA officials who would sooner be caught dead than without a badge.

DESPITE ALL the phenomenal subpar scoring of the pros in recent years, it's interesting to note that they haven't been able to better the 281 record for Open play set 10 years ago. Ralph Guldahl racked up that figure with rounds of 71-69-72-69 at Oakland Hills in Detroit, and the Sneads, Nelsons and Hogans for all their super play have not surpassed it.

The current invasion of Locke is the first serious foreign challenge in an American Open since 1920 when the British all but monopolized the tournament with their Ted Ray the winner and Harry Vardon finishing second a stroke behind. The length of the St. Louis course has been cited as a challenge to Locke, but it is to be remembered that the 7400-yard course in the Houston Open didn't stop him. He won that one.

If Locke does win the Open, it will border on the revolutionary. He doesn't play what the Americans call target golf—shooting for the pin on every hole, even at the risk of trouble. Locke's technique is the conservative shot to the green without too much concern for where the pin is placed, and he does that in the knowledge that he's probably the best putter in the business today.

The OPEN has produced its freak victories. In 1935, Sam Parks came out of obscurity to take it all, and never won anything worth while after that. And a few years before, Johnny Goodman, an amateur who wasn't supposed to be in a class with the pros, finished on top.

Only five amateurs have won the Open, but amateur Bobby Jones won it five times. Two of those victories he scored in play-offs, and in two other years he lost the title play-offs. Jones' card of 31 on the incoming nine at Winged Foot in 1929 still stands as the best nine-hole record of the Open play. It was tied once, not by any of the better known pros, but by Henry Hanson, in 1941.

It will be debated interminably whether the hot-shot pros of this era played as good, or better golf, than Bobby Jones. Some of them outdrive his best drives and Snead, if he could putt, would probably qualify as a better golfer than Jones, but he can't. In fact, the only golfer who could possibly putt with Jones is supposed to be Locke. We shall see, in the next four days.

Rookie Gives Macks Split With Tigers

Detroit, June 11 (AP).—The explosive Philadelphia Athletics threw a 20-year-old rookie surprise at the league leading Detroit Tigers today to gain an even break in a double-header when first starter Carl Scheib pitched a seven-hit 4 to 0 victory over the Bengals in the nightcap after Detroit had taken the first game, 7 to 1.

The Tigers failed all afternoon in the clutches and left 23 men stranded on the bases, 12 of them in the second game when they advanced five men as far as third and five others to second without scoring.

Four of the seven Detroit hits in the nightcap were extra-base licks but Scheib, the youthful righthander, kept the blows well scattered and even the seven walks he issued didn't hurt him.

The A's won it with a four-run explosion off Hal White in the sixth when two costly errors were sandwiched in between Eddie Joost's single, Sam Chapman's double and Mike Guerra's single.

Ferris Fain, flashy rookie first baseman of the A's, was put out of action with a bruised thumb

'Club Battle' Over, Fast Field Primed For 72-Hole Test

St. Louis Country Club, St. Louis, June 11 (AP)—The battle of the Clubs ended fairly amicably today, with the U. S. Golf Association a clean and complacent victor over the professionals, and a field of 166 players from every section of the country prepared to tee off tomorrow in the National Open at the St. Louis Country Club.

Some of the professionals were not too happy. Thirty-nine of them, by official count, had been required by the golfing fathers either to "tone down" their illegal iron club faces or to throw them out entirely. But all of them, including Defending Champion Lloyd Mangrum, had complied with the rule one way or the other, and their bags were slotted with lily-white implements.

USGA Gets Tough

In between an occasional grumble at the "tough" attitude of the U.S.G.A., the players voiced remarkable agreement that the winner of the 72-hole medal play classic probably would be either Bobby Locke, the South African sensation, or little Ben Hogan, the former Texan who so far has been denied this greatest of American golfing prizes.

The two were cofavorites at only 4 to 1 to take the $2000 first prize. Jimmy Demaeret, winner of this year's Masters Tournament, was a solid second choice at 6 to 1. Mangrum, who won it last year at Cleveland, after a spectacular playoff against Byron Nelson and Vic Ghezzi, was next at 8 to 1. From there on the man who wished to take a flyer virtually could name his own price.

New Record Believed Certain

With similar unanimity, most of the players in the big field predicted that the next three days likely would witness the wildest scoring spree in the history of the Open. Most felt certain that the record total of 281 set by Ralph Guldahl in winning the 1937 title at Oakmont Hills, near Detroit, would be well broken.

A player who promised to have an important effect upon the championship wasn't even among the entries. Byron Nelson was just walking around and enjoying himself and there wasn't a player in the field who didn't appreciate the fact.

"You might not realize it," one of Nelson's long-time rivals said, "but that fellow for the past 10 years has been just like Bobby Jones was before him. No matter how good we might have been shooting, we never completely forgot that Byron was somewhere behind us—or in front of us."

Locke to Pass Up PGA; Leaves Tuesday

St. Louis, June 11 (INS).—Bobby Locke, South Africa's top-notch threat to the United States Open golf tournament starting in St. Louis tomorrow, said today he wold leave the States for Great Britain next Tuesday.

Locke's decision put to rest all speculation as to whether he would play in the P.G.A. tournament beginning in Detroit next Wednesday.

The 29-year-old Johannesburg, S. A., ace declared he would leave for New York directly after the National Open and emplane from there.

He declined to divulge further plans for the future, although he intends to play in the forthcoming British Open.

Touchdown Golf Play Opens Today

A field of 105 contestants will tee off in the Touchdown Club's golf tournement which will feature the fourth annual outing scheduled for the Manor Golf and Country Club today.

The golfers will open competition at 8:45 a. m. and continue into early afternoon. A softball game between the club's letter and non-letter men; horseshoe pitching, and a 40-yard foot race also are booked.

The Jankowski brothers, John and Mike, and Harry G. Pitt will be prominent among the golfers. John Jankowski won the tourney two years ago while his brother Mike of Worchester, Mass., joined him here recently.

Drawing of numbers for prizes and big dinner will round out a day long program of entertainment. Clark Griffith will draw for the prizes at 6 p. m.

L. A. Seeks Griff's Aid in Going Major

Los Angeles' arguments for a major league baseball franchise will be laid before the joint meeting of the baseball club owners in Chicago July 9.

Leonard J. Roach of the Los Angeles County board of supervisors, said yesterday that President Clark Griffith of the Washington Senators, whom he called on here, invited him to attend the big league meeting and present the case for a West Coast franchise.

Griffith, however, said that he had not promised his support to a reported plan which would bring about the franchise transfer after Representative Cecil B. King (D., Calif.) said Griff would support the plan.

"I merely told King that I thought Los Angeles was a big league town and was entitled to be a big league ball club," Griffith said.

Griffith also emphasized that a switch of a major league franchise to the west coast could not be worked out "unless all of the clubs traveled by air."

Asked whether he would favor the Senators flying to Los Angeles to play, he replied:

"No, I woudn't. In fact I've forbidden them to travel by air."

Meanwhile, the Columbus (Ohio) Dispatch reported that a syndicate headed by Postmaster General Hannegan is completing a deal for the purchase of the St. Louis Cardinals from the club's present owner, Sam Breadon.

"If the Hannegan syndicate is successful," the Dispatch said, "baseball circles will immediately speculate on the possibility of the Cardinals moving to the West Coast." (In Washington, Hannegan said: "There is nothing to the report.")

Giant Homers Not Enough, Bucs Win, 8-7

New York, June 11 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates finally halted the four-game winning streak of the New York Giants today but not before the National League's front runners staged another of their last ditch finishes that pulled them to within one run of Pittsburgh's 8-7 margin of victory.

Trailing, 8-4 going into the seventh inning, the Giants scored twice on a walk, Buddy Kerr's double and Pinch-hitter Lloyd Gearhart's single to move to within two runs of a deadlock.

Willard Marshall led off the ninth by clubbing his second homer of the game and his eleventh of the year and the 13,272 fans envisioned another thrilling comeback victory.

However, Kirby Higbe, who relieved Starter Fritz Ostermueller in the seventh, knuckled down and retired the side.

The Pirates hopped on Starter Larry Jansen for two runs in the first and after Johnny Mize boomed his sixteenth homer with two on in the Giant half, the Pirates drove Jansen to cover with another two-run blast in the second.

New York added another run in the fourth on Marshall's first homer of the game and the Pirates completed their scoring by counting twice in both the fifth and sixth inning.

Didrikson Choice To Become First American to Win

Gullane, Scotland, June 11 (AP). Mrs. Babe Didrikson Zaharias drove and putted her way into the finals of the British Women's Amateur Golf Championship today and became a prime favorite to win the title for the United States for the first time tomorrow.

Mrs. Zaharias first conquered little Frances "Bunty" Stephens, 3 and 2 and then routed Jean Donald, the Scottish champion, 7 and 5. Miss Donald had been touted as State lass to keep the championship at home again this year. 2 and then routed Jean Donald, the Scottish champion, 7 and 5. Miss Donald had been touted as the lass to keep the championship at home again this year.

Against the tall, free-striding Babe in tomorrow's 36-hole final will go Jacqueline Gordon of London, a golfing "unknown" who spent five war years as an ATS sergeant serving with American airmen in the Midlands.

Former British Champ Beaten

The tall, 27-year-old Miss Gordon beat the 1937 British Women's champion, Mrs. Jessie Valentine, 3 and 2, to reach the final round after eliminating Mrs. M. K. MacKean, 4 and 3, this morning.

In the other quarter-final matches, Miss Donald defeated Joan Pemberton, 5 and 4, and Mrs. Valentine beat Mrs. A. M. Holm, 1 up.

This is the Babe's first try at the British title, which never has gone to America, after winning 10 successive tournaments in the United States, including the Women's Amateur Championship.

The only American who previously reached the finals was Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, who was beaten, 3 and 1, by Joyce Wethered in 1929 and 4 and 3 by Diana Fishwick in 1930.

As in her previous matches, Mrs. Zaharias simply overwhelmed the opposition today, but she had to rely on a hot putter in addition to her long drives to accomplish the feat. In six matches since Monday she never has had to go beyond the sixteenth green.

Little Miss Stephens, daughter of a Lancashire pro, refused to be disturbed by the Babe's powerful drives and prolonged the match with brilliant play around the greens. Miss Donald nearly matched the Denver girl's wallops off the tees, but she couldn't match her short game. On the 13 holes of the semifinal match, Mrs. Zaharias required only 21 putts. She three-putted only once and was down with single putts six times.

8000 Watch the Babe

The crowd, attracted by the report that the Scottish champion was out to slay the American dragon, grew to almost unmanageable proportions. Estimated by golf writers at between 5000 and 8000, the gallery was the largest of the season—far larger than the crowd which gathered to watch the British amateur at Carnoustie two weeks ago. Nearly 100 white-clad stewards barely preserved order.

The Babe, grim and tight-lipped while playing her strokes, found time to play to the gallery between shots and after the matches. Following her close match with Miss Stephens, she remarked:

"That was the toughest match I'll have in this tournament. All I could do was keep on playing and wait 'til she cracked. I knew she couldn't keep up that kind of putting all morning."

Virtually all the spectators followed the American and as she finished polishing off Miss Donald she was surrounded and a forest of arms was thrust out with pens. She obliged the autographers and posed for photographers with her arms around her rival.

"Let's do the Highland Fling for them," she suggested to Jean. Miss Donald nodded and each raised a knee. "Hold it a minute until I get my toes pointed right." Babe called to the cameramen.

Early Wynn Chalks Up 7th Victory

By Al Costello
Post Reporter

St. Louis, June 11.—The Nats came out of the cellar tonight on the strong right arm of Early Wynn, who stopped the St. Louis Brown with a six-hitter, 4-2.

The Nats wound up a not-so-good road tour with four victories and seven defeats.

Wynn, who was winning his third straight, pitched three-hit and no-run ball after the second inning to give the Nats a lift to seventh place from their last-place position, where they were dropped last night by the same pesky Browns.

Seventh for Wynn

It was the seventh victory against four defeats for the stocky right-hander, who also played a prominent part in the Nats' not too potent six-hit attack.

Early didn't connect for a safety, but it was his long fly in the fourth, with Mark Christman straining away on third in the fourth, that gave the Nats the run that ultimately was to prove decisive.

The Nats administered the fourth defeat against no victories to an erstwhile nemesis, Sam Zoldak. It was the third time this year the Nats have kicked around the young left-handed man who formerly merely had to toss his glove on the mound to come up with a victory over the Nats.

Included among the Browns' half dozen safeties off Wynn was Walter Judnich's eighth circuit clout in the second. After that Wynn retire 16 Brownies in a row, a streak that prevailed until Pinch Hitter Joe Schultz singled with one out in the eighth.

Wynn was practically letter perfect in the control department, walking but one.

The Nats started out off Zoldak as if they were about to finish him in a hurry.

Yost Starts It

Yost singled to open the game and, after Lewis grounded out, Vernon singled to left, sending Yost to third. Stan Spence, batting in the cleanup spot, lined a clean single to center, scoring Yost and sending Vernon to third. Priddy's loft to right brought Vernon across.

The Browns pecked away for single runs in the first and second. In the initial frame a single by Dillinger and a rousing double down the left-field line by Lehner meant one tally.

Judnich's round-tripper made it 2-2 in the second but from there on they were helpless to do anything with what Wynn was throwing at them.

Came the fourth and what proved to be the winning run. With one out, Mark Christman drew a pass against his former mates and promptly raced to third on a perfect hit-run single by Rick Ferrell. Wynn's long fly to Lehner scored Christman with what proved to be the winning tally.

But just for luck the Nats added an insurance tally in the eighth.

Lewis doubled down the left-field foul line and stayed put as Vernon fouled to Judnich.

Spence slammed a hot drive down the first-base line which escaped Judnich and rolled into short right field for an error, Lewis scoring all the way from second with a fine burst of speed.

Bosox Whip Tribe, 3-0

Cleveland, June 11 (AP).—Manager Joe Cronin used two of his front-line hurlers and his ace relief pitcher today and the trio came up with a six-hit shutout over the Cleveland Indians as the Boston Red Sox triumphed, 3 to 0, for a sweep of the three-game series.

Starter Mickey Harris throttled the Indians with four hits and then retired in the eighth for a pinch hitter. Dave (Boo) Ferriss kept the Tribe under control until the ninth, when with one out he walked Ken Keltner and Jim Hegan.

10 Pacific Coast Colleges Fined

Sun Valley, Idaho, June 11 (AP). All 10 members of the Pacific Coast Conference were assessed fines for various violations of their own athletic purity code in an unusual climax to the three-day spring meeting concluded here today.

The University of California at Los Angeles, conference football champion last year, drew the stiffest penalty—a fine of $2400. Its crosstown rival, Southern California, was assessed $1750, second highest amount.

California at Berkeley was fined $650 and Stanford was assessed a $600 penalty while others were fined as follows:

University of Oregon, $300; Washington State, $300; University of Washington, $200; University of Montana, $125; University of Idaho, $125, and Oregon State College, $25.

Jockey Kirk Is Suspended for Cutting Over at Charles Town

Bennings

At Charles Town:

Dear Folks:

Triple dead heats are a rarity and, if memory serves, there hasn't been a quadruple dead heat. However, there's a chance that we may see an eight-horse dead heat here. For years jockeys have been coming back from losing races and saying, "One more jump and I would have won." So we are going to see if we can't write conditions for a race like this: "For 3-year-olds and up, 6 furlongs and 1 jump." I have used that line before. Starter Harold Holland continued to do a good job here. He hasn't the best horses in the world to work with either. Jockey J. Keenan, who rode only one winner here, left today for Narragansett Park for a new shake. The daily double has been paying off in telephone figures here. Five of the first 11 doubles paid more than $100 with $364 the tops. General Manager Roger Hershey reports that the recent severe storm in Hagerstown failed to damage the track where racing opens August 5. Henry Houchin, with the aid of some of those good rides by Woody Kirk, is stopping the trainers here. Apprentice Jim Baird and veteran Sammy Palumbo are waging a keen battle for jockey honors. Charlie Schmidt, one-time first sacker for the Boston Braves, was a visitor today. Eighteen horses have been claimed here involving $20,550. See you on the rail. . . . BILL.

Silver Spring Boy Barred For 10 Days

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 11.—Jockey Woodrow Kirk of Silver Spring, Md., was suspended for the second time at the meeting here for the same offense—cutting over from the outside in front of horses.

Kirk's first ruling brought him five days, but today he was ordered to sit out the next 10 programs. This being a 48-day session, Kirk still has another chance for disciplinary action.

Although opinion was divided among the watchers, his mount, Wayne Kendrick's Rush Order, was blamed for a spectacular spill of the Art Dale Stable's Carib Song in the third race.

Kirk's mount darted out in front at the break and approaching the far turn came into the inside rail just as Jockey Eddie Churchill brought Carib Song along at high speed. The filly appeared to run up on the heels of Rush Order and went down.

Churchill miraculously escaped with a shaking-up, but the boy, rolling on the track, appeared to be trampled and the crowd moaned. The veteran rider, however, got up and walked off the track, suffering only a slight wrist cut.

The race was won by Mrs. Newell Ward, jr.'s Slam Bid, a paddock tip and ridden by Ray Arduini of Washington. This winner paid $5.60 and stepped home in front of H. M. Simpson's Cessation and Mrs. Lelia D. Rogers' How Happy.

The featured Gene Dare Purse went to H. E. Moore's Louis L, under strong handling by Jockey Emilo Carrillo, a West Indian lad, who has been piloting in good style. Louis L., took the lead at the break and could not be dislodged. Mrs. W. Hay Hurst's Casogin was second with Mrs. E. P. White's Old Harry third. Louis L. paid $7.20 and was clocked in 1:22 4-5 for the 6½ furlongs over a track that remained fast despite a shower.

Carrillo won the fifth event aboard Mrs. H. R. Miller's Mor Lady, a $13.20 shot. Wayne Kendrick's Out Damsel and F. C. Maisel's Overgold chased the winner home.

The daily double paid $112.20, with Jimmy Baird scoring with Cox and McCutchen's Vermark at $51.40 in the first race and Pat O'Brien booting A. J. Poinsett's Cabin Creek to the wire in the second at $5.60.

Cubs Spank Braves Twice to Move Into 3d Place

Bruins Win Twin Bill, 4-0 and 5-2

Boston, June 11 (AP). — The Chicago Cubs moved ahead of the Boston Braves into third place in the National League today by twice defeating the Tribe 4-0 and 5-2 before a paid audience of 28,992.

Right-hander Doyle Lade limited the Tribe to seven hits, two through the first six innings, as he recorded his fourth triumph in the opener when Lefty Warren Spahn suffered his second loss of the season against nine victories.

The Braves scored their only runs of the day in the eighth inning of the second contest at the expense of Starter Bob Chipman and Reliefer Emil Kush when they bunched four of their hits.

Chipman left the game in the middle of that inning because of a blistered finger.

Dom Dallessandro, chunky Cub outfielder, was the heavy sticker of the day with three hits in both games, six in eight times at bat. He also made nine putouts in left field, five in the first game.

Chop Talk

'Hatchetman' Curtis Says He's Pretty Sharp Puncher

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

AN AWESOME-LOOKING, ebony hued giant with a puffed left eye stalked into the Liberty A. C. gym yesterday with an ax on his shoulder, said hello to a few friends and sat down to mop his perspiring brow.

"There's the greatest one-punch heavyweight in the business today," sighed Yancey Henry. "He can do as much damage to you with his fist as with the ax he's got on his shoulder."

Yancey, who currently is in the employ of Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn as supply sergeant and utility man at the 9th st. sweat box, was talking about Curtis (Hatchetman) Sheppard, the copper-colored clouter from Baltimore who tries to chop down Archie Moore in the top attraction at Griffith Stadium Monday night.

And Yancey should know because the 195-pound Sheppard ended Yancey's ring aspirations in Baltimore a little over a year ago.

Yancey was considered some shucks of a heavyweight in these parts and had broken even in two engagements with Sheppard until that fatal meeting in March, 1946, when Sheppard almost beheaded him, sending him to the hospital for a month and ending his fighting days.

"I WAS going along pretty good for eight rounds," the big, beefy Henry recalled, "but what happened after that is a blank to me. I remember seeing a right hand coming at me and that's where I blacked out."

Sheppard, who carries the little gold-painted hatchet around on the prompting of his coterie of advisers, agreed with Henry.

"Yep, I guess I can hit pretty hard," he said with no trace of modesty. "I knocked over a couple of bums in Baltimore recently, but I don't get any fun out of that. I like to be in there with good hitters—like Moore—because that's when I find out if I'm in the groove. It's nothing to belt out a bum. I do that regularly."

Sheppard didn't work yesterday, but will hold his first public session at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Sheppard had Moore on the floor twice in their first engagement in Baltimore, but couldn't stop the clever San Diego Negro.

Moore, too, is not exactly a light hitter and the collision of these two sock specialists is expected to develop into something of a concussion Monday night. Moore worked six rounds yesterday and will repeat today at 1:30.

Grays Play Elites Tonight

One of the most colorful teams to be developed in the Negro National League in recent years, the Baltimore Elite Giants, makes an appearance at Griffith Stadium at 8 o'clock this evening to face the Washington Grays.

The Washington Grays, who have been running into tough luck lately, hope to get back on the winning path against the Elites. The Grays will undoubtedly start Johnny Wright.

Dodgers Send Melton to Royals

Brooklyn, June 11 (AP).—Rube Melton, 30-year-old right-hander who came to Brooklyn in Branch Rickey's first big league deal for the Dodgers, was sent outright tonight to the Montreal Royals of the International League.

Because no pitcher was brought in to take Melton's place, the belief in Brooklyn was that Hank Behrman would be returned to the Dodgers before June 15.

Bums Flash Old Form but Lose to Reds

Brooklyn, June 11 (AP).—Lefty Joe Hatten, who never has beaten Cincinnati, failed again today as the Reds nosed out Brooklyn, 5-4, on Ray Mueller's pinch double with the bases loaded in the sixth inning.

Although Jackie Robinson enjoyed his biggest day in the majors with two singles, a double and triple, the Brooks were unable to get the most out of 13 hits off starter Elmer Riddle and winner Harry Gumbert.

Three Players Hurt as Phils Squeeze by Cardinals, 5 to 4

Philadelphia, June 11 (AP).—Brilliant relief pitching by Tommy Hughes and Schoolboy Rowe coupled with a five-run attack off Howie Pollet in the first inning gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 5-4 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals today.

The game was marked by injuries to Del Rice, Cards' catcher, and Outfielder Del Ennis and Pitcher Fred Schmidt of the Phils. Rice injured his shoulder when he was upest at the plate by Lee Handley in the first. Ennis hurt his knee in a collision at first base in the second frame and Schmidt hurt his right led when he bumped into Joe Garagiola in the fourth.

Olympian Hiawathas

Angle-Seating Dining Car

Luxury Lounge Coaches
(Below) "Sleepy Hollow" seats, luxuriously upholstered in foam rubber, have adjustable reclining positions for day or night comfort. Glare-free fluorescent lighting. Men's and women's lounge rooms are large, well appointed.

HERE IT IS! A postwar Hiawatha service custom-built for the territory it serves. Ready for your Summer Trip!

New in design and beauty, the diesel-powered OLYMPIAN HIAWATHAS operate on a super-speed schedule, and are outstanding in their facilities and riding ease.

The beautiful Touralux sleeping cars, unique with The Milwaukee Road, offer longer, wider berths by night and more comfortable seats by day at surprisingly moderate cost. The distinctive Tip Top Grill is a full car with restaurant and cocktail rooms open to all passengers. There is also a strikingly beautiful dining car. Reclining chair lounge coaches are of an improved Hiawatha type; all seats reserved. In a separate car there are Touralux and coach facilities for women and children exclusively.

Standard sleeping cars with observation-lounge provide drawing rooms, compartments, bedrooms and berths. Later this year, new all-room sleeping cars with Sky Top lounge will be placed in service.

Your enjoyment of the OLYMPIAN HIAWATHAS will be enhanced by the smoothness of the roadbed and the scenic charm of The Milwaukee Road route.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

House Rider Would Save Some Jobs

The pressure to order hasty and excessive firings would be taken off many Federal agencie. under a provision recommended to Congress yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee.

Kluttz

In brief, the rider would permit the agencies to pay the cost of terminal leave to dismissed employes during July out of 1947 funds which ordinarily would be "frozen" as of June 30.

If approved, as expected, it would save the jobs of thousands of additional employes who are faced with lay-offs, and it would allow 30-day on-the-job notices to be given those employes who are to be fired. The rider is carried in the urgent deficiency bill.

Fred Lawton of the Budget Bureau urged the committee to approve the rider. In his testimony he said:

"You would get reduction of personnel in a great many cases larger than those intended by Congress because terminal leave charges would be carried in the 1948 appropriations, and it would mean a further reduction of personnel beyond that now felt in those bills."

Lawton pointed out that the House had demanded immediate firings each time it had cut an appropriation bill. Further, the agencies had been warned that no additional funds would be provided to pay terminal leave costs. The budget official said the agencies would rather pay this cost out of 1947 funds, but that it was now impossible because of the 30-day notice provision.

The average employe fired is said to have about 40 days of annual leave, or about two months pay, to his credit which must be paid to him in a lump sum on dismissal.

The committee amended the Lawton request to require the 30-day notices to be given during this month.

A number of agencies such as Maritime, Securities and Exchange, the Labor Board and others must pay terminal leave out of 1948 appropriations, since they will be broke on June 30. The rider won't help them.

WAR: One immediate effect of the rider is the probable postponement of some dismissal notices to employes in this department.

War had planned to get out about 35,000 notices on Monday. In and nearby this city approximately 4500 people are slated to get the bad news, about 3500 in the departmental service and another 1000 in the "field" offices here and nearby.

Most of the 35,000 notices, it was learned, would give the employes only 10 days, or two weeks, on-the-job notice. After July 1, the employes would then go on either annual leave or leave without pay.

A good many of the pink slips will go out on schedule, but some offices will delay them in the hope of getting additional funds from the Senate.

The House demanded the release of 76,000 civilians in the War budget it approved. However, the department can get within the House ceiling by laying off no more than 35,000 additional people, since it gave notices to 40,000 employes to become effective the last of this month.

CAPITOL HILL: The House Rules Committee yesterday sidetracked that bill to allow FBI agents to retire at 50 after 20 years of service. The bill may be considered again at a later date . . . however, the Rules Committee approved the bill to make mandatory a decision of the Civil Service Commission in an appeal by a veteran.

NOTES: The Jones bill to allow employes who have up to 10 years of service to withdraw their money from the Civil Service retirement fund on dismissal will be reported out today by a House Civil Service subcommittee. . . . Col. Ed McCormick, former chief investigator of the House Civil Service Committee, is a good bet to be appointed to a similar job by Chairman Ed Rees . . . The Comptroller General has ruled that departments should pay the traveling expenses of permanent employes who are displaced and who are offered jobs in another locality.

COMMERCE: A run-off election will be held today in the Office of the Secretary to name an employe member of the board of efficiency rating appeals. The top three candidates are: Robert Frye, Harold Stehman and Mitchel J. Bushery.

FEDERAL SUPPLY, which is in the midst of a big lay-off, is building a bigger and better dining room for its executives . . .

LOYALTY: The House Civil Service Committee yesterday met for two hours and failed to agree on the Rees bill to investigate the loyalty of Federal workers. . . . The House Appropriations Committee will report out the all-important independent offices bill tomorrow.

REVENUE: A Senate rider to the Treasury appropriation bill would require a study to be made to determine how many employes Internal Revenue needs.

Housewives Grumble as Beef, Lamb Prices Rise

Threat of Short Corn Crop May Mean Still Higher Figures on Meat

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Beef and lamb prices rose to new seasonal highs yesterday at Chicago stockyards, price barometer for meat on the table, even as local housewives protested sharp increases in meat prices here.

Further dire predictions of higher prices came in a report from the Department of Agriculture on weather-delayed planting of the Midwestern corn crop. A short corn crop would cut down meat production, hiking meat prices still higher.

Washington wholesalers reported they were buying as little meat as possible at present high prices lest they be caught in the middle of a sudden price drop. They reported little to no change in current store orders.

"Plenty of Grumbling"

Butchers and retail grocers here reported "plenty of grumbling" over new price tags on steaks, roasts and chops, some higher than the whispered figures of black market days. Some few customers, they reported, turned to cheaper grades. But for the most part, they paid the prices asked and didn't like it.

In Chicago, cattle, hogs, sheep and butter moved higher yesterday. Beef steers brought as high as $30 a hundred pounds for the first time since March 5 and spring lambs reached a seasonal high price of $27.

Hogs were generally 25 to 50 cents higher than Tuesday's trade; cattle were up from 25 cents to $1 a hundredweight; sheep, 25 to 50 cents more and butter joined the advances of one cent to a cent and three-quarters a pound.

Meat merchants here agree that price changes at the stockyards are reflected at Washington retail levels in about ten days.

One Chain Goes Up

Yesterday, one of the District's largest chains of stores joined Tuesday's general price parade which advanced beef, lamb and some pork prices from six to ten cents a pound over price levels of a week ago. Some independents reported they were still holding to last week's retail prices but would be forced to sell at higher prices after their next purchase of meat supplies.

The Government termed the recent price rise in meats mysterious and discounted reports it was due to high bids on meat for export to Europe. Experts pointed out that the size of Government allocations for export of meat have not been changed.

Government officials admitted, however, the possibility that some meat purchases in bulk were being made by buyers for foreign countries in anticipation of possible ending of export controls on July 1. Legislation to extend such controls is pending in Congress.

Sharp Debate Is Waged Over Chest X-Rays

District Health Officer Scoffs at Argument Of 'Scaring' People

Health Officer George C. Ruhland and Commissioner Guy Mason locked verbal horns yesterday over the value of proposed tuberculosis chest X-rays for District residents.

Dr. Ruhland said he "could not follow" Mason's argument "that we would scare people" with a chest X-ray survey.

"If my house was on fire, I would be scared, and rightfully so," Dr. Ruhland said. "But I could do something about it. The same applies to tuberculosis."

Dr. Ruhland also countered Mason's argument that the survey was not advisable now because of an "absence of facilities" to care for persons "in the preliminary stages of the disease."

"Early Diagnosis Best"

Many cases caught "in the early stages by this mass survey," Dr. Ruhland maintained, could probably be treated without hospitalization in their own homes with proper nursing.

He admitted Mason was correct in stating that "the only cases we can treat, with available facilities, are the advanced cases."

But this is no way of handling the disease, Dr. Ruhland pointed out. "Early diagnosis and treatment is the best method. Obviously no official agency can fight the disease unless it knows where it exists."

Denies Holding Funds

Mason declared he had "not held up any funds" and said the "health officer has not asked the Commissioners for them."

Dr. Ruhland said X-ray funds were not called for in his official budget request but that he had asked for them before the House District Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee after Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.) had "opened the question."

Representative Horan, Subcommittee chairman, said a plan to have Congress appropriate necessary funds for the survey was still "under study" by the Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee.

Rudd at Fourth Church

Dr. Judson A. Rudd, president of William Jennings Bryan University, Dayton, Tenn., will address a banquet of Mount Vernon University tomorrow at 6:30 p. m. at Fourth Presbyterian Church, 13th and Fairmont sts. nw.

No Playgrounds

Police 'Twixt Devil, Deep On Juveniles

Police officials yesterday launched a summer-time program of protection and personal interest for vacationing school children—but they couldn't offer new playgrounds.

Even as Acting Police Superintendent Inspector Walter H. Thomas was issuing the summer-time memo, officers were hearing lament from children and parents over the lack of playground space in Northeast Washington.

The 14 parents and 12 children appeared because police have arrested 50 children for playing ball in the streets and alleys in the last two weeks.

In each offense coming before officers of the Juvenile Bureau yesterday, the child was warned. Only second offenders are dealt with more severely.

Police, said Lieut. William T. Murphy, of the Juvenile Bureau, "are between the devil and the deep, blue sea." He said precinct stations will receive calls about windows broken by balls thrown by playing children. If they don't take some action, he said, the man with the broken window complains. If they do, the parents complain.

"Where can they play if not in the streets and alleys?" one parent wanted to know.

"The citizens should get together and demand playgrounds," Murphy replied.

In his memo to all commanding officers, Inspector Thomas emphasized "protection of children" and declared "our contact with children should be friendly; every effort made to win their confidence. The impression should be conveyed that we seek to aid them, rather than restrict their activities or interfere with their recreation."

The memo also emphasized the responsibility of police in protection of school buildings and property. Lieutenant Murphy told the parents yesterday that 22 windows in the Kingsman School had been reported broken in the last two weeks.

Under the new summer program, commanding officers in precinct stations are required to report weekly any damage to buildings.

"We must keep such damage to a minimum," Thomas said.

The memo did not place all school damage blame on children.

"In past years, considerable damage has been done to schools," he said, "partly by vandalism and partly by carelessness of children playing around the schools."

Two Sailors Freed in Rape, Robbery Case

Failure to Identify Defendants Is Cited By Defense Lawyer

An all-white, all-male jury in District Court here last night returned verdicts of not guilty for two white sailors charged with raping and robbing a 24-year-old Negro woman in a stolen taxicab last Christmas Eve.

The verdict exonerated Elwood McMasters, jr., 19, and William A. Campbell, 22, both of Dahlgren (Va.) Naval Base, of the alleged rape, armed robbery of $3 from the woman victim and armed robbery of $14 from her male companion.

Jury Foreman Raymond L. Bland, 50, of 3822 Van Ness st. nw., an employe of the Department of Agriculture, announced the jury findings at 8:15 p. m., five hours and five minutes after the case went to the jury.

Defense Counsel Charles E. Ford pointed out in his closing address to the jury that although the woman testified she took the license number of the taxicab she never submitted that information to police nor complained of the offense until police investigators contacted her several days later.

He pointed out that McMasters and Campbell both testified they were making the rounds of Washington night clubs on Christmas eve. They denied any connection with the reported crimes. Ford also pointed out that the hacker whose cab was stolen at gunpoint could not identify his clients as the bandits.

The two sailors were arrested late December 28 and subsequently indicted for the Christmas eve crimes and other taxicab holdups. They pleaded guilty of two robberies and await sentencing on those charges but denied complicity in the rape or other robbery cases.

Associate Justice Richmond B. Keech was trial judge, with Assistant United States District Attorney John P. Burke the prosecutor.

'It's Hotter Than Home,' Says 4-H Club Visitor From South

To the 4-Hs for "head, heart, hands and health" a fifth one for "heat" was added yesterday afternoon as delegates from 45 States and Puerto Rico registered at Arlington Farms, Va., for the 17th annual 4-H Club Camp.

As Washington simmered through the hottest day of 1947 the boys and girls from rural communities representing more than a million and a half 4-H Club members in the States and Territories mopped their brows and looked for water fountains.

"It's terrible," gasped Lawrence Williams, 18, of Fitzgerald, Ga. "I thought we were getting some cool weather when we came up here." "It's sticky," added Billie Benson, 18, of Savannah, Ga., "you can't describe this heat, ours is a clear-cut heat. It's hotter than home." "Amen to that," said Louisianians Claude Ray, 17, of Rapides Parish, and Jesse B. Ely, 17, of Gilbert.

"It's wicked, it's really hot," said Marjorie LaClair, 18, of South Shaftsbury, Vt., "I was warned, but gee!". "It is much worse than Colorado," added Maurice Stillings, 20 and 6 feet, 4, from Alamosa, 7500 feet above sea level. "Stepping off the train, I nearly melted."

"It is much worse than Puerto Rico," admitted Jose Rafael Ojeda, 18, of Caguas, with the hesitation born of Latin courtesy, while Milos Hrdy, 16, of El Reno, Okla., summed it up when he said, "kind of soggy here."

None of the delegates to the week-long meeting suggested doing anything about the weather, however, as they met for the formal opening in the Arlington Farms Recreation building last night. They were welcomed by H. W. Hochbaum of the Extension Service, United States Department of Agriculture, and were led in group singing by Jane Farwell of the National Recreation Association.

Today they will hear Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson and visit the Department of Agriculture's research farms and laboratories at Beltsville, Md.

Three Plans Advocated For Welfare Setup Here

Commissioners Ask To Take Over Job; Board Pleads Case; Better Laws Backed

By Edward Ryan
Post Reporter

Three proposals for conducting District welfare activities were made by as many witnesses in a House District Subcommittee hearing yesterday.

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West presented the Commissioners' advice to let them take over control of all welfare operations, stripping the present Board of Public Welfare to a purely advisory role.

Subcommittee Chairman A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) asked West to speed the Commissioners' proposed welfare reorganization bill to the Capitol.

Simplification Claimed

"What," asked Miller, "would be the advantage of the Commissioners' plan?"

"Simplified control," replied West. "As it is now everything that goes wrong is blamed on the Commissioners although they may have no control over the situation. The Board says 'We could make it right if the Commissioners would give us more money.' The Commissioners say to the Board 'You can make it right without the money.' That's the gist of it, with the present divided responsibility."

Edgar Morris, Welfare Board Chairman, urged autonomy for his agency comparable to that which the Board of Education has. The welfare agency would get power to select its personnel, now appointed by the Commissioners on recommendation from the Board. The Commissioners would keep budget control, as they do over the schools.

"I'm of the opinion we'd do a pretty good job," said Morris, "if we were given autonomy like the schools, and a chance to try it out for a couple of years. I don't think the Commissioners are set up to give the personalized supervision to welfare matters that we do."

Third Solution

Third solution was that of Mrs. Hester G. Stoll, of the District Chapter, American Association of Social Workers. She said either the Commission or a strengthened Board of Public Welfare could handle the job, if they were given a clear legal base, instead of the present 18 varying laws controling welfare operations.

She described the present setup as "intolerable" and said it was "wonderful such good things have been done with this system."

Morris's view was backed by Edward J. Newcomb, a member of the first District Welfare Board 21 years ago; and by Frank D. McKinney, of the Federation of Civic Associations.

Mrs. Mamie L. Mizen, administrative assistant to the welfare director testified with Morris about details of the welfare setup.

Old Law Cited

Man Sues To Recover Lost Bets

Jules Shapiro of 1807 23d st. se., yesterday filed suit in District Court under an old English law to collect money he charges he lost on the horses and numbers games.

The suit seeks $12,000—treble the amount of the $4000 Shapiro says he lost on wrong horses and losing numbers between October 1946 and May of 1947. Named as defendants are Ellis Friedlander and Lucille Friedlander, 5000 Benning rd. se.

Filed by Attorneys Dan Piver and Joseph Sitnick, the suit cites sections of the Act of 1781, adopted from the Maryland Code, which, in turn, originated in old English common law.

"If any person . . . by any fraud, shift, circumvention, deceit or unlawful device or ill-pretense," the section begins, "in playing at or with cards, dice, bowls, kittles, shovelboard, or in or by, cock fighting, horse races, dog matches or foot races . . . (wins more than $26.67 from another) . . . shall lose treble the sum or value of the money."

It also provides what English law called a "moity" which, liberally translated means a piece of the money awarded. Under the "moity" terms, the District would get $6000 and Shapiro $6000 if the suit is successful.

Attorneys long familiar with Washington courts said they believe the case unprecedented here, although a similar case was filed in Maryland several years ago—and the plaintiff won.

Friedlander is currently free on $1500 bond on charges of operating a lottery and setting up a gaming table. He was arrested in a raid on his grocery store May 9.

9212 Army Officers Confirmed by Senate

Routine nominations of 9212 Army officers, majors and below, were confirmed by the Senate yesterday.

D. C. Residents' Damage Suits Barred in Outside U. S. Courts

Privileges allowing District residents to file damage suits in United States District Courts against residents of States have been declared unconstitutional because the District is not a State.

Federal Judge William C. Coleman ruled in Baltimore Tuesday that Congress lacked authority to amend the Judicial Code in 1940 to give District residents that right.

The opinion came in dismissal of two damage suits totaling $25,000 and involving two former Washington residents. Judge Coleman allowed the dismissal on grounds of no jurisdiction.

"Washington," he said, "is not like a State. It is an area that is in a class by itself. Its anomalous position has been repeatedly recognized by the courts.

"By reason of being the seat of the National Government and under the exclusive jurisdiction of Congress (Washington is) totally unlike any other governmental area in our Union."

Three District Court judges have denied validity of the 1940 amendment and two have affirmed it. Judge Coleman's decision came as no surprise to Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West. Said he:

"I've always questioned constitutionality of the amendment. The Constitution gives Federal Courts jurisdiction between citizens of different States. On April 20, 1940, Congress passed an act giving United States District Courts jurisdiction in cases involving District residents and residents of other States.

"The Supreme Court, however, has held that the District of Columbia is not a State within the meaning of the Constitution.

"The judge," West added, "has held that Congress has no power to give jurisdiction in excess of that granted by the Constitution."

The damage cases in which Judge Coleman made his decision involved an accident on Baltimore blvd. in September of 1945 when an automobile carrying four Washington persons was struck by a truck operated by the Interstate Hauling System, Inc., of Maryland.

The cases dismissed by Judge Coleman's decision were filed by Baltimore Attorney Benjamin Swogell for William G. Feely, jr., formerly of 914 P st. nw., and Horace Breeding, 614 Lamont st. nw.

Out-of-court settlements were made in each instance, Swogell said, but the dismissal motion was filed only in two.

Senate Group To Act on D. C. Tax Bill Today

The Senate District committee will meet at 2 p. m. today to act on the House-approved bill to boost Washington city revenue by 12 to 13 million dollars a year.

District Chairman C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) called the meeting late yesterday to speed action on the tax bill. He conferred earlier with Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) fiscal affairs chairman, who worked with House leaders in drafting the program.

One main question to be settled in the District committee is how to handle extension of the District individual income tax.

The House voted to keep Federal employes free of the District tax if they have a legal domicile in a State.

District leaders had urged the House to collect a District income tax from actual residents, here seven months or more in the year, if they paid neither income nor intangible property taxes to a State.

Cain would not comment on what action he will recommend.

Aside from the income question, Senator Buck indicated he would favor keeping as close as possible to the House-approved bill to speed final passage.

Other features of the revenue bill are property, water and gasoline tax boosts, and a four-million-dollar increase in the annual Federal payment to the District.

Holy Rosary Church To Hear Fr. Miritello

The Very Rev. Felice Miritello, a Capuchian priest from New York City, will speak today and tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Holy Rosary Catholic Church, 3d and F st. nw. His appearance will be in preparation for the Feast of St. Anthony that will be observed Sunday

Justice Dept. Studies Data In Fire Alarm Monopoly Trial

Four volumes of photostatic copies of the correspondence of the Gamewell Co., manufacturers of fire alarm equipment, are under investigation here by the Department of Justice.

The firm is awaiting trail in Boston on charges of monopolistic practices. The indictment alleges it has charged high, unreasonable prices to many municipalities, including the District of Columbia.

The correspondence shows the District purchased its fire alarm equipment from this company for many years through Herbert A. Friede, when he was fire alarm superintendent.

The letters exchanged between company officials also allege that Friede was more or less maneuvered into his job here through the influence of the company officials, because he was on very friendly terms with them.

"No Correspondence of Mine"

Friede, who served as fire alarm superintendent from June 9, 1933, to February 17 of this year, was loath to comment yesterday, but he stated the correspondence describing a close relation between himself and company officials was only "letters of salesmen, selling themselves to their boss."

"There was no correspondence there of mine," he declared. "As far as I know, a copy of a letter I am alleged to have sent the company is the only one ascribed to me.

"The copy of the letter is unsigned, with my name typewritten at the bottom. I didn't write the letter and I don't know how it got in their files."

Friede referred to a letter in the file, dated April 3, 1934, and addressed to A. H. Welton, a district manager of the company. The letter mentioned a proposed $38,000 worth of central office equipment, and included this paragraph:

"Gee, I'm pleased with the way things are shaping up. I now must write these specifications airtight and also in such a way as not to give anybody else a chance to . . ." The sentence ended with dashes. The letter closed with a typewritten "your pal, Friede."

Requested Not to Talk

Friede said he had been requested by the District Commissioners to refrain from comment. But he added, "Maybe I'll speak out some day."

A check of the volumes, however, showed another copy of a letter, ending with the typewritten name H. A. Friede and addressed to E. Penkethman, a company sales engineer. It was dated January 4, 1938.

It opened with "Dear Eddie," listed the bids for tapper bells, showing that Brunnell & Co. offered a lower bid than the Gamewell Co., and closed with "There is still hope."

The volumes also contained a photostatic copy of a photostatic copy of a note, allegedly written by Friede to Pinkethman August 9, 1945, and forwarded to the president of the company.

Gamewell Co. Underbid

The note listed bids for firebox alarms and showed that Gamewell Co. had been underbid by another company. It ended with, "I don't know what I can do; he is low bidder, makes no exception to the specifications." It was initialed H. A. F.

Friede was first mentioned in the correspondence in a letter of July 6, 1932, written by Welton to the company president shortly after the retirement of Fire Alarm Superintendent J. G. Simpson.

After pointing out that it was important to the company to have a friend of the company get the position, the letter stated: "Mr. Herbert A. Friede, city electrician of Wheeling, W. Va., would be an ideal man for the position, not only because of his experience and training, but also because of his very strong friendship."

A year later, shortly before Friede got the appointment, Welton again wrote the company president "As you know, Mr. Friede is a very strong advocate for Gamewell equipment; both fire and police; and once he gets his hands on the job, he will be very aggressive in the building up of a fire system to what it should be."

In 1942, the municipal fire alarm headquarters, outfitted by the Gamewell Co., was built in McMillan Park. The file of letters shows company officials kept in constant touch with Friede. It includes a letter from the company president to Penkethman February 28, 1939, which read:

"I am glad Mr. Friede is willing to have us change the (District) specifications in regard to Three Fold boxes (fire alarms) so as to include our new stainless steel model with all its improvements. This will be a big step forward and a means of causing our competitors to realize their difficulty in complying."

The $200,000 building was installed with more than $400,000 worth of Gamewell equipment.

D. C. Man Dies, 13 Hurt In Carrier Steam Blast

Philadelphia, June 11 (U.P.).—A sea man was burned fatally and 13 men were injured today when a high-pressure steam line burst in the engine room of the aircraft carrier Valley Forge.

The dead sailor was identified by the Navy as Electrician's Mate 2/c James A. Monette, 26, 3967 Alabama ave., se., Washington. Five of the injured were enlisted personnel. The others were civilian workers.

3 D. C. Men Identified With Island Dead

Three men from the District were among 325 soldiers who died in the Philippine Islands and were buried as unknowns and who have since been identified, the New York Port of Embarkation announced yesterday.

They are: Sergt. Richard E. Frere, of 821 H st. ne.; Pvt. Walter B. Dmohoski of 2525 Perry st. ne., and Pvt. Solomon D. Levin of 1203 I st. ne.

The 353 were among 1600 buried in the Camp O'Donnell prisoner of war cemetery on Luzon during the Japanese occupation. They were reburied after the war in the United States Armed Forces Cemetery No. 2 at Manila.

Sergeant Frere was inducted March 10, 1941, and was sent to the Philippines six months later. An employe of the Interior Department before the war, he was 26 years old when he died. A native of Washington, he was a graduate of McKinley High School, according to his mother, Mrs. Marie Rose Frere.

Private Dmohoski was also one of the first District men to be inducted. An employe of the War Department before he entered service, he was 25 years old when he died, his mother Mrs. Stella Dmohoski, said.

Private Levin, 24 at his death, entered the service early in 1941, and the last letter received from him by his mother, Mrs. Leah Levin, 1203 I st. ne., arrived December 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor day. A native of Washington, he attended Macfarland Junior High and Central High Schools.

Farmer's Wife Has Triplets, Two Born in Va., One in W. Va.

It turned out to be triplets after all for Mrs. Borror but it took a two-State trip for it all to happen.

The birth of the triplets, one in Franklin, W. Va., a few hours before the other two were delivered in Virginia 57 miles away, was disclosed yesterday by the attending physician.

Dr. O. S. Reynolds, who executed the two-State triple-play, said the children were born last week to Mrs. Charles Borror of nearby Pendleton County. After delivery of the first, a boy, at the Borror home, Dr. Reynolds determined an operation would be necessary to insure successful delivery of what he thought would be a "second baby."

Lacking ambulance transportation, he bundled Mrs. Borror into his own car and drove to Harrison, Va., General Hospital, crossing the rugged Shenandoah Mountains en route. At Harrisonburg, two healthy daughters were delivered to Mrs. Borror after a successful operation.

The mother, wife of a Pendleton County farmer, and the triplets are doing nicely, Dr. Reynolds said.

Citizenship University

The fifth annual University of Citizenship, under the auspices of the Optimist Clubs of greater Washington, will be held at American University June 22 to 26 with some 135 teen-age boys in attendance from Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

The boy's ranging in age from 13 to 17, will be housed at the barracks at the university. Lectures and studies, on which the boys will be examined for prizes and diplomas, have been prepared and supervised by the Washington high schools.

Veteran Released

Judges should take into consideration the effects war experience might have had on veteran-defendants, declared Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott yesterday.

Scott made the comment as he released Louis Crowder, 19, of Richmond, Va., former sailor, who was charged with car tampering.

"You who served in the war are not as normal as we who stayed in tranquility back home. I think all judges should take that into consideration," he said. Crowder was represented by Attorney Eugene R. Gilmartin.

Bare Wires Hurt Two

Bared electric wires sent two District persons to hospitals yesterday.

Mrs. Lucille Evans, 51, of 5-A Parkway, Greenbelt, Md., came in contact with one as she cleaned around her kitchen refrigerator. The Branchville, Md., rescue squad took her to Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale, where she was treated for temporary paralysis of the right arm and side.

Luther Jarrett, 2107 Dennis ave., Silver Spring, Md., an electrician, received electric burns on the hands and arms when he touched a live wire in the basement of 1312 G st. nw., where he was working. He was admitted to Emergency Hospital.

Grille Robbed of $175

Alexandria police yesterday sought a thief who stole $175 from the cash register of the Virginia Grille, King and Washington sts., Alexandria, Tuesday night.

Police said that the thief apparently entered through a small window in rear of the restaurant. The window was supposedly protected against entry by bars placed 10 inches apart. The money was in small bills and change. But untouched was a dime and a nickel.

Retailers Relect Officers

All regular officers of the Virginia Retail Merchants Association were reelected yesterday as the association closed its two-day 41st annual convention in Alexandria.

Officers named for another term included Herbert Nachman, Newport News, president; J. Emmett Gleason, Charlottesville, first vice president; W. E. Lum, Petersburg, second vice president; W. T. Wade, Clifton Forge, treasurer.

In a discussion session the delegates approved a resolution opposing income-tax exemption for cooperative organizations. The group voted to hold next year's convention at the Hotel Chamberlain outside Norfolk.

150 Attend Picnic

More than 150 kids and three of Montgomery County's five commissioners had fun yesterday at a picnic staged by Bethesda (Md.) police for the school safety patrol.

At the affair, staged at the Rock Creek Cabin, just off the East-West hwy., police pointed with pride at the record this year of not one school child being injured.

Attending the annual outing with patrol members from Bethesda-Chevy Chase schools were Commissioners Brooke Johns, Wesley I. Sauter and Oliver W. Youngblood.

Absentee Ballot Data

Instructions on how to obtain absentee voters ballots for the August 5 Democratic primary were issued yesterday by the Arlington League of Women Voters.

Summer vacationers were instructed to apply in writing to their precinct registrars at least five days before August 5, enclosing 23 cents for postage. Voters were cautioned to open and fill out ballots in the presence of a notary public.

Names and addresses of precinct registrars may be obtained by telephoning the League's voters service chairman, Mrs. Chester Jones at Overlook 0867.

Out of Retirement

A 77-year-old, retired attorney whom idleness made restless, was admitted to practice before the District Court Tuesday and the United States Court of Appeals yesterday.

He is Aubrey Lawrence, 4418 Reservoir rd. nw., who had retired in 1945, following 56 years' activity in the legal profession. Lawrence was president of the North Dakota Bar Association in 1927. In 1929 he came to Washington as a special assistant to the Attorney General in the Department of Justice.

"I just got tired of getting up in the morning and wondering what to do the rest of the day," Lawrence told reporters.

Colonel Is 'Boot,' Too

Henry Grupe, 17, Roosevelt High School senior, is learning about military life not only from the bottom up but also from the top down.

Henry, son of Paul M. Grupe,

Colonel

Seaman

6817 Georgia ave. nw., is colonel of the Washington High School Cadet Corps when he's not otherwise serving as a seaman in the Naval Reserve.

Today, as he usually does Thursdays, he will drill with the cadets, then rush home to take off his colonel's uniform and put on that of an apprentice seaman. Henry enlisted in the new Naval Reserve last January. He drills four nights a month aboard the U. S. submarine Drum at the Naval Gun Factory.

Son Accuses Father

Albert F. Kirk, 35, of 3068 Vista st. ne., was released under $300 bond here yesterday on charges he strapped his 11-year-old namesake son black and blue for not mowing the lawn.

The two alleged beatings, about five minutes apart, occurred at 5 p. m., Monday, when, young Albert said, the father came home intoxicated. After the beatings, the boy went to the home of his mother, Mrs. Thelma Kirk, 1237 Maryland ave. ne., who is divorced from her husband. Mrs. Kirk pressed charges. Municipal Court Judge Aubrey Fennell set the bond for a jury trial, June 26, after the father denied the punishment.

D. C. Figures in Suit

The District of Columbia and a construction firm were named defendants in a suit filed yesterday for injuries received by a small boy while playing near a lumber pile at 14th and Jackson sts. ne. on November 28, 1946.

Mrs. Laura McGee, 1407 Irving st. ne., charged in a brief filed in District Court that the District and the Harwood-Nebel Construction Co., 1520 K st. nw., failed to erect proper barricades at a lumber pile near the site of the proposed Jackson School. Charging that her son, Raymond, 6, received a fractured leg, brain concussion and other injuries when lumber toppled on him, she asked $35,000 damages for the boy, and $5000 for inconvenience to herself.

A Fluffy Puzzle

Mary had a little lamb,
She knew not what to do.
The President was not at home
So she sent it to the Zoo.

Mrs. Mary Eben, who handles all gifts at the White House, received an 80-pound lamb by air express yesterday. It was addressed to President Truman by the Veterans' Club of Dripping Springs, Tex.

The donors said it was a fine, purebred lamb and the President might want to start in the sheep raising business. Also, the original owner wanted assurance that the lamb would be treated kindly.

Mary was perplexed. After consultation she decided to send the fluffy animal to the Zoo for safe keeping, pending the President's return from Canada Friday night.

New Trial Sought

A motion seeking a new trial for Carl Aldo Marzani, former State Department employe convicted of concealing Communist affiliations from the Government, will be argued tomorrow in District Court. Marzani is represented by Attorney Charles E. Ford.

Hens Die of Heat

Even for hens it was too hot yesterday. M. E. Hoag, operator of a hatchery at Norbeck, Md., found three of his full grown chickens sitting on eggs in their nests, dead of the heat.

U. S. Payment To Arlington Is Proposed

Harry K. Green, Arlington commissioner of revenue, yesterday urged that his county "be put on a par with the District" and receive a lump-sum payment to cover taxes lost on Federal land holdings in Arlington.

In letters to Virginia members of Congress, he asked that the county be included in "two or three pending measures" to reimburse Virginia localities for such tax losses.

Green said his studies show Arlington County would have received nearly four million dollars from all Government-owned property at last year's taxation rate of $3 per hundred.

Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) last night admitted that "something should be done about the situation" in Arlington, but said he had no immediate plans to introduce legislation on the subject.

According to Green's estimates, the real estate now held by the Federal Government in Arlington "is in the value of $302,504,240."

While admitting it was "not to be expected" that the county be reimbursed for Federal land such as Ft. Myer, the Postoffice Building or Arlington National Cemetery, he said some reimbursement should come from the sites of Navy Annex, the Pentagon Building, and similar Federal installations.

19 Policemen Promoted in Prince Georges

Reorganization of the Prince Georges County police force, authorized by the last session of the General Assembly, will become effective July 1.

Announcement of the changes was made yesterday by Norman H. Collins, president of the board of police commissioners whose membership includes the county commissioners.

The modernization program will include promotions for 19 policemen and increased salaries for all members of the force of 40 men.

Sergt. Charles E. Thomsen, former identification officer, will be promoted to lieutenant in command of a new detective bureau. Corpl. John F. Dent will be named detective sergeant and second in command.

Named Lieutenants

Sergt. Roscoe C. Sines, now commanding Hyattsville station, and Sergt. Elon Turner, commanding Upper Marlboro, will be promoted to the new rank of lieutenant and will retain command of their respective stations.

Sergt. Louis J. Mackall, radio and communications officer, will be promoted to the rank of lieutenant. The new lieutenants will receive $3380 a year.

Superintendent of Police Ralph W. Brown will receive a salary jump from the present $3358 to $3820.

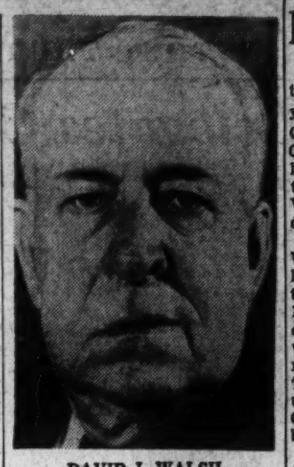
Corpls. Boyd A. Hamilton and Edwin R. Thompson of Hyattsville Station and Richard J. Earnshaw and Arnold Naylor of the Upper Marlboro Station will receive promotions to sergeant with $3130 pay.

Promoted to Corporal

Privates Lawson Peed, Thomas R. Blandford of Upper Marlboro Station; Roland B. Sweitzer, Elmer Lee Pumphrey and Reginald R. Austin, Hyattsville Station, will be promoted to corporal at a salary of $2850.

In addition to Huber, present plain clothes men in the department will be named detectives and receive the same pay as corporals. They are Richard A. Pearson, Wilson J. Purdy and John W. Siddall. The identification officer also will receive corporal's pay.

Ex-Senator Walsh Dead at 74; Was Wartime Navy Chairman



DAVID I. WALSH

David Ignatius Walsh, one of the Democratic powers in the United States Senate for more than a quarter of a century, died yesterday at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Boston.

The 74-year-old Massachusetts political figure who was swept from his Senate seat last fall by Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., in the Republican rout, died in the Cardinal O'Connell House at the hospital from the effects of a cerebral hemorrhage which struck him Monday.

Walsh, who as chairman of the powerful Senate Naval Affairs Committee supervised the building of America's greatest Navy, was taken ill two weeks ago following a trip to Canada. He entered a Fitchburg, Mass., hospital upon his return to his home at Clinton, Mass.

He was transferred to St. Elizabeth's Hospital last Wednesday.

Ignorant of Sister's Death

Walsh died not knowing that a sister, Mrs. Nellie E. Dooley, 79, of Allston, Mass., died last Sunday.

Two other sisters, Miss Julia and Miss Mary Walsh of Clinton, under medical treatment at their home, were unable to be with the veteran of the political wars as he breathed his last in an oxygen tent.

At his bedside when the end came was his law partner, Judge Thomas H. Connelly of Brighton, Mass.

Walsh's death ended one of the Nation's most colorful political careers, one touched with the best of American tradition.

He was a poor newsboy, the son of immigrant parents. But he became the State's most popular vote getter and was sent to the United States Senate for five terms. He also served two terms as Governor of Massachusetts.

Magic Name in Yankeedom

His became almost a magic name in a traditionally Republican State. He was the first Democrat to serve his home district in the State legislature. He was the State's first Democratic lieutenant governor. And he was the first Democrat to be sent to the Senate from Massachusetts since the reconstruction days which followed the Civil War.

Walsh was a good party Democrat in his home State, but as a United States Senator he rebelled at following dictates from the White House.

He was one of the first of the Democratic leaders in Congress to buck President Roosevelt.

Walsh backed Mr. Roosevelt when he sought a fourth term in 1944, but a campaign remark made by President Truman, the Vice Presidential candidate, cast a chill on the Massachusetts Senator's support.

Mr. Truman referred to Walsh as an isolationist and added that "we have a chance to reform him."

Ally of Lodge in League Fight

President Roosevelt's lesson that Walsh would not go down the line for a measure he did not personally approve of was learned earlier by President Wilson. Walsh joined with Massachusetts' senior Senator, Henry Cabot Lodge, bitter foe of Wilson, in opposing the League of Nations and the peace treaty after the first World War.

Considered friendly to labor, Walsh was co-sponsor of the Walsh-Healey Act, covering labor relations of Federal contractors and representing the first Federal legislation governing wages and hours. In his later years in the Senate, one of his important posts was the chairmanship of the Wagner Labor Act Committee.

Always prominent in national party councils, Walsh was a delegate at large to eight Democratic conventions, from 1912 to 1940.

Walsh was beaten at the polls only three times in his career. He rebounded after every defeat but the last one. After losing his seat to the namesake and grandson of his former Senate colleague last fall, Walsh sought seclusion at his home in Clinton.

Born Into Poverty

Born in Leominster, Mass., November 11, 1872, the ninth in a family of 10 children, Walsh's childhood was one of poverty. However, he kept after an education and took his bachelor's degree at Holy Cross College in 1893 and received his law degree five years later at Boston University.

Walsh was a bachelor.

W. E. Collins, GAO Employe, Dies at 65

Walter E. Collins of 804 Maryland ave. ne., who exhumed one of the several bodies from which the Unknown Soldier was selected, died last night.

Mr. Collins, who was born in Washington May 10, 1882, died at Casualty Hospital following a sudden illness. He served in the Marine Corps during the Spanish-American War, during the World War I period he served with the American Graves Registration Service. Mr. Collins, who had spent nearly 19 years in Government service, was employed in the Contract Audit division, General Accounting Office, prior to his death. He was an active member of Capitol Post No. 127, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Bertha W. Collins, and a stepdaughter, Mrs. Thomas Diggs of Washington.

Services will be held at 1 p. m. Friday at the S. H. Hines Co. funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw., with burial in Arlington National Cemetery.

House Group Approves Funds To Check on D. C. Government

A $15,000 fund to investigate District government organization and possible home rule for Washington was approved yesterday by the Committee on House Administration.

Committee Chairman Karl M. LeCompte (R., Iowa) announced the action. He said he will ask House approval today.

LeCompte said the House approval would make the money available at once for use of the House District home rule subcommittee, headed by Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.).

Auchincloss has announced that the hearings on home rule would start June 30.

In other developments:

1. Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.), House District chairman, introduced a bill to let auditing experience in Government service be credited toward getting a certified public accountant certificate in the District. Senate Committee Counsel James M. Kirkland recalled the local accountants institute had opposed the move.

New Senate Office Building

2. Representative J. Harry McGregor (R., Ohio) announced his House Public Buildings Subcommittee had approved Senate bills to permit a $25,000 study for a new Senate Office Building, and to place traffic control in the Capitol grounds under the Capitol police board.

3. The House Appropriations Committee approved and sent to the House $224,782.06 in District funds as part of the second urgent deficiency bill. Biggest single item was $140,510.25 to finish paying the District's share of operation costs for the Federal Courts here this year.

Meanwhile, the Central Suffrage Conference of D. C., Inc., elected officers last night at 525 New Jersey ave. nw.

Wilbur S. Finch was reelected president of the conference which has 33 organizations represented among its 634 members.

All but one of the officers who served last year also were reelected. They are:

James S. Beattie, first vice president; J. C. Turner, second vice president; Mrs. Libbye Dunn, fourth vice president. Jesse B. Manbeck, secretary; Woolsey W. Hall, treasurer, and Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, historian.

The lone officer not reelected was Oliver T. Palmer who was nominated but declined because of the press of private business.

Palmer nominated his successor, Harry Beitscher, who served last year as a member of the board of trustees.

Elected new members of the board of trustees were, William Allen Hill, secretary, of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; Miss Sylvia Altman, musicians union, AFL; Mrs. Gertrude Evans, secretary, Industrial Union Council, CIO; Jesse Ott, Junior Board of Commerce; Mrs. Velma G. Williams, member of the board of education; Mrs. Charlotte Sillers, CIO, and Mrs. Marshall Hornblower, Voteless D. C. League of Women Voters.

R. T. Orrison Rites Held at Falls Church

Roger T. Orrison, 72, an Arlington County employe for nearly 20 years, was buried yesterday in Oakwood Cemetery in Falls Church. He died last Monday in the Dunloring, Va., convalescent home.

Mr. Orrison

A native of Waterford, Va., he started with the county in 1927 as chief clerk of the water department and held that position until he retired last December. Originally he was the sole member of the department.

Friends describe Mr. Orrison as a loyal Democrat and an ardent horse racing and horse show fan. During the 1920s, he is said to have made and lost a small fortune on the stock market.

He and his late wife, Mrs. Bertha Orrison, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary last September 4. Since her death a month later, Mr. Orrison had lived at 130 Winchester hwy., Falls Church.

Surviving him are four granddaughters, Nancy Lee, Loretta and Sarah Ann Orrison, Falls Church, and Mrs. Leroy Trunnel, Bethesda, Md.; three grandsons, Roger Lee Orrison, jr.; James A. Orrison and Richard T. Orrison, Falls Church.

Two great-grandsons, Leroy and Gerald Lee Trunnel, also survive.

Darnestown Farmer Kills Self With Shotgun

A Darnestown (Md.) farmer yesterday pointed a 12-gauge shotgun at his heart and pushed the trigger with a yardstick. Police said Charles C. Miles, 68, was apparently despondent because of poor health. Dr. Frank J. Broschart, county coroner, issued a certificate of suicide.

What Did Diplomats Talk About At Iranian Party—the Weather

By Marie McNair

WASHINGTON weather was the favorite topic yesterday among guests at the garden party given by the Iranian Ambassador and Mme. Ala.

The Ambassador himself missed the party, but whether his indisposition was from the heat or not I don't know. Mme. El Mulk mother of Mme. Ala, who arrived a day or two ago from Iran, volunteered the information that Tehran temperature may soar as high but it's never as humid as Washington.

Shorts for the Navy?

Fleet Admiral Chester Nimitz, in starched white uniform, said he'd been in training for this event, having just returned at Tuscaloosa, Ala. But he's still going to promote a new Navy uniform, he says, with sweetheart neckline, short sleeves, and shorts.

The handsome Iranian Embassy on Massachusetts ave. is blessed with an air cooling system which made the drawing room far cooler than the walled garden.

Mme. Ala, in a black and white print frock, welcomed guests in the drawing room, then joined the gathering on the broad terrace. A bar had been set up at one end, a buffet table at the other. On the lawn there were little white tables and chairs drawn up for conversational groups.

The British Ambassador, Lord Inverchapel, came from his embassy acrosss the street, chatted briefly with a half dozen friends and was soon on his way again. "Adn what shall we wear at your garden party this afternoon?" asked Mme. Eriksson, wife of the Swedish Minister. Yuickly Lord Inverchapel flashed back, "A bathing suit."

The Honduran Ambassador and Senora de Caceres relaxed in the garden. The French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet came in just as the first drop of rain fell and everyone scurried indoors, only to find it was a false alarm.

I glimpsed the Chinese Ambassador and Mme. Wellington Koo, the Italian Ambassador and Signora Tarchiani, and the Turkish Ambassador, Huseyin Ragip Baydur, in a group which included the Indian Ambassador, Asaf Ali, and the Afghanistan Minister, Abdol Hosayn Aziz.

Berendsens Back

Sir Carl Berendsen, New Zealand Minister, and Lady Berendsen were there. They've just returned from Northern Neck, Va., a spot at Rappahanock on the Potomac where they dug oysters, did some fishing and otherwise enjoyed a rest. The South African Minister, Harry Andrews, said he got his sunburn from a half hour's walk with his dog earlier in the afternoon.

Bachelors Anis Aver, Egyptian Minister, and handsome Anwar Niazi, Third Secretary of the Egyptian Embassy, were there. The Indian Minister, B. R. Sen, came with Mme. Sen, who was wrapped in a salmon-colored sari bordered in copper. I also saw Mme. La Coste, wife of the French Minister; the Finnish Minister, Dr. K. Jutila, and Robert Hadow, the Counselor of the British Embassy.

Early arrivals were Senator Theodore F. Green and the Philippine Ambassador, Joaquin Elizalde, who sipped drinks together. Others there were Gen. and Mrs. John N. Greely, Mrs. Frank Kent, jr., Raymond Muir of the State Department, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ansel Mowrer, Mrs. Elonzo Tyner.

Wellesley Picnic

Four Wellesley College scholarship winners will be announced and introduced at the Washington Wellesley Club picnic supper at 6:30 p. m. today at Beauvior School, 3500 Woodley rd. nw. A film of the club's activities the past year will be shown.

Condons Entertain At Dinner Party

MR. and Mrs. Arthur D. Condon of Washington and Edgewater, Md., entertained informally at dinner last night for Mr. and Mrs. Wright Matthews of Dallas, Tex., who are spending a few days at the Mayflower Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Condon asked a few of their mutual friends for cocktails earlier in the afternoon at the Metropolitan Club.

Mr. Matthews was formerly Assistant Commissioner of Internal Revenue. He was appointed a few days ago to be a member of the commission to write legislation revising the Federal tax structure. Former Undersecretary of the Treasury Roswell Magill heads the commission.

Latin Americans Plan Song Recital

The Ambassadors of Panama, Guatemala and Mexico have issued invitations for a program of Latin American songs and dances by the Washington Concert Ballet and Fernando Donoso, Chilean tenor, on the esplanade of the Pan American Union Building, Wednesday, June 25, at 9 p. m. In the event of rain, the program will be given the following evening.

The concert orchestra of the United Sates Navy Band, under the direction of Richard Townsend, will assist.

In New York

Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Barnett and Miss Suzanne Barnett are in New York for a few days and are at the Hotel Weylin.

Rehoboth Visitors

From Rehoboth Beach comes news of weekenders and their summer homes. Judge and Mrs. Edgar J. Goodrich of Washington have opened Sandy Bottoms for the season. P. C. Young of Schenectady, N. Y., was the weekend guest of his sister, Mrs. Lucy Lathrop.

The James P. Nolans of Washington, and their son, Gill, spent the past weekend at Rehoboth. Charles Koones of this city, and his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Henius, will arrive Sunday at the beach accompanied by Mr. Koones' sons, Charles and Tony.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil MacDonald of Washington are settled for the season in their new resort cottage.

Mrs. Miner Hostess

Mrs. Randolph H. Miner was hostess to a few friends at luncheon yesterday in the Mayflower Lounge for her niece, Mrs. Hugh McNeil, visiting here from California.

In Atlantic City

The Ambassador of Panama and Senora de Vallarino have gone to Atlantic City for several days and are at the Hotel Traymore.

Suite—Love

In All Souls' Protestant Church yesterday, Miss Lois Virginia Love, daughter of Mrs. Charles Bell Love, Mount Rainier, Md., became the bride of William Crandall Suite, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Harry Suite of Washington. The Rev. H. H. D. Sterrett officiated.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Albert Livingston Houghton, the bride wore a gown of white duchess satin with circular train. A coronet of chantilly lace and orange blossoms held her finger-tip veil and she carried a shower bouquet of white larkspur and bridal roses.

Costumed in white chantilly lace and carrying pink roses and blue delphinium, Mrs. E. Hewitt Dimmitt acted as matron of honor. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Russell G. Robinson and Miss Cordelia Light, were attired in white tissue taffeta with bouquets of pink roses, pink larkspur and blue delphinium. Dr. William Luther Knott was best man and ushers were Edison Hewitt Dimmitt, Russell G. Robinson, William O'Neil and Roscoe L. Wood.

Following a reception at the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club, Landover, Md., Mr. and Mrs. Suite left for a honeymoon at Virginia Beach. The bride studied at Corcoran School of Art and George Washington University. Mr. Suite, an architect and industrial designer, attended Catholic and George Washington universities.

Hickerson-Loftus

All Saints Episcopal Church was the scene of the wedding on June 6 of Miss Ruth Elaine Loftus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Joseph Loftus of Orlando, Fla., formerly of Chevy Chase, Md., and John Hightower Hickerson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dewey Hickerson of Washington. The Rev. Charles W. Lowry officiated.

Due to the illness of the bride's father in Florida, the ceremony was performed in the presence of Washington members of both families and the couple's most intimate friends. Miss Helen Loftus was her sister's maid of honor and South Trimble 3d was best man.

The couple will reside in this city following a wedding trip through Shenandoah Valley. The bride was graduated from Holy Name Academy and attended George Washington University. Her husband, a veteran of two and a half years service with the Marine Corps, attended Duke University where he was a member of Phi Delta Theta.

Beatrice Blair Makes Debut At Garden Tea

Miss Beatrice Blair, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery Blair, jr., was introduced to her parents' friends at a tea yesterday at the 1925 F Street Club.

Later in the evening Mrs. John Gross, godmother of the debutante, entertained at a dinner-dance for the young guests.

The debutante is a descendant of Francis Blair who first lived in historic Blair House. Her aunts are Mrs. B. Lowndes Jackson and Mrs. Adolphus Staton, both of Washington. Her mother, the former Miss Virginia Mason, has been active in dozens of civic projects and was once president of the Junior League.

Dr. and Mrs. Blair and their daughter, in a flower-filled drawing room, welcomed their guests. Mrs. Blair wore a long gown of gray crepe with an orchid tucked at the belt. Her daughter's frock of starched white lace, and tight sleeveless bodice, was finished with a Bertha edged with lace. She wore a gardenia and carried a bouquet of white blossoms.

Mrs. Blair had asked a number of her friends to take their turn at the tea table and a bar had been set up in the garden.

Miss Blair who was graduated from the Madeira School last week, will go to Bryn Mawr in the fall. Meanwhile, she'll go with her family to South Dartmouth, Mass., to visit Miss Elizabeth Houghton at her summer home.

Iris Disney To Be Bride Of Mr. Yorke

Judge Richard Lester Disney, of the United States Tax Court, and Mrs. Disney, announce the engagement of their daughter, Iris Dawn, to James Marcus Yorke, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Yorke of Fayetteville, N. C.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of National Cathedral School for Girls, Washington, and the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, Va. She received her bachelor of science degree on Monday.

Mr. Yorke is a student in the engineering department of North Carolina State College at Raleigh. He served four years as chief petty officer, USNR.

The wedding will take place in July at the National City Christian Church with Dr. J. Warren Hastings officiating.

Mrs. Morris Entertains At Luncheon

MRS. JAMES M. MORRIS, wife of Justice Morris, entertained at a bridesmaids' luncheon yesterday in her apartment at the Westchester in honor of Miss Sara Jane Kitchin, whose marriage to Frederick Finkenstaedt will take place on Saturday.

The guests included Miss Betty Owen, who will be maid of honor; Mrs. Richmond Luther, Miss Lillian Leverton, Mrs. Charles W. Price, Miss Sophie Finkenstaedt, Mrs. Mills Kitchin, mother of the bride-to-be, and Mrs. Edward R. Finkenstaedt, mother of the prospective bridegroom.

The Service Set

By Bessie Hackett

IN A FLURRY of prenuptial festivities and trousseau shopping is blonde and petite Pat Richardson, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. William Lloyd Richardson. Pat will join the ranks of June brides on the 21st when she walks up the aisle of the Bolling Field Chapel to become Mrs. Herman John Zmolek. Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Zmolek of Ontario, Calif., will arrive in the Capital Saturday in time for the last week of parties.

Born in Hawaii just 20 years ago, Patricia has traveled far and wide and attended Woodrow Wilson High School here, Chaffey College in Ontario and George Washington University.

Two showers were given yesterday which will help Pat set up housekeeping in Los Angeles. At noon Mrs. William L. McCulla was hostess at a luncheon and miscellaneous shower at her home in Fairlington and last night Miss Peggy Schaaff, former classmate at Woodrow Wilson, entertained at a blue-and-white kitchen shower at her home in Chevy Chase.

ALL that extra volleying on the tennis courts at the Army and Navy Country Club these sunny days and the sports talk infiltrating even the most social of service set gatherings means that the family mixed-doubles tournament is about to start.

The club championships in men's and women's singles, doubles and mixed doubles are scheduled to begin Saturday.

Eleven teams—husbands and wives, fathers and daughters—have signed up for the round-robin competition. They are: Vice Admiral and Mrs. John Hoover, Col. Hugh Miller and daughter, Mrs. Rex Smith; Col. and Mrs. N. W. Roog, Col. and Mrs. Robert Alan, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Weinlang, Col. and Mrs. S. S. Ballentine, Capt. (USN ret.) E. D. Duckett and daughter, Mrs. Helen Duckett Waller; Capt. (USN) W. C. Mehaffey and daughter, Miss Frances Mehaffey; Col. and Mrs. Willis S. Fitch, Col. and Mrs. W. H. Garrison, and Col and Mrs. Robert Fulton.

"WESTWARD HO!" is the password for Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Ira C. Eaker as the retiring deputy commander in chief of the Army Air Forces and his wife prepare to leave Washington on June 16. In the meantime, they're finding themselves in a whirl of farewell parties.

The general hails from Texas and Mrs. Eaker is a Tarheel—but the great Northwest is beckoning. So the Eakers plan a six-month motor trip to California and Oregon, where they'll look over their property at Medford on the Rogue River. While hunting and fishing, they'll decide whether to build a home in Oregon and may even drop down to Mexico City while making up their minds.

First Lady Faces Busy Social Slate

A crowded White House social schedule will confront Mrs. Truman when she returns from Canada with the President tomorrow.

At the annual garden party for hospitalized veterans on Friday, June 20, the First Lady will be hostess to more than a thousand guests from Government hospitals in the Washington area.

Another affair with a lengthy guest list is the garden party on June 26 for women holding executive positions in the Government. More than 2500 are expected to attend. On Tuesday, June 24, Mrs. Truman and the Cabinet ladies will give their annual picnic for the Senate Ladies Luncheon Club.

Women attending the President's Highway Safety Conference and wives of the Governors and other officials at the conference, will be received at the White House by Mrs. Truman at 5 p. m.

No definite date has been set for the departure of Mrs. Truman and her daughter for Independence, Mo., where they will spend the summer, according to Miss Reathel Odum, who conducted her press conference.

Mrs. Truman's mother, Mrs. D. W. Wallace, is still a guest at the White House. On Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Gates Wells of Platte City, Mo., and their three daughters, Bess, Helen and Ann Louise, will arrive at the White House for a visit. Mr. Wells is a cousin of Mrs. Truman.

Mrs. Amussen Is Married

Mrs. Margaret Sanderson Amussen, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Fred R. Sanderson, Kenwood, Md., and widow of Lieut. John Russell Amussep, Naval Air Corps, brother of the bridegroom, was married at the Shrine of the Blessed Sacrament yesterday to Christopher Robin Amussen, son of Mrs. Theodore Smith Amussen, also of Kenwood. The Rev. Russell Phelan officiated.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a period gown of apple green organdy over pale pink. She had pink flowers in her hair and carried the family prayer book. Attending her were Miss Louise Sanderson and Miss Mary Ann Sanderson, also wearing green organdy. Their flowers were pink snapdragons. Theodore S. Amussen was his brother's best man. Ushers were Robert and Donald Amussen, Charles Hurd and Robert McChesney.

Following a honeymoon at Sea Island, Ga., the couple will reside in Wynnewood, Pa.

Philippine Party Slated

THE Philippine Ambassador, Joaquin Elizalde, will entertain at a cocktail party this afternoon at the embassy following the ceremony at which seven members of Congress and two former members will receive decorations from the Philippine Republic.

The Military Merit Medal will be bestowed by the Ambassador on Senator Hugh Butler, Senator Owen Brewster, Senator Allen J. Ellender, Representative Eugene Worley, Representative George P. Miller and Representative Fred L. Crawford.

Former Senator Abe Murdock, former Representative J. W. Robinson and J. Weldon Jones, assistant director of the budget, who served as acting United States High Commissioner of the Philippines, will also be decorated. Gen. George C. Kenney, who commanded General MacArthur's air forces in the liberation of the Philippines, will be awarded the Distinguished Service Star.

Among those invited to witness the ceremony and stay for the reception are the Secretary of War and Mrs. Robert Patterson, General of the Army Dwight Eisenhower and Mrs. Eisenhower and other high ranking officers of the Army as well as members of Congress and their wives.

Mrs. Jones Entertains

Mrs. Lambert Emlyn Jones entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Shoreham for Mrs. Lela Lane Stanley of Los Angeles who came East for the wedding of her daughter in Williamsburg, Va., and is now visiting Mrs. Philip Jessup in Georgetown.

Other guests were Mrs. Jessup, Mrs. Lucius K. Scott, Miss Cynthia Hill, Mrs. Matthew White Perry, Miss Devereux Green, Mrs. Sykes Stevenson and Mrs. Hunter Drum.

Mrs. Jones and her small daughter, Carolyn Emlyn Jones, will leave soon for Virginia Beach to spend the summer with Mrs. James Emlyn Jones.

Work Through Political Parties, Mrs. Macauley Urges Zontas

To be effective, women must go in for partisan politics. That is—they must join and work actively in one of the political parties. So declared Mrs. Robert W. Macauley, head of the women's division, National Republican Committee.

Guest of honor and speaker at Zonta Club's luncheon held yesterday in the Dodge Hotel, she told listeners that the gentler sex should take more than an intellectual interest in politics and government.

"Get out and work for your party," she advised. "Don't just sit back and talk."

"Independent voters are really dependent voters," opined the tall, glamorous blonde committeewoman. "Actually, independent voters wait for somebody else to make decisions for them."

Tracing the achievements of women since obtaining suffrage, Mrs. Macauley said, "All in all, the results aren't too bad, despite the scarcity of women in high government posts.

"And more women are becoming politically conscious and active yearly," she continued. She attributed the increase to the fact that women are becoming more conscious of government's influence in their daily lives.

To Install Officers

The Soroptimist Club of Arlington will hold its installation of officers on Thursday, June 26, at 7 p. m. at the Washington Golf and Country Club. Mrs. Katharine Bonner Winston will be installed as president to succeed Miss Gertrude Crocker.

Other officers to be installed are Mrs. Neta Broaddus, vice president; Mrs. Lorena Ellis, recording secretary; Mrs. Ruth V. Phillips, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Anne K. Miles, treasurer; and Mrs. Edna M. Keer, director.

June Meeting Planned

Washington Readers Club will hold a reception in the hall of Sherwood Presbyterian Church, 22d and Rhode Island ave. ne., Tuesday, June 17, at 8 p. m. The program will include a marionette show by Anthony Vinci and numbers by other new members. Mrs. Cecile Foster will preside.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl Returns to Parents With Child, 3, When Marriage Fails; They Offer Support And Oppose Her Desire to Go Back to Work

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My 3-year-old daughter and I have been living with my parents for the past six months. You see, I separated from my husband because of his failure to provide adequate support; also because of his habitual sullen anger and frequent outbursts of temper.

My daughter is a brilliant beautiful child who accommodates nicely to any situation and seems emotionally well adjusted so far. I wish to give her every educational advantage possible.

During the war I worked as a metallurgist with a large factory. I greatly enjoyed the work and would like to return to it. Soon there will be an opening for Betsy in a splendid day nursery, where she would receive excellent care during my working hours.

However, my parents believe I should stay home and give all my attention to Betsy's training; and my father wants to support us, at least until she enters school. But mother is "nervous" and sometimes Betsy is severely reprimanded for making only a normal amount of noise. I feel it would be better for all if I were to place her in a day nursery and resume my work.

Man Joins Army To Escape Debts

SOME months ago my husband volunteered for the Army Air Corps, to escape his heavy debts. With his consent I sold all our household goods and now I receive a Government allotment. Over my parents' objections, I recently paid father a considerable sum for past board, and I want to "pay as we go" in the future.

By working as a metallurgist I can do this and also save for a divorce, my own apartment and Betsy's future schooling. I still would have nearly the same amount of time to play with and read to Betsy and give mother a lift with the housework. The house is large and at present I am busy with housework nearly all day.

Too, I would like to give Betsy an example of financial independence. My husband sadly lacked such training in his childhood; consequently he still leans on his parents for financial help. If you think my attitude is sound, please help me convince my parents that I should start work now. R. S.

Spirit Sickens On Dependency

DEAR R. S.: In my opinion, your ideas are sound. Indeed, there is urgent warrant for your attitude. As a matter of social self-preservation, you've got to branch out into adult administration of your own affairs.

Your zest for living—Betsy's, too—would be gradually done to death if you stayed indefinitely in this setup, where already you are walking on eggs and making yourselves small, figuratively speaking, in an effort to mitigate the implied nuisance-value of your semi-dependency on parental largesse.

Your father means well, of course, in pressing to keep you and Betsy together inside the circle of his bounty, at least until she reaches school-age. But like all benevolent autocrats, he is blind to the fact that dictatorial patronage is suffocating to the human spirit.

As for your mother, doubtless she is a chronic worrier. I daresay her objections to your prospectus for independence stem from the same emotional roots as her nervous irritability,—namely, from an anxiety neurosis, recently aggravated by the failure of your marriage.

Mother's Humor Is Depressing

HENCE, though her intentions are of the best, she is mistakenly urging a long-range disservice on you and Betsy—also running a risk of souring all aspects of family relationships—in arguing to keep you closely cooped up with her for an indefinite number of years.

Her negative temperament, which is her misfortune, is certainly not a constructive intimate early-life influence for Betsy, on a full-time basis. Unquestionably the atmosphere of a first-class day nursery—while it may lack some of the elements of ideal mothering—would be immeasurably more beneficial in safeguarding the child's emotional stability and fostering happy hearted social competence.

Also, of course, her negativism felt close up 24 hours a day is a serious down-drag on your morale in this time of trial; and for Betsy's sake as well as your own, over the long haul, you ought to get back to a job you love,—as much for the psychological lift as for the salary it would provide. In brief, I back your prospectus 100 per cent—for reasons too numerous to mention here—and I advise your parents to do the same. M. H.

Your Questions on Homemaking

How can I clean a white straw hat that has turned slightly yellow with age? How can I remove a lemon stain from a tropical worsted suit? E. S.

A white straw hat which has turned yellow from age can be bleached to lighten the color, but this is a job to be done by professionals. Take your hat to a valet service shop specializing in hat renovation.

To remove lemon juice stains from the suit, sponge with cool water. If the lemon juice has changed the color of the fabric, hold the stained fabric over the fumes from a bottle of household ammonia to restore the color. If ammonia changes color too much, sponge immediately with white vinegar. Sponge thoroughly with cool water.

I spilled nail polish remover on a rayon faille dress. The spot has become shiny and comparatively stiff, but the individual fibers are still distinguishable. Can anything be done to restore the material to its original condition? E. L. R.

Dampen the stain with lukewarm water and sprinkle with pepsin powder. Let it stand ½ hour. This should help to soften the stain.

Yesterday I polished my bleached mahogany end tables with furniture oil and it left dark stains where there were scratches before. Will I be able to remove this? What should I use? I have a leather lounge chair. Will you please tell me what to use to preserve the leather? I have a sectional sofa covered with a cotton print material, white print on a cocoa brown background. What should I use to remove spots and soil? I would like to clean my rugs with my vacuum cleaner attachment. Do you know of any store in Washington which sells this particular cleaner? L. C. K.

Try this to remove the stains from the furniture scratches: wrap cotton around a toothpick and dip it into cream furniture polish or liquid wax and rub into the scratch. This should lighten the stain. When you get the stains removed, protect the surface well with a cream wax. There is a special product on the market made of emulsified vegetable oils which softens and preserves leather.

Dust your sofa with a powder made especially for cleaning rugs and furniture. Take the piece onto the porch or out of doors and shake the powder over the surface. Rub it into the fabric well with a stiff bristled brush. Leave the powder on the furniture for several hours. Then brush it off or use the upholstery attachment for your vacuum cleaner.

If this doesn't remove all of the spots, you may need to go over it again with a furniture shampoo. Use a good, sudsy upholstery cleaner and follow the manufacturer's directions. Be sure to test the cleaner on a small, inconspicuous spot first. An electric fan turned directly on the piece, when you are finished, will hasten the drying and lessen the chances of the colors running.

You may buy the special rug cleaner you asked about through the distributors of your vacuum cleaner. Their place of business is on Georgia ave. For their telephone number look in the yellow pages of the directory.

Wilson Senior Wins $200 in Essay Contest

Elon Borton, president of the Advertising Federation of America, yesterday presented the federation's $200 essay contest award to Louis Rothschild, senior at Woodrow Wilson High School, at a luncheon given by the Women's Advertising Club of Washington in the Washington Hotel.

Young Rothschild won second place in the national essay contest on "What Advertising Can Mean to America." In presenting the check, the federation head said that 36 winners had been selected from the more than 12,000 entries.

The District student had previously won the $50 first prize in the local contest sponsored by the WACW.

Youngest member of the federation, the Washington club chalked up another score when it received honorable mention in the national achievement contest. Henry J. Kauffman, president of the Kauffman Advertising Agency, presented the group with a certificate on behalf of AFA.

W. Frank Gatewood, president of the Washington Men's Advertising Club, was a special guest.

Miss Eugenia Schor, president, and Miss Jean Ambrose, incoming president of the local club, reported on the federation's convention held recently in Boston.

McKinney—Snow

Miss Constance Ruth Snow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Jack Snow of Washington, was married June 10 at Metropolitan Methodist Church to Walter Hastings McKinney, jr., whose parents are from Winnipeg, Canada. The Rev. Edward G. Latch officiated.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin and duchess lace covered with net and carried white orchids and stephanotis. Matron of honor for her sister was Mrs. J. Harry Miles, jr., Mrs. Bruce R. Payne, 3d, Mrs. William I. Park, Miss Elizabeth S. Graham and Miss Jean Williams, in yellow taffeta, were bridesmaids. Flower girl, wearing green taffeta and carrying a colonial bouquet, was Lynne Arrott. William Thaddeus King was best man and ushers were John Francis McKinney, Ben S. Fisher, William I. Park and John Moore. A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed.

The newlyweds will honeymoon in Hot Springs, Va., and then reside in Auburn, Ala. Mrs. McKinney attended Penn Hall Junior College and her husband attended Alabama Polytechnical Institute.

Kent—Pace

After a motor trip to North Carolina, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Garland Kent, jr., will reside in Arlington.

The bride is the former Miss Genevieve Thelma Pace, daughter of Mrs. Lonnie Eugene Pace, Rogers Heights, Md., and the late Mr. Pace. Mr. Kent is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Garland Kent, Arlington. Their marriage took place June 1 at the home of the bridegroom's parents, with the Rev. Alva Lincoln Smith officiating.

Given in marriage by her brother, Lonnie Bertrand Pace, the bride was costumed in an afternoon frock of navy with white accessories and carried a bouquet of gardenias and sweetpeas. Mrs. Lonnie Bertrand Pace was matron of honor, wearing a costume of American beauty and carrying roses. Mr. Kent was best man for his son.

Finotti—Bryan

Miss Barbara Ann Bryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack M. Goldberg of Washington, and Benedict Edelen Finotti, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Prather of Washington, were married June 10 in Holy Name Church, the Rev. G. M. Powers officiating.

Mr. Goldberg gave his daughter in marriage. The bride wore white satin and lace and a fingertip veil of illusion held by a crown of seed pearls. Her prayer book was covered with orchids and satin streamers.

Miss Norma Brunt, maid of honor, wore light green tulle and carried yellow roses. James J. Sietz acted as best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. When the couple return from their honeymoon in the Pocono Mountains, they will make their home in Washington.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Georgetown University School of Foreign Service.

Byrne—Middleton

The Rev. Edward J. O'Brien officiated at the nuptial mass June 7 in St. Anthony's Church, when Miss Dorothy Marie Middleton became the bride of Joseph Leo Byrne. The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Middleton and Mr. Byrne is son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Bernard Byrne.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore white satin and marquisette. Her finger-tip-length veil was held by a tiara of orange blossoms and she carried a prayer book and spray of roses. Miss Mary Jane Middleton, maid of honor for her sister, was costumed in pale pink marquisette with matching headpiece and carried old-fashioned bouquet of pink and blue sweetpeas. Francis Byrne was best man for his brother and ushers were George Barnes and Jack Neam.

Following a reception at the home of the bride's parents, the newlyweds left on a wedding trip. They will make their home in Washington.

Bushlow—Sherman

In a gown of white satin, Miss Lillian Sherman became the bride of Elliott H. Bushlow. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sherman of Washington, and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis G. Bushlow, also of Washington. The ceremony took place June 8 in the Romany Room of the Romanian Inn, and Rabbi Solomon Metz officiated.

Mr. Sherman gave his daughter in marriage, and Mrs. Sylvia Singer attended her sister as matron of honor. Mrs. Singer was clad in pink faille and carried a bouquet of roses. Nathaniel Bushlow, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

After a wedding trip through the mountains of New York State, the couple will make their home in Washington.

Scholarship Winner

Miss Peggy Ann Ernst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Ernst, is holder of an honorary music scholarship at Wilson College, Chambersburg, Pa. She has completed her freshman year and is home for the summer.

Truman Tax Word Likely Next Monday

President Truman may be expected to announce his action on the income tax reduction bill next Monday, the last day of grace before it would become law without his signature. This was learned from an authoritative source yesterday.

There had been some expectation on Capitol Hill that the message, expected to convey a veto, would be received from the White House tomorrow. President Truman will not return from his current trip to Canada until tomorrow, but, it had been pointed out, it would not be necessary for him to be in Washington for the message to go to Congress.

Meanwhile, in the tax field there were fresh developments:

1. The House Ways and Means Committee unanimously approved a two-year freeze of the Social Security tax at 1 per cent each on employer and employee. Without such action, the tax would jump from the present 1 per cent to 2.5 per cent on wages and payrolls. The committee approved a formula for future increases, providing that the levy shall go to 1.5 per cent on January 1, 1950 and continue at that rate through 1956, when it would become 2 per cent on employer and employe.

2. Senator Walter George (D., Ga.) said he had asked Secretary of Treasury John W. Snyder to urge Mr. Truman to sign the tax reduction bill, basing his plea on the grounds that a vote now would kill any chance of a tax cut before July 1, 1948. He added that "the President will be in no position to, and cannot afford to recommend a taxe reduction in January if he opposes it now."

3. Secretary Snyder later in the day told a press conference that his opposition to tax reduction at present is unchanged. He insisted, however, that he does not know what action the Chief Executive will take on the bill.

He added:

"I am not against the principle of tax reduction—I am thinking of the financial stability of this country and of our fiscal policy.

"We must know what our expenditures are going to be before we cut our revenues. That might make those expenditures exceed the revenues.

"I certainly continue to feel that in this year, when our income is as high as it has ever been in history, we ought to pay something on the debt."

Amid laughter in which he joined heartily, he added that he had no idea whether his views made any impression on the White House.

Sitdown Idles Detroit Plant; Another Shut

Detroit, June 11 (AP)—The automotive industry horizon was clouded again today by a Hudson Motor Car Co. shutdown and a sitdown strike at Continental Motors Corp.

The new disputes idled approximately 18,000 production and office workers. Included were more than 16,000 at Hudson and 1200 at Continental, which manufactures Ford clutch assemblies and aircraft engines. The corporation's main plant at Muskegon was unaffected.

Spokesmen for Continental, first plant halted by a sitdown since the CIO United Auto Workers strike in General Motors plants at Flint 10 years ago, said UAW-CIO action followed the disciplining of "certain employes for refusing to work."

The Hudson shutdown followed a walkout of approximately 600 UAW-CIO salaried office workers who set up picket lines which 15,000 UAW-CIO production workers refused to cross.

3000 Transit Workers Strike

Oakland, Calif., June 11 (AP).—A strike of 3000 AFL bus and train operators against the Key system today halted the public transit system of six East Bay cities and the electric trains over the bay bridge to San Francisco.

Rhode Island Ave. Citizens to Seek Street Resurfacing

Members of the Rhode Island Ave. Citizens Association met last night at 2002 Rhode Island ave. ne., and voted to request resurfacing of the 1600 block, Hamlin st. ne., and installation of a traffic light at 20th st. and Rhode Island ave. ne.

The association members also authorized appropriation of $25 for prizes and other expenses for Fourth of July community programs at Taft Junior High School park and Langdon Park. The holiday programs are sponsored jointly with the Burroughs Citizens Association.

Four new members were voted into the organization at last night's meeting, which was presided over by W. A. Eisenhart, president.

Congressman Seeks Wallace Indictment

By The Associated Press

Referring to Henry A. Wallace as "the evil tool of those who would destroy America," Representative Herbert A. Meyer (R., Kans.) asked the House yesterday "when will the Attorney General of the United States do his duty and indict this renegade?"

Wallace, the Kansan declarer, "has disgraced his citizenship."

Meanwhile, Dr. Clark Foreman of Atlanta expressed hope yesterday that a projected House Un-American Activities Committee report on the Southern Conference for human welfare will be "based on fact" and will not be "an attempt to discredit Henry Wallace."

Dr. Foreman is president of the conference, which is sponsoring a speech here Monday by Wallace.

Weekend Report Due

The House committee, which expects to issue a weekend report on the organization, listed the conference as a Communist front in an official statement to the House on March 29, 1944. The conference has denied any Communist affiliation or sympathies, as has Wallace.

Dr. Foreman said in a statement that he hopes this will not be "a report of smear-by-innuendo in an attempt to discredit Henry Wallace" and added:

"We would welcome an honest, accurate and complete report on our activities because we feel that a report of this kind would put an end to the slurs and smears to which we have been subjected by the enemies of progress in the South.

Asks "American" Hearing

"However, I do not see how a complete report could be written . . . when no officer of the Southern Conference has ever been called to appear before the committee. A complete and thorough investigation should involve a public hearing and questioning of organization officials in the American manner."

Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) has called committee members to a meeting today to approve and sign the report.

Reads Treason Definition

In his speech, Meyer said:

"Mr. Speaker: Webster's Dictionary defines treason as 'the offense of attempting by overt acts to overthrow the government of the state to which the offender owes allegiance.' Treason against the United States is defined by the Constitution (Art. III, Sec. 3) to consist 'only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving aid and comfort to them.'"

Meyer said The Washington Post Tuesday printed the following report:

"Newark, N. J., June 9—Henry A. Wallace said tonight 'The United States has become the center of world reaction' and 'the common man more and more looks to Russia for ideas, help and inspiration.'"

Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) said yesterday that American proposals for world control of atomic energy "meet tests of objective truth for decency and fairness."

The Senator, who formerly headed the special Senate Committee on Atomic Energy, spoke at commencement exercises at Catholic University. Seven hundred and six degrees were conferred during the morning program held in the flag-draped gymnasium.

Senator McMahon discarded his prepared speech to tell the graduates he had just been told that Andrei Gromyko was speaking at Lake Success on control of the atom.

"I do not know what his proposal is," McMahon said. "I hope for the American people and for the peoples of the world that at long last a proposal has been made that conforms to those essentials we announced a year ago."

The Most Rev. Peter L. Ireton, Bishop of Richmond and secretary of the university's board of trustees, presided at the exercises and presented diplomas. One hundred and nine of the degrees conferred were in nursing. Thirty-four received doctor of philosophy degrees. In addition 12 degrees of doctor of canon law and six degrees of doctor of sacred theology were conferred.

Synod Leader Hits Universal Training Plan

Dr. John L. Barnhart of Baltimore, president of the Potomac Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed Church, said yesterday he is "definitely against" universal military training.

"Humanity has apparently learned nothing from the two greatest wars in all history," he told approximately 150 representatives from 106 churches in Maryland, the District of Columbia, Virginia and West Virginia meeting in Frederick, Md.

Dr. Barnhart opened the three-day synod conference at Hood College, where members will discuss the possibile basis of union of the Congregational Christian Churches and the Evangelical and Reformed Church. The merger is expected to be consummated in the early autumn of 1948.

Chest Physicians Elect Marietta President

Maj. Gen. Shelly U. Marietta, USA, retired, of 3133 Connecticut ave. nw. yesterday was elected president of the American College of Chest Physicians at its meeting in Atlantic City, N. J., the Associated Press reported.

Major General Marietta was commanding officer of Walter Reed Hospital prior to his retirement.

Other officers elected by the college at its meeting, held in connection with that of the American Medical Association, were: Dr. Richard H. Overholt of Boston, president-elect; Dr. Louis Mark, Columbus, Ohio, first vice president; Dr. Harry Warren, San Francisco, second vice president, and Dr. Minas Joannides, Chicago, secretary-treasurer.

Mead's Hopes Will Figure in Garsson Trial

Defense lawyers plan to try to show today that the May-Garsson bribe-conspiracy trial grew out of former Senator James M. Mead's ambition to be President.

Meade

Charles J. Margiotti, chief counsel for the munition makers accused of bribing former Congressman A. J. May, said he would ask leave to call Mead and several other high political figures to the witness stand.

"We intend to prove that the entire Senate investigation was motivated—at least in part—by Mead's own personal ambition to become Governor of the State of New York," Margiotti said, adding that Mead "had his eye on the White House."

Margiotti announced his plan to newspaper reporters after Justice Henry A. Schweinhaut refused to hear 22 witnesses by whom Margiotti said he would show that Dr. Henry M. Garsson was a skilled engineer and that his companies were a great help to the war effort.

Justice Schweinhaut said these things had nothing to do with the Government's charge that Dr. Garsson and his brother, Murray, bought May's influence for more than $50,000.

Dr. Garsson spent most of yesterday on the witness stand. He said he drew $90,000 a year from three of his companies during the war and that his brother, Henry, drew $55,000 or $60,000 for acting as their Washington agent. Their Washington contact man, Joseph F. Freeman, drew another $22,500, or more, Dr. Garsson said.

'Ideal Father' Contest Closes; Judges Face Job

The Post contest to select this area's "Ideal Father" closed last midnight with the mail cancellation deadline for entries set for that hour.

Contest judges already are poring over the entries trying to figure out which of all the dads nominated is best. It's a tough job, they say. It looks like the ideal dad is not just one man but every dad who loves and cares for his children. But the judges promise that they will make a selection and announce the winner Friday.

Sunday the winning dad and his family will celebrate Father's Day as guests of The Post. They will dine at a hotel, broadcast over station WINX, and attend a show. In addition, dad will receive a plaque that says he is the "ideal father of 1947."

Shell Blast Kills 12

Picaenza, Italy, June 11 (AP).—Twelve persons were killed last night when a shell was dropped and exploded as they were unloading stolen explosives from a truck. A nearby building was demolished.

A Prosperous U. S. A.
Can be Doctor to the World

'A Weak U. S. A.
Means the End of Everything!

Weakness cannot cooperate in any plan to save the world; only strength can cooperate. Certainly we should feed the starving, cure the sick, and restore the shattered. Here we are: the U. S. A. A nation made up of you, and you, and you. Strongest nation on earth. Strong because we, the people, have earned and saved more money, created more real property, and have more ambition, know-how, liberty, and freedom than any other people. Strong because we have a superior constitution. We have more of everything than any other people, anywhere, because we have created it, ourselves!

Every Dollar Loaned or Given by Government to Other Nations Comes Right Out of the Incomes and Savings of "We, the People"

Are these Millions and Billions of Our Dollars Planting the Seeds of Liberty and Freedom in Other Lands or is our Giving and Lending Weakening Us for a "Take Over" by a Police State in this, the last Citadel of Freedom on Earth?

It is the Obligation of Our Free Press to Put This Question on the Record!

"What would a police state, or Communism, do for all Americans, and to all Americans? What will a police state do to and for the man in the street? What would it do to our women and our children? What would it do to anyone with the God-given ambition to get somewhere and be somebody . . . the kind of people that are common only in America?"

Our Free Press Should Ask, and Answer, Questions Like These Right on the Front Pages. Everybody Wants to Know. You Do, Don't You?

"Will Communism give us more liberty and freedom than our Constitution now gives us, or will it smash them?"

"Will Communism give the right to strike; the right to work; the right to earn and save and go into business? Will Communism give the right to select career, job or vocation? Or will it wipe out these privileges?"

"Will Communism give us the right to earn more, and achieve our own security, or will it take away everything we have?"

"Will Communism give greater freedom of religion, or will it abolish the churches?"

"Will Communism give to all the right to trial by jury, or will it establish secret trial and abolish justice?"

If Communism would be better for all of us than the system we now have, then where, on the face of the earth, has Communism done as much for all the people, as our system has done for us right here?

By Now We Should Know What We Have and What We Need to Protect . . . with the Strongest Army, Navy and Air Force We Can Maintain with Our Dollars!

We need power to protect, defend, make sure . . . that what we have will not be taken away from us.

We need taxes to insure strength. But not taxation to be wasted in thoughtless government spending, by agencies who treat millions like pennies and billions like dimes. We need to spend to insure strength, not waste to insure weakness.

Our Strength should say to all nations: "If you want to be as we are, do as we do! Grant liberty and freedom to your people. Stop rule by fear, by privilege, by minority, by one party, by suppression and by mandate. Stop muzzling press, church, people, enterprise and truth!"

We, the U.S.A., are not "Capitalistic" Communism is the only Capitalism!

America is a free, competitive profit and loss enterprise system. No man can be a success in this country without carrying others to success with him, if they have ambition and enterprise. No man can make money in this country without giving others the opportunity to make money. No man can produce and sell anything in this country without giving others a chance to profit thereby. Is that capitalism? No! That is creating dollars by the use of talents, ambitions and enterprise, under a Constitution of liberty and freedom.

Communism is real capitalism. The State owns everything; all property, all money, all initiative, all enterprise. It takes over churches, schools, factories, stores, shops, mines, railroads, the press, radio, and the people. That's what a minority wants to impose on all of us. That's why we must be powerful even as we comfort the sick, starving, crushed nations. Our first duty is to ourselves. Unless the U.S.A. keeps strong, the entire show will be over for all of us.

Isn't this the kind of message needed by most Americans? It is impossible for me to publish this message everywhere. Somewhere in the U. S. A. there must be 1000 people who, realizing the need for more and more truth-telling, will reprint this message. There is little time left in which to do this job. We, the nation, are facing a danger greater than that posed by Pearl Harbor. The American people can do anything, if we but tell them. But they must be told.

Here is a job for our Free Press; a job for everybody. Permission is hereby granted to anyone to reprint this advertisement at their expense, without further asking. Any newspaper, any motion picture company, any radio program, may use it on the same basis. If we fail to do our duty we shall be cooperating in the liquidation of our own Republic and destroying the hope of the world.

Two D. C. Men Are Honored By Holy Cross

Worcester, Mass., June 11. Two Washington men were among five receiving honorary degrees at the 101st commencement of the College of the Holy Cross today.

An honorary Doctor of Social Science degree was given to the Rev. John F. Cronin, S. S., Ph. D., author and lecturer and assistant director of the Department of Social Action, National Catholic Welfare Conference.

An honorary Doctor of Laws degree was given to William E. Leahy, Washington attorney and president of Columbus University Law School and former director of Selective Service for the Washington district.

Both men are graduates of Holy Cross College.

Red Cross Praised For 'Glorious Spirit'

Cleveland, June 11 (INS).—Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine representative to the United Nations, praised the Red Cross tonight as "one of the most glorious manifestations of the international spirit."

The Philippine general, one of the last men to leave Bataan before the Japanese took complete control, paid the tribute in an address before some 5000 delegates to the annual 1947 American Red Cross convention in Cleveland.

Police Seek Man on Bond In Beating

John Kendrick, former member of the notorious old "Tri-State Gang" who is now out on bond for attempting to "bump off" another old-time gangster, was being sought early today for the severe beating of a 29-year-old woman

The woman, identified by police as Jean Neva Kent, was reported in critical condition late last night at Mount Alto Hospital. Police said she was removed from a room at the Jefferson Hotel, 1200 16th st. nw., about 7 p. m.

Detectives quoted the woman as saying that she had a fight in the hotel room with Kendrick.

Kendrick was released in $3500 bond after he allegedly tried to shoot Tommy English, 832 10th st. nw., June 2. English, 34, was once a member of the notorious "Blackface Gang."

FRANK F. NESBIT, ATTY.
304-308 Metropolitan Bank Bldg.

Filed June 10, 1947. Charles E. Stewart, clerk.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. Frank F. Nesbit, Lawrence Koenigsberger, trustees under an agreement dated August 7, 1933, plaintiffs, vs. Katharine R. Pike, Mrs. Florence Spence Hertlein, New Amsterdam Casualty Company, a corporation, defendants. Civil Action No. 1859-47. Order of publication. The object of this action is (1) to obtain construction of a trust agreement between the defendant Katharine R. Pike and the plaintiffs Frank F. Nesbit and Lawrence Koenigsberger as trustees dated August 7, 1933; (2) to obtain the instructions of the Court to the trustees; (3) to determine claims to personal property held by them as trustees within the District of Columbia in the form of a deposit in a local bank and a certificate of stock of the National Metropolitan Bank of Washington, D. C., and (4) for general relief. On motion of the plaintiffs, it is by the Court this 10th DAY OF JUNE, 1947, ordered that defendant Florence Spence Hertlein cause her appearance to be entered herein on or before the fortieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, occurring after the date of the first publication hereof, otherwise this action will be proceeded with as in case of default; provided a copy hereof be published once a week for three successive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and in the Washington Post. James M. Proctor, Justice. A true copy test: CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk, by CLARA F. COSGROVE, Deputy Clerk. 2,13,20.

NOW THERE ARE TWO CARS FULL OF BIG RED'S PEOPLE CROWDING US, DELTA! IS YOUR BACK AS ALLERGIC TO BULLETS AS MINE?
MY COAT OF TAN HARDLY DOES SEEM ENOUGH, STEVE! BIG RED MUST KNOW I'M WITH YOU, OR THEY'D BE COUNTING THE LEAD IN YOUR HEAD BY NOW!
CANYON PROBABLY DOESN'T KNOW THESE ROADS—AND HE HASN'T TIME TO STUDY A MAP, EVEN IF HE'S GOT ONE!
FOR ONCE I'D LIKE TO SEE A SPEED COP IN THE REAR VIEW MIRROR!
HOW ABOUT THIS RADIO TRANSMITTER?
THEY WON'T BE GUARDING OUR FREQUENCY BACK AT THE AIRPLANE, BUT I'LL TRY TO BRING IN A---HEY! LOOK!

Junior Arrives 16 Minutes Ahead of Schedule

TIMING

Philip Bryant of 2706 31st st. se., was born at 3:26 p. m. on June 8, 1926.

Philip Bryant, jr., arrived at Sibley Hospital at 5:10 p. m. on June 8, 1947.

Senior and Junior

Commenting on the careful timing, Papa Phil says:

"Daylight Saving Time threw us off a little. If they'd have stayed on Standard Time, I'll bet we'd have hit it right on the nose."

Mama Margie observes discreet silence during such banter, and wonders how good Pop's timing will be when she and Junior are ready to leave the hospital.

The Bryants have been looking for an apartment of their own ever since Phil got out of uniform. Now that Junior has arrived, living with "the folks" is going to be harder all around.

If anybody can help the Bryants' timing with an unfurnished one- or two-bedroom apartment, please call FRanklin 5195.

OOPS—SORRY

Mrs. George Steinmetz, at TOwer 5487, is rather embarrassed by this—but she needn't be, because it happens every day.

She was in Hecht's Monday afternoon, adding more packages to those she was already carrying. When she got home, there was a stranger in the pack.

It was a Jelleff envelope, containing some picture frames and one unmentionable.

If you mention the unmentionable to Mrs. Steinmetz, she'll be glad to mail you the package she inadvertently picked up.

ABOUT DROWNING

The Bureau of Vital Statistics furnishes some important figures on local drownings.

About 36 per cent of all such fatalities here occur in the Georgetown Channel. The Anacostia River and the Washington Channel are also danger spots; the Anacostia accounted for 18 per cent of last year's deaths, and the Washington Channel 14 per cent.

Obviously, these are good places to stay away from, especially for inexperienced swimmers. And the safety record of public pools should be impressed on every youngster who likes to swim.

Incidentally, 32 per cent of all drownings here occur among swimmers, but an even greater number of deaths result from falling into the water—from boats, wharves or similar "safe" places.

Most of these accidents occur close to shore—and the ability to swim well would have saved many a life.

FOUND

If you've lost a homing pigeon, Patricia Campion may be able to help you. She's found one bearing two numbers. The first number is "22935." If you call Patricia at GLebe 4016 and tell her the other number, you can claim your pigeon.

STREET SCENE

This one happened indoors—in Murphy's five and dime.

The boy was about two years old, and he was whimpering unhappily as his short-tempered mother tugged him along the crowded aisles.

As they passed, we heard her say, "Now you stop that, or I'll spank you"—but that just caused the badgered child to cry a little harder.

Whereupon Mama reached down and paddled his little posterior soundly, and the child broke out into a gale of tears.

The gray-haired lady who had been waiting on me stopped for a moment to wince at the scene that was being enacted. Then, as she resumed her duties she sighed:

"If somebody would whack that woman a couple of times, I'll bet she'd scream louder than the boy."

Grin and Bear It

"I'm voting for a bigger army and navy appropriation . . . After all, I won't live forever, and I can't leave the country entirely unprotected!"

The bidding:

6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: 9 ♡.

Ralph Kempner of Chicago, and Charles S. Lockridge didn't waste much time bidding today's Vanderbilt Cup deal to a slam. Charlie, who is secretary of the Vanderbilt tournament committee, opened the bidding with one diamond, then closed it on the next with six spades. Kempner took 12 tricks by setting up and running dummy's long diamonds.

West opened a heart and dummy's singleton ace won. Declarer trumped a low diamond and led a low spade to the queen, and East took the ace and returned a heart, which declarer ruffed on the board. Next South trumped another low diamond, laid down the jack of spades and continued a spade to North's king, drawing the last adverse trump.

Now the diamond ace dropped West's queen and dummy's long diamonds were run for the remaining tricks. Kempner won his six-spade contract, losing only the ace of trumps.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
